CHARGE OFFICER IGNORED TIP ON HAWAII ATTACK

Later Promoted, Church Says.

BY LAURENCE BURD.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 21.—The promotion of the army lieutenant who failed to act on a warning that planes were approaching Pearl Harbor on that fateful Dec. 7 nearly three years ago is one of the incomprehensible parts of a story that will shock the world when the complete account of the Japanese attack is disclosed, Rep. Church [R., Ill.] declared today in a speech in the house.

Rep. Church.

The congressman said he is convinced that those responsible for the catastrophe at Pearl Harbor were in Washington when the attack occurred and that the "administration knows that is true."

Warning Was Ignored.

Citing one instance of the strange events that have taken place in connection with the disaster, he recalled that an army lieutenant at the base received a warning from two privates operating a detector unit that planes were approaching and that the officer told the privates to forget it.

"That same lieutenant, Kermit A. Tyler, is today a lieutenant colonel," Church said. "Think of it; an officer who was not on the alert at the time of Pearl Harbor subsequently has been promoted by the army to the rank of lieutenant colonel. It is beyond understanding."

Church demanded lifting the secrecy surrounding the disaster by prompt courts-martial of the two Pearl Harbor commanders, Rear Adm. Husband E. Kimmel and Maj. Gen. Walter C. Short, both of whom were removed from their commands after the Japanese attack.

Church Accuses Truman.

The Illinois representative charged that Sen. Truman [D., Mo.], Democratic candidate for the Vice Presidency, was condemning Kimmel and Short without giving them a chance to tell their side of the story. He also asserted Truman chose to ignore evidence indicating that the actual blame lay with administration officials in Washington.

Church laid his demand before the house after Adm. Kimmel yesterday charged Truman with making false statements concerning Kimmel's conduct as commander of the Pacific fleet. Truman in a recent magazine article cited alleged friction between Kimmel and Short before the Pearl Harbor attack as an argument for a unified army-navy command. Kimmel, in his letter to Truman, denied that friction existed and repeated his demand that the nation be told the full story thru courts-martial.

Church told the house he was "astounded that an aspirant for the second highest office in this great country would publicly condemn a man before he was given an opportunity to be heard."

Report Termed Political.

He said Truman based his charges on the report of a commission headed by Supreme Court Justice Roberts, which investigated the circumstances surrounding the attack.

"The Roberts report is nothing more than a political document," Church said. "It was designed not to present the truth but to prevent the people from knowing the truth.

"I am personally convinced, and I believe a true investigation will substantiate me, that the people really responsible for the Pearl Harbor catastrophe were here in Washington on Dec. 7, and not in the Pacific.

Asserts New Deal Knows It.

"The administration knows that is true. How can one otherwise explain the unwillingness of the administration to hold courts-martial of Gen. Short and Adm. Kimmel?"

Church recalled that the Roberts report said Kimmel and Short were

1,500 CIO Men Rebel Against Political Fund

Fifteen hundred members of local 1117 in the Gary plant of the American Bridge company, United States Steel subsidiary, were in revolt yesterday against the campaign of Sidney Hillman's CIO political action committee to "raise dollars for Roosevelt."

Sidney Hillman.

At a recent meeting of the CIO local, the members tabled a resolution from the national organization that each member donate $1 to the political slush fund. Chester F. Midgett, chairman of the grievance committee; Harry Bynum, a member of that committee, and Frank Trotter, financial secretary, spoke against the measure and the members were reported agreed unanimously.

Want Politics Out.

"We decided to keep politics out of the local," said Midgett. "I have fought such action since I got into the union. We decided that we are running a union local, not a political party. It is a man's own business how he votes, not the business of the union."

Midgett said the motion for the raising of funds was read to the meeting by the recording secretary. It was followed by an immediate motion to table, he said, and there was no argument in behalf of the measure.

"If any of the members want to buy dollar tickets to aid the PAC they may do so," said Midgett, "but it is not the place of the union to urge that they do. The rank and file agree with this principle and that's all there is to it.

"I can't tell you how the other locals feel about this matter. It is my personal opinion, however, that they should all follow our lead. When it comes to union business, I'm there 100 per cent, but when politics comes along it is not the business of the union."

Other Revolts Reported.

With the announcement of the local 1117 revolt came reports that similar action had been discussed by local 3008 in the Gary sheet and tin mill of Carnegie Illinois company. The local president, Gene Pilcher, was reported on vacation. Other officials would admit only that "there was a germ of truth" in the report.

The Gary action followed news from Salt Lake City, Utah, that two local committees of the PAC had bolted the organization engaged in raising 6 million dollars to keep President Roosevelt in power. Backed by their unions, the committees protested that "American citizenship can't be put into a union."

Men Back Protest.

The action was taken by the PAC committees of the CIO Mine, Mill, and Smelter Workers' unions in the towns of Bauer and Tooele. It was backed unanimously by the rank and file of the two unions, about 750 men.

"We believe in man's free agency to vote as he sees fit," said the letter of protest. "We do not believe in being dictated to by one man or group of men. This is the right of any American citizen as specified in the Constitution of the United States."

LAMPLIGHTER OF FRANCE

63 Raids: Hero Has Medals, Not a Scratch

Col. Frank Allen, 36, was home yesterday visiting with the bride he left behind more than a year ago after a week of married life. He was home with first hand stories of some of the biggest and most important air raids of the war—Ploesti, Romania; Steyr, Austria; the harbor of Toulon, Regensburg, Bucharest, Vienna, the Cassino abbey, Marseilles, the Salerno and Anzio beachheads, the Naples airdrome, Brenner pass, and others.

He had a shirt full of medals, but not a single scratch to show for his 63 missions, most of them as commander of a bomb group which has a record of more than 300 flights and was one of the first American groups in action, first in England and then in the African and Italian theaters. Neither, he said, did any member of his crew have a scratch.

On Shuttle Raid to Russia.

Col. Allen's last flight was as leader of the leading group of B-17 planes in the first shuttle raid over Germany from Italy to Russia. The Russians are polite people, he said, but they don't let a stranger learn much about them or their war.

His awards include the air medal with clusters, the distinguished flying cross and cluster; the silver star with cluster; the Presidential citation, and the Legion of Merit award. The last award has been ordered, he said, but he has not received it yet.

Col. Allen would have been home sooner, after his 53d mission, except that two commanders named to succeed him were shot down and he had to stay until the group got a leader.

Former Air Line Pilot

Col. Allen admits he has been lucky in avoiding injury, but friends thought his prowess as a flyer might have something to do with his record. He was a pilot for the United Air Lines for two years before he volunteered for service, just after Pearl Harbor. He began amateur flying in 1930.

His bride is the former Violet Crozier of Chicago. The Allens live at 6732 East End av. Col. Allen will report soon at Miami, Fla., for further assignment.

He told of a narrow escape while bombing Toulon submarine pens. A suicidal Nazi attempted to ram Allen in the leading plane, but at the last second Allen dipped his right wing sharply, the Nazi slid past, clipped Allen's wing, and crashed a companion's plane. Both Nazi planes fell in flames.

Two other flyers with long records were back yesterday. Sgt. Fred B. Binder, 27, of 849 De Kalb av., Sycamore, was convalescing at Vaughan General hospital, Hines, after completing 65 missions over Europe. His left leg was injured by flak in a raid over the coast of France May 20. Sgt. Binder received the Purple Heart for his wounds and also has the distinguished flying cross and the air medal with nine oak leaf clusters.

Capt. Charles Small, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Smaltz, 5904 S. Troy st., was visiting his parents after 50 missions over Europe. He has the distinguished flying cross with four oak leaf clusters, and two Presidential citations. He was never injured.

SURRENDER OF ARMY ONLY PEACE TERMS, ALLIES TELL BULGARS

ANKARA, Turkey, Aug. 21 (AP).—The allies have refused to bargain with Bulgaria for her exit from the war, reports indicated tonight. British Ambassador Knatchbull-Hugessen is believed to have told Stoicho Moshanov, Bulgarian emissary, that the Bulgarian army would have to surrender unconditionally.

United States officials have been kept informed of the Bulgarian-British negotiations. "Action, not talk, is necessary," the allied representatives told the Bulgarians.

The government of Premier Bagrianov is believed intent on getting out of the war despite the allied refusal to compromise. The Russians have dashed Bulgarian hopes for soviet support of Sofia's attempt to gain a corridor to the Aegean sea thru Thrace. Ejection of German troops from Bulgaria is one of the allied demands.

May Announce Break.

LONDON, Aug. 22 [Tuesday]—(AP).—Foreign Minister Parvan Draganov is scheduled to address the Bulgarian parliament this afternoon and there was speculation in London that he might announce a limited break with Germany.

Raise Tricolor Over Spanish Border Bridge

IRUN, Spain, Aug. 21 (AP).—Uniformed officers of the French army took possession of the international bridge at Hendaye at 5:30 p. m. today in the name of the French committee of national liberation, thus completing French occupation of the entire Pyrenees frontier.

A small group of officials applauded when the French tricolor was hoisted over the frontier post for the first time since 1940.

Two French officers, flown to Spain from Algiers, and Ferdinand Hirigoyen, for 12 years mayor of Biarritz until ousted by the Vichy government in 1942, crossed the bridge into France just as the rumble of exploding German munition dumps to the north shook the structure.

Ex-Mayor Raises Flag.

Hirigoyen, who escaped over the mountains to Spain a month ago when the Germans learned of his aid to the underground, walked to the flagpost beside the customs shed and hoisted a large French flag.

A few minutes before the French party crossed the bridge the German military attache at Madrid, Col. Wilhem Otzen, had crossed returning to Spain from a farewell luncheon at St. Jean de Luz with the German general commanding the region.

Five minutes after the arrival of the French the German consul at San Sebastian, Spain, drove up to the customs gate intending to cross as usual. He was turned back by the Spanish guard with the news that the frontier now was occupied by the French.

Two hours after the French took possession they had 30 German prisoners, with hundreds more waiting to surrender.

Two truckloads of heavily armed German troops appeared on the frontier highway coming from Nehobia to Hendaye and headed toward Capt. Pierre d'Hauverne, who was standing alone in the highway awaiting what he believed would be certain death.

Hand Over Guns.

The trucks came to a screeching halt before the lone representative of the Algiers committee. The Germans handed over 30 submachine guns, rifles, and small arms, saying: "All we want to do is surrender."

Reports reaching here said the last German troops sped northward late today from Bayonne, with French troops in pursuit, toward the Bordeaux region, where an armored column was said to be forming with the intention of attempting to fight a way thru to Germany. Three allied light cruisers shelled German defenses at Bayonne early today for more than an hour.

U. S. TROOPS BATTLE BEYOND SEINE; CROSS RIVER ON BOTH SIDES OF PARIS

Patton's Army Set to Roll Foe Back on Rocket Coast.

SUPREME HDQ., ALLIED EXPEDITIONARY FORCE, Aug. 21 (AP). — American troops stormed toward the rocket bomb coast of France tonight after planting bridgeheads across the Seine both northwest of Paris and southeast of the city near Marne battlefields of the first World war.

The United States 3d army, striking across the Seine 25 miles northwest of Paris, fanned out and threatened to drive the 15th German army and the battered 7th back to the borders of Germany or roll them up against the sea.

[The Berlin radio said the Americans enlarged this bridgehead "in small measure" and were attacking with strong forces "continuously strengthened by bringing up new troops."]

Patrols Range Near City.

The American 1st, the Canadian 1st, and the British 2d armies were herding the remnants of the enemy's 7th army before them west of the Seine, where elements were crossing.

The gate to Paris seemed open, with patriots fighting the Germans inside the capital and mobile American patrols ranging virtually unopposed around Versailles, 10 miles from the city's heart.

Allied reconnaissance pilots watched Germans flee Paris in such a great exodus that they were bumper to bumper in a road jam east of Paris. Rain and clouds that again plagued allied air forces protected these highway targets from a storm of bombs and shells.

In Position to Wheel About.

Lt. Gen. George S. Patton's tank columns crossed the Seine in the area of Fontainebleau, 35 miles southeast of Paris, and were in position to wheel about the capital and strike for the old World war battlefields against resistance which was reported weak.

[Fontainbleau is 55 miles southeast of Belleau Wood, where Americans halted the Germans in the second battle of the Marne in June, 1918, and less than 30 miles from the area of the first battle of the Marne where the French and British checked the German drive in September, 1914—a drive which had carried to within 17 miles of Paris.]

Heavy fighting raged on the firm bridgeheads which Patton planted on the east bank of the Seine at Mantes, 25 miles northwest of Paris.

The enemy fought back fiercely, too, before Vernon, 15 miles northwest of Mantes, were Patton's tanks cruising along the Seine's west bank were running into the Germans falling back from the disasters in Normandy.

[Another dispatch said Patton's army was swinging northwestward along the west bank of the Seine toward the river mouth and had plunged forward 10 miles from Vernon to reach Gallion, 45 miles from the sea. Stiff resistance was encountered at Gallion, the dispatch said. Across the Seine at Mantes the Americans were reported to be pushing toward Pontoise, on the Oise river 15 miles to the east, and threatening to envelop Paris from the north.]

Little Resistance to South.

In the area of Versailles, west of Paris, and along a new allied front of 20 miles southeast of the capital, the resistance was negligible.

Vanguards in the vicinity of Versailles, where the treaty that ended the first World war was written in the Hall of Mirrors, met travelers from Paris, some on bicycles, who said that once more the tricolor flew over parts of the capital along

TRIBUNE WRITER WATCHES FIGHT AT BRIDGEHEAD

BY ROBERT CROMIE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WITH THE AMERICAN 3D ARMY BEYOND THE SEINE, France, Aug. 21.—American troops this afternoon were widening their bridgehead across the Seine river less than 30 miles from the Paris city limits. For the first time since the crossing was made 36 hours ago our infantry, which includes many Chicagoans, was meeting stiff German resistance.

The Yanks began swarming across the river under cover of darkness Saturday night, and continued their unopposed crossing all Sunday morning. By midafternoon they had taken two ridges.

Small assault boats ferried many of the troops across, while the engineers worked at throwing a bridge across. By late Sunday afternoon the pontoon bridge was accommodating vehicles. Steel rails were laid across three assault boats equipped with outboard motors.

Ferry Artillery Across.

We walked thru Mantes-Gassicourt with the infantry yesterday, made a brief trip across the river in a small boat, and followed the troops inland. From a high ridge there was a perfect view of the Seine valley for miles. While the infantry was occupying the ridge we returned and found our forces ferrying heavy trucks and small artillery pieces over the bridges.

Four infantrymen fired on and wounded a German motorcycle rider across the river, had a Frenchman row them across in a small boat, and returned with the wounded man and his motorcycle.

This afternoon the Nazis, identified as an infantry unit fighting its first battle, tried desperately to enter the town of Limay despite artillery fire. Others were being blasted from a house by direct fire.

Nazis Run Across Field.

We visited an artillery observation post where we watched one of our advanced patrols nonchalantly returning along the roadside. Then some one spotted movement farther back where no Americans were. So artillery fire was called for.

We could see bursts mushrooming up against the wooded background, then suddenly several Germans began running across a field toward the false security of another small woods. They seemingly were badly rattled, perhaps shell-shocked. So 1st Lt. David V. Hall, Ridgewood, N. J., called for a final salute from his 105s and then began looking for new targets.

Men who had watched them earlier in the day said the Germans at first reacted admirably under our shellfire, dropping when it burst near, then rising and moving forward again. But when the artillery continued their discipline seemed to waver until by the time we reached the observation post it definitely was not good.

Five Guns Silent.

We had other visual proof of the excellence of our artillery and mortar fire today. On a high ridge commanding the Seine we saw five German 88s, their barrels trained toward the river. But as nearly as we could tell none of them had been fired recently. One—near which there were several small shell or mortar holes, attesting to the accuracy of our fire—still had its muzzle cover on.

The infantry colonel said he thought the dead German lieutenant beside this gun probably was the battery commander, and that when he was killed the men of his command were panicked. The guns had plenty of ammunition near-by, but it was almost entirely anti-aircraft.

We talked with Lt. Col. James P. Davis, formerly of Batavia, Ill., now of Winslow, Wash., who is the executive officer of one infantry outfit. He said their dead in the entire crossing operation numbered five, while they had killed dozens of Germans and taken 50 prisoners.

7th Army Advances Third of Distance to Lyon.

ROME, Italy, Aug. 21 (AP).—French troops have fought into Toulon, great French naval base on the Mediterranean, and other allied forces are sweeping down a broad highway within nine miles of Marseille, France's second city, allied headquarters announced tonight.

[Reports received in London early today said allied spearheads were about six miles east of Marseille.]

Dispatches from the front said the French troops crashed into Toulon's northern and western sections at dusk yesterday and were engaged in mopping up pockets of German resistance withip the naval stronghold, where the French fleet was scuttled in 1942.

An American infantry column, dashing north from Toulon, has captured the city of Valensole, 50 miles inland and approximately a third of the way to Lyon, and sent scouting columns fanning out into the Asse river valley, the allied announcement said.

American troops and French patriot forces who surrounded a German garrison in Pertuis, 41 miles north of Marseille, captured that town.

Air Strips in Operation.

R. A. F. Spitfire fighter planes are operating from landing strips in southern France, it was announced.

The total of Nazi prisoners taken in the invasion swelled to more than 14,000.

The momentum of the French drive on Toulon carried Maj. Gen. Jean de Lattre de Tassigny's troops west of the naval base. They captured the towns of Le Beausset and Cuges-les-Pins on highway No. 8, main road to Marseille, and only four miles from the secondary coastal highway, which is the last escape route for the German garrison of Toulon.

The French entered Toulon thru Les Quatre Chemins des Routes and Valbourdin sections after establishing a steel ring around the eastern, northern and northwestern outskirts.

[Radio France at Algiers said today that Toulon had been liberated by the allied armies. There was no immediate confirmation from allied headquarters in Rome.]

Other allied troops were reported approaching Aubagne, nine miles east of Marseille, at nightfall yesterday.

Fortified Hotel Captured.

French forces also made progress along the coast east of Toulon, where the Nazis had been offering their stiffest resistance. Naval forces joined ground troops in capturing Mont Redon and the Hotel de Golf, about a mile from Hyeres, which the enemy had made into a strongpoint.

Preceding their smash into Toulon the French gained dominance of the 2,000-foot Mont Faron just north of the city.

American armored and infantry columns, leaving the French to deal with Toulon, spread out in a many-pronged drive thru the Durance valley north of Marseille and headed for the great Rhone valley against crumbling enemy resistance. One Yank unit was in the outskirts of Aix-en-Provence, road junction 15 miles north of Marseille.

Shore Batteries Pounded.

American and French battleships stood off the coast and slammed hundreds of big shells into German shore batteries between the two big ports, capture of which would give the allies two badly needed landing points for essential material and supplies.

The strength of the German force holding Toulon was not known, but the fierce quality of the resistance being put up by the enemy indicated the naval base was heavily garrisoned.

As Maj. Gen. Alexander M. Patch's Americans drove thru the Durance valley they by-passed strong pockets of enemy resistance and left them to be mopped up later. Elements that swept past Pertuis were no more than 35 miles from the Rhone valley, main pathway to Lyon and a possible eventual juncture with allied forces in northern France.

The swiftness with which the allies had fanned out north of Toulon and Marseille had robbed the Germans of most of the important roads.

The continued speed of the allied operation was attributed in part to the almost complete absence of the Nazi air force, which was reported to have fewer than 70 bombers in southern France.

While allied transport was able to speed along the highways with almost no interference, anything that moved by daylight in enemy territory came under a terrific blasting by allied warplanes, which were flying an average of 1,000 sorties every 24 hours. Five locomotives, 36 motor vehicles, 20 rail cars, and two barges were included in yesterday's toll.

A-20 Bostons started large fires at Remoulins, four miles northwest of Marseille, and in the area south of Avignon.

Among the newest captives were Maj. Gen. Hans Schubert and his staff of six officers and 30 men. Until last June, Schubert was chief administrative officer for southwest France with headquarters at Toulouse and established a reputation for "extreme cruelty," allied headquarters said.

A delayed dispatch from Sid Feder, Associated Press correspondent, said he had returned from a 120 mile trip thru territory supposedly held by the Germans west of the Durance river and north of Marseille without encountering enemy troops. The Durance river, he said, was mostly dried up and was no military obstacle.

Harbor Fort Blasted Apart.

It was disclosed that an American cruiser, the French cruiser Gloire, and the French battleship Lorraine had attacked strongpoints in Toulon harbor.

The 15 inch guns of the British battleship Ramilies finally reduced the island fort of Port Cros after it had been pounded from sea and air.

For 55 hours a handful of German infantrymen held out behind ancient walls which in some parts were 15 foot thick stone covered by 20 feet of dirt.

On Aug. 16 a heavy cruiser off shore poured nearly 100 rounds into the fort. Other cruisers shelled it and dive bombers smashed at it.

Suddenly air observers saw a German infantryman climb to a parapet and wave a white flag. The 26 defenders then surrendered.

GERMAN WAR REPORT.

Germany's war bulletin as broadcast yesterday said:

"In the mountain territory north of Toulon, the enemy with strong forces is attacking toward the west and northwest. Heavy fighting is in progress. German coastal batteries of the naval command set aflame one enemy battleship and one cruiser off Toulon. One enemy destroyer and two torpedo boats were damaged."

KIDNAPED HERE, MADE TO DRIVE TO FREMONT, NEB.

John K. Crippen.

John K. Crippen, 39, of 7046 N. Ozark av., reported to Irving Park police last night that he was kidnaped in his own car Friday afternoon on route 45, 10 miles north of Chicago Heights, by four men and a girl and compelled to drive to Fremont, Neb.

En route, he said, they threatened him with knives and a blackjack and compelled him to buy gasoline without coupons at filling stations. In Fremont Saturday afternoon, he said, he slipped a note to a filling station attendant, who summoned Sheriff John J. Gallagher of Dodge county.

Gallagher and a deputy, Sam Blair, arrested Edmond Nerose, 16; Thomas Murphy, 17; Robert Campbell, 17; Anthony James Medino, 17, and Pauline Barrett, 16, all of whom gave their addresses as Chicago.

Yesterday they were turned over to the United States marshal at Omaha on charges of kidnaping and transporting a stolen car across state lines. Crippen, associated with his father, Stuart S., in a chemical manufacturing company at 6719 Bryn Mawr av., drove back to Chicago.

CORRESPONDENT FOR NBC KILLED IN TANK CRASH

AMERICAN 3D ARMY HDQ., Aug. 19 [Delayed]—(AP).—Tom Treanor, veteran war correspondent, died in a front line hospital today of injuries suffered 10 hours earlier when a Sherman tank ran over his jeep at a crossroads.

Tom Treanor.

Treanor, 35 year old National Broadcasting company and Los Angeles Times reporter, who covered the war from Chungking to London, suffered severe scalp cuts, a crushed foot and internal injuries.

As Treanor lay in the road after the accident, he called out to a photographer: "Did you get a picture of me under that tank? This is a hell of a thing to happen to me just before we get to Paris." He had formerly worked on Milwaukee newspapers.

9TH AIR FORCE RECALLS FOUR WAR REPORTERS

[By Wireless to the New York Times and The Chicago Tribune.]

NINTH AIR FORCE HDQ. IN FRANCE, Aug. 21.—Four American war correspondents accredited to the United States army and assigned to the 9th air force in France, were summarily recalled to London yesterday by the 9th air force. There was no reason for recall stated in the message signed by Col. Robert Parham, public relations officer of the 9th air force, but two of the correspondents concerned said they were convinced that the action resulted because the 9th air force was dissatisfied with the quantity of copy they have been turning out regarding its operations.

The correspondents recalled were Lee McCardell of the Baltimore Sun papers, Gordon Gammack of the Des Moines [Iowa] Register Tribune, Stanley Frank of the New York Post, and John Groth, an artist, of Parade magazine.

McCardell is at the front and has not received his recall order, but Frank and Gammack have already notified their managing editors in the United States, saying that they have violated no army regulations and consider the action unjustified.

NAZI AIR FIELDS IN YUGOSLAVIA, HUNGARY RAIDED

LONDON, Aug. 21 (AP).—Italian based air forces took up the day and night offensive against Germany's European fortress with round the clock blows at the Balkans today. American Liberators hammered German air fields in Hungary and Yugoslavia and the Berlin radio said raiders were over Hungary again tonight.

A Nazi air field at Hajdu Boszormeny, Hungary, was left littered with wrecks of enemy planes after an attack by 15th air force Liberators. Seven strafing swoops by escorted Liberators also blasted an airdrome in central Serbia.

Italian based American Thunderbolts dealt a surprise attack in several waves today on rail yards at Alessandria northern Italy. Marauders and Mitchells also pounded communications in the Po valley.

NAZI ADMIRAL IN SO. FRANCE TAKES OWN LIFE

ST. EUTROPE, France, Aug. 21 (AP).—Adm. Siegfried Wieder, 55, commander of German marine forces in southern France, shot himself to death in this village Aug. 11, four days before the allied invasion.

The flag atop the villa housing Wieder's headquarters was dropped to half staff and all servants were prevented from entering the villa for a day until it was "made known" the admiral had succumbed from a heart attack.

French resistance leaders said they heard the Germans had planned to kill Wieder because it was believed he was implicated in anti-Hitler plotting.

TRIBUNE WRITER MEETS CHICAGO YANKS ON SEINE

Many Midwesterners Also Cross River.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Aug. 21. — Henry Barnard, a British knight, a divorce court judge and at present a home guard officer, today appeared with 27 other persons, including several theatrical stars, before a Littlehampton, Sussex, magistrate on charges of bathing at a prohibited beach. Barnard said that as a home guard officer he had thought he could take some of his men to the beach without hindrance. The magistrate fined all the defendants $1 each.

'BLACK DEVILS' OF THE NIGHT TAG NAZIS THEY KILL

Special Allied Outfit Does Everything.

BY CLINTON B. CONGER.

WITH THE 1ST SPECIAL SERVICE FORCE IN SOUTHERN FRANCE, Aug. 21 (AP).—Censorship release of the presence in southern France of the joint American-Canadian 1st special service force today partly lifted the curtain on one of the most hush-hush organizations of the allies.

Maj. Gen. Frederick.

It is a spearhead of specialists trained in snow, amphibious, mountain, and air borne warfare and infantry infighting. It has been a terror to German troops in Italy.

A diary found on the body of a German lieutenant gave a Nazi view of the outfit. "The black devils are all around us every time we come into the line, and we never hear them come."

Michigan Man in 2d Post.

Planned in a conversation between Gen. George C. Marshall, United States army chief of staff, and Prime Minister Churchill on April 9, 1942, the 1st special service force was activated at Helena, Mont., on July 20 of that year. Command was given to 37 year old Maj. Gen. Robert Frederick of San Francisco, now an air borne task force commander, then a lieutenant colonel. Lt. Col. Robert Burhans of Lansing, Mich., son of a Michigan State college professor, who had had winter warfare training, became second in command.

The 1st special service force is employed on a world-wide basis, being attached to various armies at the discretion of the combined chiefs of staff.

At 1:30 a. m. Aug. 15, 1943, the specialists were first into Kiska in the Aleutians. A year later to the minute they struck in southern France. Between those times they had surged from mountain top to mountain top on the winter road to Cassino, Italy, and appeared at the Anzio beachhead. There they terrorized the Germans for 99 nights of blackfaced raiding before spearheading the breakout and arriving first in Rome.

Kill and Leave Their Mark.

The force was developed concurrently with a winter weapon now known as the weasel, a tracked carrier for snow. Frederick and Burhans called on army camps in the United States for volunteers, and also appealed for volunteers in Canada. Cowpunchers, miners, trappers, and lumberjacks responded.

In the force now are probably less than half of the Kiska veterans. One combat unit has about one-fifth of its original personnel.

Last March stories began trickling out about the "combined Canadian-American combat group." But the force already had made itself feared by the Germans.

The soldiers had paper stickers made up duplicating their shoulder insignia and nightly they pasted them on Germans they killed, on guns they destroyed and on German command post doors.

Only 23 ever have been captured alive, according to documents captured from the German 14th army in Italy.

When the allies reached highway No. 7 below Rome, Lt. Gen. Mark W. Clark told the force to go to it. Frederick, with a bandage around a neck wound, led his men in and seized bridges across the Tiber. After that he left for his present post.

Fight in Chekiang

CHUNGKING, China, Aug. 21 (AP).—A new outbreak of fighting in Chekiang, the coastal province below Shanghai, was announced today. The Chinese high command said Japanese had moved out of Wuyi, 95 miles south of Hangchow, in a southeastward direction.

The Japanese possibly were started on a new mopping up expedition.

Chinese 25 miles northwest of Hengyang in Hunan province faced a new flanking threat from an enemy which drove from Siangsiang, 60 miles north of Hengyang. Fighting still was proceeding around Ichang on the Yangtze, where the Chinese have begun diversionary operations.

NEW 4 ENGINE BOMBER IN WAR, BERLIN CLAIMS

New York, Aug. 21 (AP).—A dispatch wirelessed from Berlin for use in the army newspaper Front and Heimat said today that a German four engine bomber, the HE-177, known as the Griffin, had seen action in attacks on British ports.

The aircraft has four engines, the dispatch said, altho it has the appearance of a two motored plane, so that even "many an old hand of the luftwaffe has been taken in." The four engines are "combined in two groups of two," according to the dispatch. "That means that two engines drive one air screw."

The bomber was described as having a 104 foot wing spread, 2,400 horsepower and double wheels.

YOU DON'T GUESS AT ROBOT'S PATH, IT CAN BE FATAL

BY LARRY RUE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Aug. 21.—Several robot bomb spotters in a South England town became casualties today when a bomb which they had expected to pass overhead suddenly fell in a street. The bomb killed several children at play and trapped a number of persons in the wreckage of their homes.

Today's daylight attack on London and southern England by the flying bombs was one of the heaviest. The enemy profited from the "soupy" weather which hid the bombs from grounded allied bombers.

Couple Buried Alive.

Upon hearing cries in the debris of a house, rescue workers set to work to remove blocks of concrete under which a couple, both over 80 years, was trapped. Both died before they could be reached.

The freakish behavior of the flying bomb blasts was again illustrated when a man, his wife, and daughter, 7, were killed tho the table at which they sat was not touched. A milk cart in a roadway was thrown atop the rubble of their house by the blast but most of the milk bottles were found intact.

Mother and Child Escape.

As a flying bomb hurtled downward, a mother snatched her baby from his buggy and dived into a shelter. Mother and child were unhurt but the pram was smashed. Windows were blown out of a bus by the same bomb but the passengers suffered only minor cuts.

Seven hundred persons in Paignton, Devonshire, have offered to turn over their raid shelters to persons in London and southern England towns.

$500 IN CAMERA EQUIPMENT STOLEN.

Wayne Carmichael, 25, of 826 S. Wabash av., reported to police yesterday that thieves broke into his automobile parked near the Y. M. C. A. hotel, and stole a camera, light meter, flash gun, and filters with a total value of $500.

POLISH FORCES DRIVE SEVEN MILES IN ITALY AND CAPTURE TOWN

ROME, Aug. 21 (AP).—Polish forces on the Adriatic have advanced seven miles to within 12 miles of the Italian port of Pesaro, where eastern outposts of the Germans' transpeninsular Gothic line is reputed to begin. The Germans pulled their defenses behind the Matauro river, Gen. Alexander's headquarters announced. In the advance the Poles captured Cerasa.

West of Florence, the Germans shelled 8th army positions south of the Arno river. Conditions within Florense were reported "somewhat quieter."

[The German war bulletin asserted that "the hills around Cerasa, which were lost temporarily, were retaken in a counter-attack."]

NAZI ADMIRAL IN SO. FRANCE TAKES OWN LIFE

ST. EUTROPE, France, Aug. 21 (AP).—Adm. Siegfried Wieder, 55, commander of German marine forces in southern France, shot himself to death in this village Aug. 11, four days before the allied invasion.

The flag atop the villa housing Wieder's headquarters was dropped to half staff and all servants were prevented from entering the villa for a day until it was "made known" the admiral had succumbed from a heart attack.

French resistance leaders said they heard the Germans had planned to kill Wieder because it was believed he was implicated in anti-Hitler plotting.

PARISIANS RISE AGAINST NAZIS; BATTLES RAGING

De Gaulle Names Koenig City's Governor.

LONDON, Aug. 21 (AP).—French Forces of the Interior [F. F. I.] now are operating inside Paris, the Algiers radio announced today. The German news agency DNB reported "violent battles" within the city.

A DNB broadcast said the fighting in Paris was led by "French civilians and terrorists sent in by the allies," but the allied sponsored Algiers radio announced "French forces of the interior have started operations in inside Paris. Paris is liberating itself."

Axis reports said American tank columns were by-passing the capital which suggested the allies might leave Paris' actual liberation to the French.

Koenig Governor of Paris.

The German radio quoted a foreign office spokesman as saying "we spared Paris in 1940 and want to spare it now."

Referring to activity of the maquis in Paris, the spokesman said: "Part of the responsibility for the fate of their city lies in the hands of the Parisians themselves. If they want martial law to be imposed, they can have it. That is for themselves to decide."

Gen. Joseph Pierre Koenig, leader of the F. F. I. who has been appointed military governor of Paris by Gen. Charles de Gaulle, said in taking over his command "the hour of liberation is near" and appealed to the population to "show the greatest qualities of self-imposed discipline so that order may be maintained in the capital."

An announcement of Gen. Koenig said that the whole of Haute Savoie near the Swiss border had been liberated and that Lyon was almost completely under control of the F. F. I.

"All roads leading to Italy are guarded by the F. F. I. and in the south all roads and railways used by the enemy are now unusable," the bulletin stated. It said there had been wholesale surrenders of Vichy militia forces and that Vichy policemen in dozens of towns were going over the maquis [patriots.]

Nazis Surrender Fort.

FORT DEL'ECLUSE, France, Aug. 21 (AP).—Four hundred Germans were forced to surrender this fort 14 miles from Geneva, Switzerland, because their water supply had been cut off during a five day siege by the Maquis.

Pierre Laval was said to have left Belfort, near the Swiss-German border. He was reported near the frontier at Morvillars. Marshal Petain definitely has left Vichy. One report was that he was in a chateau outside Vichy surrounded by a thousand volunteers pledged to defend him until the allies arrive.

[The Vichy government is transferring its seat to another city, the German-controled Vichy radio said today, but it did not disclose the identity of the new site.]

Neenah Flyer on Mission.

A U. S. BOMBER BASE IN BRITAIN, July 21 [Delayed by censor.] — (AP). — Dodging mountain peaks and skimming tree tops, 8th air force Flying Fortresses recently dropped arms and ammunition to hands of the French Maquis, who slowed to a walk the advance of two tank divisions toward Normandy.

Guided by prearranged signals to a secret spot on a mountain side in southern France, the bombers dropped enough equipment for thousands of partisans, who put the munitions to quick use by engaging the two panzer divisions in pitched battles.

Lt. Charles A. Ludwig Jr., Neenah, Wis., a co-pilot, said his group let down to 100 feet for its bomb run. "I could see hundreds of men and women running out of a graveyard and forest to retrieve the supplies," he said. "A padre and a couple of women were standing near a church. Girls waved their aprons at us. It sure was a beautiful sight. It made me cry."

BLACKOUT HELD CAUSE OF DEATH IN 8 MILE LEAP

Dayton, O., Aug. 21 (AP).—The eight mile death plunge Saturday of Lt. Col. Melbourne W. Boynton apparently was caused by a blackout, the materiel command of the army air forces at Wright field said today.

Boynton, 39, chief of the medical safety division of the office of flying safety, did not pull the ripcord on either of two parachutes, the command reported after an examination. He plunged thru the bomb bay of a Flying Fortress at 42,000 feet in an experimental jump and struck 2 minutes 35 seconds later in a corn field.

The materiel command said it was 58 degrees below zero at the height from which Boynton leaped and he apparently blacked out and did not recover consciousness in time to open a chute. Boynton formerly was an obstretrician in Chicago.

One Army Flyer Is Dead, 3 Lost in Making Movie

Luke Field, Ariz., Aug. 21 (AP).—Loss of four airmen in the crash of a B-25 and an AT-6 trainer during an aerial sequence in the filming of the movie, "God Is My Co-Pilot," was announced today by Lt. Col. G. M. Bates, commanding officer. Second Lt. Orlando L. Luhr, Phoenix, Ariz., was found dead in the wreckage of the trainer. A search is under way for the bomber which carried three men; Bates reported.

BEGINS BATTLE TO END U. S. GRAB OF JACKSON HOLE

Wyoming Says F.D.R. Exceeded Power.

Sheridan, Wyo., Aug. 21 [Special].—Wyoming's battle to nullify President Roosevelt's 1943 proclamation creating the 221,600 acre Jackson Hole national monument opened in federal court here today with a parade of state witnesses testifying that the area contains no objects "of a monumental nature."

Corp. John J. McIntyre, a deputy state attorney general before entering the army early this year, who is on furlough to conduct the case for Wyoming, said the President acted in excess of authority and that the real purpose of the proclamation was to extend the Grand Teton national park.

Recalls Rockefeller Threat.

This park, the soldier-attorney asserted, contains the Teton mountains, the only monumental objects in the vicinity. He said the monument was created as an enlargement of the park because John D. Rockefeller had threatened otherwise to withdraw a gift of 30,000 acres to the national park service.

The monument area, which is adjacent to the park, contains the Rockefeller property, as well as 12,000 acres of private land and 1,400 acres of state land. The remainder is made up of public domain.

Ralph S. Boyd, department of justice attorney from Washington, D. C., said the government will show that the monument area is of interest to biologists, geologists, and other scientists.

Seek Restraint Order.

The Wyoming suit seeks an interpretation of the antiquities act of 1906, upon which the Presidential proclamation was based, and an order restraining the national park service from assuming administration of the area.

State officials have opposed the monument as a federal land grab and ranchers have contended administration of the land by the park service would create a recreational area out of much needed stock feeding lands.

MILLION YANKS MAY END SERVICE WHEN NAZIS FALL

Denver, Colo., Aug. 21 (AP).—Maj. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, national director of selective service, today forecast the release of between one million and two million men from the fighting services after Germany falls.

He indorsed in a statement the idea of "gradual demobilization" when all hostilities cease with Japan's defeat, but admitted it is "unpopular—because when the war is over, people want their boys to come home."

Discharge of a portion of America's fighting men when the Nazis collapse will not be accomplished "in one day," he cautioned, adding: "If we let out 1,000 an hour, it will still take 10 months to get rid of 2 million to 2½ million men."

Hershey disclosed the draft is taking between 70,000 and 100,000 men a month and indicated it will continue to operate at this rate after Germany signs an armistice.

FREED RUSSIAN WOMEN ASK TO FIGHT FOR ALLIES

ST. MARS LE PREIERE, France, Aug. 19 [Delayed]—(AP).—Russian women political prisoners freed from a German camp where they were compelled to work 10 to 15 hours a day at heavy labor repairing bomb damaged railroads, volunteered immediately to go into the allied front lines as soldiers to fight the Nazis.

Ranging from 15 to 74 years old—and including 11 who bore children since their arrival four months ago—220 women were liberated from their camp near this small village northeast of Le Mans by the rapid advance of the American army.

OVERSEA YANKS CAN BE MAILED GIFTS OF CANDY

Postmaster Ernest J. Kruetgen said yesterday that properly wrapped parcels weighing up to five pounds, containing candy or foodstuffs, may be sent to men and women in the fighting forces overseas upon their written requests. He emphasized, however, that the eight ounce packages which the postoffice now permits to be mailed without requests cannot contain either candy or foodstuffs.

AMERICANS LEAP THE SEINE AGAIN IN PARIS AREA

with allied flags for the first time since the Germans marched in four years ago to mark the downfall of France.

[DNB, the German news agency, said American reconnaissance forces were in the Paris suburbs.]

Fight Way Toward Seine.

Elements of 18 divisions of the broken German 7th army, fighting stubborn rearguard actions, were heading east from the Argentan disaster toward the Seine and were crossing the broad river under cover of bad weather, which stayed allied air blows.

The Germans were getting across the Seine by barge, by pontoon, by ferry, and by swimming and heading north toward Dieppe and the rocket sites of Pas-de-Calais despite night long bombing of the crossings.

Most of the crossings apparently were being made along the Seine from Elbeuf, from whence the Seine twists and turns northwest to the Atlantic, 35 airline miles away.

The British on the coast fought deeper into the town of Cabourg, 25 miles from the mouth of the Seine and 75 miles northwest of Vernon. There also was heavy fighting around Dozule, south of Cabourg.

Smash Across Touques River.

British units of the Canadian army smashed across the Touques river, only two miles south of the enemy roadhead of Lisieux and 18 miles in from the sea, threatening to engulf all German positions along the Normandy coast from Cabourg to the Seine with one more pincer. At the point of crossing below Lisieux the British were 33 miles from the Seine.

The British navy swept back to the support of land operations, pouring salvos into Houlgate and Benerville and silencing three batteries which had been pounding the Canadians' northern flank.

FAIL TO BREAK TRAP

By LARRY RUE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SUPREME HDQ., ALLIED EXPEDITIONARY FORCE, Aug. 22 [Tuesday].—The allies today were closing in on all sides of the Germans still trapped in the Normandy pocket. Enemy soldiers were being killed in great numbers.

On Sunday the Germans made an effort to break the Argentan pocket between Trun and Chambois, with the German forces outside the pocket attempting to drive in from the end. There was heavy fighting with both sides losing tanks on a large scale.

In the first breakout attempt, the Germans threw 30 tanks into the battle along a mile wide front. This thrust was broken up by Canadian artillery and rocket firing Typhoons. Sunday night the Germans made a more serious attempt, employing about 70 tanks, and striking in concert from both inside and outside the pocket.

Some Forces Slip Thru.

In the tumult of the battle in the night, some of the pocketed forces slipped thru, but at great cost, a British staff officer said. When the sun came up 33 knocked out enemy tanks were scattered over the battlefield.

Canadian, British, and American forces have wiped out the last resistance in Argentan and captured Occagnes, Sentilly, Bailleul, and Goulet, all about three miles north of Argentan. Le Bourg-St. Leonard, at the southeast tip of a German hideout in the forest of Gouffern, was captured. British infantry and tanks in a five mile advance drove to within two miles of Gace, which is 14 miles east of Argentan.

The Canadians from the north and the Americans from the south have cleared the Falaise-Argentan road.

Prisoners More than 25,000.

A front line dispatch last night said that at a conservative estimate a total of 25,000 prisoners were taken in the pocket, 10,000 being captured yesterday. Since the fall of Falaise, the Canadians have taken 4,000 to 5,000. It was stated that many more Germans were killed than taken prisoner.

Among those captured yesterday were Lt. Gen. Badinsky, commander of the 276th division; Gen. Elfeldt, commander of the 84th corps, and Lt. Gen. Menni, commander of the 84th division.

Capt. Ludwig Sertorius, German military commentator asserted that the allied objective is to "herd the German 7th army together at the mouth of the Seine. It is there that the enemy means to encircle it by a far-flung enveloping move." He said the Germans' screening flanks had been taken back to a line running from Laigle to Evreux.

A Berlin report stated that Gen. Patton was massing a powerful force in secret between Paris and Orleans to support the crossing of the Seine southeast of the city.

GERMAN WAR REPORT.

Monday's German war bulletin as broadcast by Berlin and recorded in New York by the Associated Press said:

"In Normandy, our divisions in the area north of Argentan after an embittered struggle have broken thru the enemy barrier toward the northeast and established contact with a counter-attacking German tank group.

"Strong enemy attacks against our defensive front in the Dives and La Vie river sectors were smashed. Between the Eure and Seine, the enemy is pressing forward toward the north. Enemy spearheads were smashed at Pacy-Vernon.

"In the area east and northeast of Chartres, the enemy maintains his pressure against the middle Siene without making further headway.

"Retaliation fire on London is continuing day and night."

1ST REVELATION: HOW MacARTHUR ESCAPED JAPS

Traveled by Sea and Air to Reach Australia.

[Details of how Gen. MacArthur made the dangerous journey from the Philippines to Australia are disclosed for the first time in this article, one of a series condensed from the forthcoming book, "MacArthur and the War Against Japan," by Frazier Hunt. Previous articles have told the story of the brilliant delay action fought on Bataan. On March 10, 1942, MacArthur received from Washington his second peremptory order to leave Corregidor and to assume command of the Southwest Pacific area in Australia.]

BY FRAZIER HUNT.

[Copyright: 1944: By Chas. Scribner's Sons.]

MacArthur had no means of knowing that two days before this [March 10], the last resistance of the Dutch had collapsed. There was little or nothing now between the victory crazed Japanese and the final allied bastion of Australia. Matters were precarious there, for the three regular Aussie divisions were fighting in the middle east, far away from home.

MacArthur still felt that the call [to Australia] was not one of defense but rather to head up an expedition and lead it back to Bataan. He sent for Wainwright and told him what had happened, and gave him his orders: "Hold out until I come for you." And Wainwright with tears in his eyes pledged his beloved chief.

It was now the Ides of March. MacArthur would leave on the dark of the moon. No submarines for him. He would go roaring out.

Arrangements for Departure.

He called his PT commander, Lt. Bulkeley. Could Buck have the four PT boats that remained fully fueled and ready to depart the following night? He could. Then the start would be made without delay. The four boats would proceed by stages to the coast of Mindanao, six or seven hundred miles to the southward from the Rock. At Del Monte field, Flying Fortresses from Port Darwin airdrome would pick up the party and fly them to Australia. That bomber route was still open. Always it could have been used to fly planes to him.

Each one of the party would take a single suitcase. Nothing else. Gen. MacArthur, his wife, and boy, and nurse, his chief of staff, Brig. Gen. Sutherland, Capt. Ray of the navy, Lt. Col. Sidney Huff, his aide, and Maj. Morhouse, flight surgeon, would go in the first PT boat. They would be Lt. Bulkeley's personal responsibility. Adm. Rockwell, the 12 remaining officers of the staff, and the confidential enlisted clerk, would be split up among the three other boats. The start would be made the following evening.

Only once or twice has MacArthur himself recited the story of the long and perilous trip from Corregidor to Darwin.

Farewell to Corregidor.

It was 7:15 when the general walked across his porch to where his wife was seated and told her it was time to go. Quietly they went down to the south dock where Bulkeley waited with his PT-41. Shelling had been intermittent all day in the dock area. They boarded the vessel—all but the general. He had stopped and turned to bid Corregidor his farewell.

The men on the dock stared at the lone motionless figure. In his war-worn clothes he loomed gaunt and forlorn. His eyes roved the desperate scene before him in all its naked bleakness. Almost every building, every shed, every tree had been burned and blasted. The great fires that had raged had left their black streaks from one end of the Rock to the other. Great crevasses were torn everywhere.

It was just dusk and the faint night breeze was beginning to ripple the waters. Then came the general's quiet voice—"Cast off, Buck."

At 8:30 the four boats rendezvoused at the opening to the mine field. They crept thru, led by a navy mine layer. At 9:15 they opened up the throttles and roared away.

Very shortly they began to pick up Japanese signal fires. All along the coast the enemy had established a system of signaling by fire that might have been old Indian signals. The warning signals could now clearly be seen, but the sound of the PT engines was like the sound of bombers, and the watcher mistook it.

Running Jap Blockade.

The PT boats ran in a diamond formation, and the orders were to attack anything that blocked the way. Each of the boats carried torpedoes and 50 caliber machine guns, and the general felt they could break thru any ordinary blockading line. If they were attacked from the air they were to hold together, put up a curtain of fire, and depend upon their high speed maneuverability.

Off to the left they soon made out Japanese blockading ships. Immediately they changed course to pass to the west and north. All night long similar alarms took place, but with great skill and good luck the Japanese craft were bypassed. In the diamond pattern Bulkeley's boat led off. Adm. Rockwell in the fourth boat closed up the rear.

The seas became increasingly heavy, and the little boats pounded and rolled. It was difficult to hold formation, and about 3:30 in the morning, the pattern was broken despite every effort to hold it. They had planned to rendezvous that morning at a deserted island. When they lost formation, the lead boat tried for several hours to collect the other boats, but was unsuccessful. When day broke it headed for another deserted island, three sailing hours north of the rendezvous. Here they hoped to find cover to hide during the day.

Catastrophe Is Averted.

In a distant cove they made out a small craft which was identified as one of their own ships. But those aboard failed to recognize the general's boat and prepared for conflict, dumping their spare gas drums and manning their guns. At the point of opening fire Gen. Akin fortunately identified MacArthur's PT boat and shouted "Hold fire!" His keen eyesight prevented a horrible catastrophe.

They remained in the cove until about 2:30 in the afternoon, anxiously scanning the skies for the enemy's searching planes. To be spotted would be to be lost. The general ordered the vessel to try to make the original rendezvous point, a wild and uninhabited island.

The seas were running high and dangerous. The second boat had dumped its spare drums when it had mistaken MacArthur's craft for an enemy ship and its gas was running low. They found Adm. Rockwell at the rendezvous, and took on the passengers from the boat that was out of running for lack of fuel. Around 6:30 they set out to cross the Mindanao sea for Cagayan. Rockwell's boat led and Buck's followed. The fourth boat arrived at the rendezvous about one hour after they left, and immediately followed them into the Mindanao sea alone.

Tribute Paid to Navy.

Before darkness closed in they ran into enemy destroyers, but these apparently failed to pick them up, for they slipped by them. They were getting all they could out of the old engines now. The Mindanao sea was choppy and they were taking heavy punishment. It was like being in a cement mixer, which buffeted them from one side to the other. The next day most of the passengers were black and blue from head to foot.

It had just turned daybreak when they arrived at Cagayan in north central Mindanao. The general turned to Buck and his officers and men of the two boats. "It was done in true naval style," he gratefully pronounced. "I take great honor in awarding the boats' crews the silver star for gallantry and fortitude in the face of heavy odds."

Gen. Sharp met them at the dock. He was MacArthur's commander in Mindanao and had a force of about 25,000 men. In the Visayas, Gen. Chenowyth had about 20,000 men. There were units of the Philippine army in those sectors which had been mobilized when the war broke. It had been MacArthur's plan to use these troops in guerrilla warfare, if the defense of Bataan failed.

Four bombers had been ordered from Australia to meet the party. Two failed to arrive and the third crashed in the bay. The fourth was so old and dilapidated that Gen. Sharp had started it back to Australia without passengers before MacArthur's arrival.

MacArthur Gets Bad News.

Three replacement planes were at once started from Australia and two of them finally arrived. In the meantime the Japanese had word that the MacArthur staff had reached Mindanao and they rapidly pushed forces north from Davao to seize the field. The planes arrived just before midnight, and took off shortly afterwards. They were flying over enemy held country patroled by enemy planes, but under cover of the night they managed to evade all contacts. At 9 that morning they arrived at Batchelor field, 40 miles south of Port Darwin. "It was close," said the general on landing, "but that's the way it is in war."

Before leaving the field the general asked an American officer how many United States troops had been collected here in Australia for the Philippine rescue force.

The officer seemed bewildered and replied, "So far as I know, there are very few troops here."

MacArthur was incredulous. He turned to Dick Sutherland, his chief of staff, and in an aside remarked, "Surely he is wrong." It seemed impossible that the officer didn't know about the expeditionary force he would lead back to Bataan.

18 DAYS AFTER BREAK, GERMANS STILL IN TURKEY

BY SAM BREWER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ISTANBUL, Turkey, Aug. 20 [Delayed].—Eighteen days after the formal breach in relations between Turkey and Germany the work of repatriating Germans is still in chaos. The German consulate still functions as a consulate principally to dragoon anti-Nazi refugees into returning to Germany.

German officials, including Gestapoman Bruno Wolfe, are still here and functioning as vice consuls. More than one anti-Nazi German has been put aboard trains to Bulgaria by main force.

When the allies demanded that the Turks turn over any axis war criminals who might seek asylum here, the Turks rejected the demand on the ground it was inhumane and inconsistent with international law.

The British ambassador has refused to intercede to save these anti-Nazi Germans except in a few special cases.

GERMANS BREAK RUSSIANS' TRAP ON BALTIC FRONT

Reds Make New Gain; 'Romania Battle On.'

LONDON, Aug. 22 [Tuesday] (AP).—Russian troops yesterday hurled the Germans back onto the Bug river northeast of Warsaw in a nine mile plunge thru shattered axis defenses guarding the Polish capital. Other soviet forces lost ground near the gulf of Riga and the Germans reestablished contact with two armies, possibly 200,000 men, that the Reds had trapped in Estonia and Latvia.

Berlin said that the Romanian front had flared into action, with the Russians hurling 150,000 men against their lines near Iasi and Tighina. The Russians gained one mile in these attacks, aimed at "crushing the whole of our Dnestr river positions," said a Berlin commentator.

Reds Almost at Bug.

Marshal Konstantin K. Rokossovsky's 1st White Russian army, a Moscow bulletin said, shattered a 30 miles axis defense line based on the Bialystok-Warsaw railway and plunged on to within two miles of the Bug river, capturing 50 localities. The Russian breakthru was between Tluszcz, 16 miles northeast of Warsaw, and Prostyn, 46 miles northeast of the capital.

The Russians admitted the reverse in Latvia and said they had abandoned Tukums, 33 miles west of Riga, after heavy German counterattacks.

30 Estonian Towns Fall.

Gen. Ivan Maslennikov's 3d Baltic army captured 30 localities in Estonia, including one less than four miles from the Tallinn-Riga railway.

Gen. Ivan Konev, widening his strategic Vistula springboard north of Sandomierz, 110 miles below Warsaw, reported that German losses in the pocket where three enemy divisions were annihilated over the week-end amounted to 12,000 dead and 1,550 prisoners.

Berlin insister the Russians have established two other bridgeheads west of the Vistula, one at Warka, 30 miles south of Warsaw, and the other at Kazimierz, 40 miles still farther south.

A Moscow naval bulletin said that a Red fleet slipped into the Narva bay and sank four German destroyers.

NAZI WAR BULLETIN.

Berlin's broadcast war report said yesterday:

"At the eastern front, the soviets have extended their attacks to the southern sector. The enemy launched an attack south of Tiraspol and northwest of Iasi. Embittered fighting is going on.

"In the Carpathian forefields southwest of Mielec and in the Vistula bridgeheads west of Baranow, west of Lublin and southeast of Warka, soviet attacks were repulsed or checked.

"Northeast of Warsaw, soviet attempts to break thru toward the Bug river were checked deep in our positions.

"Hard defensive fighting is continued south of Vilkaviskis.

"In Latvia, German tank formations pushing forward beyond Tukums have reestablished temporarily lost contact with German army units fighting in the Baltic region. Land fighting was supported by a German naval formation.

"All soviet attempts to widen their salients west of Modan and west of Lake Pskov were frustrated."

warned of an imminent break in relations with Japan 1½ hours before Pearl Harbor was struck.

How long before this warning was sent, he asked, did the President, and the state and war departments know of Japan's intention to attack? If the President "knew" three or four days earlier, he continued, why were not Kimmel and Short warned at once?

Branded Cloak for Negligence.

Church declared the Roberts report was concocted to cloak negligence in Washington.

The Kimmel-Truman dispute aroused other congressmen to comment. Sen. Johnson [D., Colo.] of the senate military committee said the dispute served to prove his contention that the Kimmel-Short court-martial should have been held "a year ago" so that the public could know the facts.

Sen. Chandler [D., Ky.], also of the military committee, pointed out that the navy has filed no formal charge against Kimmel and said the admiral and Short had borne the "onus" of Pearl Harbor "pretty much in silence."

"I wish the Vice Presidential nominee would refrain from attacking Adm. Kimmel in advance of the record," he said.

Article Accurate, Says Truman.

Kansas City, Mo., Aug. 21 (AP).—Sen. Truman issued a statement today asserting every statement he made in a recent magazine article was correct, and that he was certain the court-martial of officers in command at Pearl Harbor at the time of the attack would bear out every statement he made.

NAZIS WILL FIGHT SINGLY TO END, BENES PREDICTS

LONDON, Aug. 21 (AP).—Dr. Eduard Benes predicted tonight that Hitler probably never would surrender but that the German army would "disintegrate into small units which will fight singly to the end."

The Czechoslovak president has forecast German trends accurately before.

Aussies Will Free Troops Soon to War Industry

CANBERRA, Australia, Aug. 21, [Reuter].—Releases from the army and air force, but not the navy, to relieve man power strains on key war time industry are to begin soon. Prime Minister John Curtin, said: "The matter is settled between myself and the services. They know what the strength is to be released and they are making their disposals accordingly. The air force reduction will be achieved without reducing its striking force."

GERMANS ENTER PATRIOT CENTER INSIDE WARSAW

BY WILLIAM STRAND.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Aug. 21.—A bulletin from Gen. Bor, Polish underground leader in Warsaw, said today that German tanks and infantry had entered the old city where the patriots were concentrated after a heavy artillery and plane bombardment and that fires were raging in the capital.

Taking a leaf from the allied book, the Germans were reported supplying isolated groups of their troops in and near the capital by plane. A message from a British flyer, who presumably was shot down over Warsaw, reported a "desperate situation" within the capital.

"Hundreds Killed Daily."

"Thousands of people in the capital are being made homeless daily, and hundreds are being killed," the flyer's message said. "They are dying from hunger and disease under the most terrible conditions. The Germans are showing no mercy.

"The water shortage has started to be very serious. Wells are being dug in almost every open piece of ground in Warsaw. Lack of munitions and weapons is heavily felt in Warsaw garrisons. However, underground troops continue to fight with magnificent courage."

Rescue Planes Fight Nazis.

At a Polish cabinet meeting Premier Stanislaw Mikolajczyk reportedly told how supplies were dropped in Warsaw by American and British flyers who fought a low level, running fight with Nazi ground troops.

Later this week the cabinet is scheduled to study political problems bearing on the Russian question. It was reported Premier Stalin of Russia had insisted that the London group compromise with the soviet recognized Polish committee of liberation and that this apparently is what Mikolajczyk will try to arrange.

TWO AMERICANS WED IN GUINEA; IT'S DUTCH TREAT

BY ARTHUR VEYSEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HOLLANDIA, Dutch New Guinea, Aug. 20 [Delayed].—The first marriage ceremony conducted by the Dutch government since the Japanese overran their empire was held here today — and the treat was on the Dutch.

The couple was Lt. John Jenkins III., Los Angeles, Cal., and Linnea Almgren, Worcester, Mass. Jenkins is an artillery officer and his bride a secretary in an army hospital here.

Under Dutch rules a government ceremony must precede the regular church rites. Today the couple appeared before the Dutch New Guinea administrator, Maj. L. E. J. Brouwer. In the civil ceremony the major asked them if they wanted to wed. Each said yes. Then he asked if any one else had heard the couple say they wanted to marry. Plenty of friends with the couple said yes.

The usual government fee is 15 guilders, about $7.95. But Maj. Brouwer said to forget it. "The world being in such a state I guess it is the least we can do," he said.

U. S. and Germany Plan Another Repatriation

Washington, D. C., Aug. 21 (AP).—The Swedish repatriation liner Gripsholm will leave New York within a couple of days for another exchange of prisoners with Germany at Goteborg, Sweden, about Sept. 8, the state and war departments announced tonight. Among those to be exchanged will be seriously sick and wounded prisoners of war.

Sun-baked HAIR NEEDS THOMAS' HELP

ODD as it may seem, summer is the best and at the same time the worst season for your hair. It is the best because your hair grows faster than at any other season; and it is the worst because of the danger of over-exposure to the sun's rays. Too much sun fades your hair and causes it to take on a dry, brittle, lifeless appearance.

Make up your mind to help your hair, not harm it, this summer. Let Thomas aid you by removing those itch provoking dandruff scales, and by showing you exactly how to expose your hair beneficially to the summer sun. Come in today for free, private advice and consultation. 4-POWER PEACE PARLEY OPENS; SECRECY HIT

Hull and Cadogan Vow No Domination.

BY WILLIAM MOORE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 21.—Amid secrecy that brought congressional protest, the United States, Great Britain, and Russia began planning today to maintain the peace, after it is won, at the Dumbarton Oaks international security conference.

Secretary of State Hull and Alexander Cadogan, head of the British delegation, both sought in their opening statements to discount the warning of Gov. Dewey against a peace founded upon power politics, in which the big 4 powers would dominate, with the smaller nations subject to coercion. Hull and Cadogan denied any such plan is contemplated and urged speed in establishing the peace machinery.

Hull presided at the opening meeting around a square horse shoe conference table in the music room of the 143 year old brick residence among the giant trees of the old Dumbarton Oaks estate in the Georgetown section of the capital.

China to Appear Later.

China was not represented at the four power conference lest her representation embarrass the Russians in their maintenance of peace with Japan while Russia's allies fight the Japanese. The Chinese will enter the conference after the Russians depart.

Two chandeliers of later date than the priceless candelabra along the walls shed a flickering light upon the conference table in the usually dark room when Hull called the conference to order. Yet there was illumination so bright that it made the delegates squint, for great floodlights were ranged along the wall near the tremendous fireplace, in which a man might have stood upright.

Motion picture machines at the rear almost drowned out the speakers' words.

Hull 72; Gromyko 36.

With British Ambassador Halifax at his right and Russian Abassador Gromyko at his left, the ageing secretary of state welcomed the delegates on behalf of himself and President Roosevelt. The age of most of the American delegation, with the possible exception of white haired but middle aged Undersecretary of State Stettinius, was the more marked by the red cheeked youthfulness of the Russians. Hull is 72. Gromyko is 36.

Hull told the aims of the conference and then offered his own assurance that it does not contemplate power politics by the big 4.

"The governments represented here," Hull read from a prepared manuscript, "are fully agreed in their conviction that the future maintenance of peace and security—the supreme objective of international coöperation—must be a joint task and a joint responsibility of all peace loving nations, large and small. They solemnly proclaimed this conviction in a declaration of their foreign ministers at Moscow on Oct. 30, 1943.

Cadogan More Emphatic.

"It cannot be emphasized too often that the principle of the sovereign equality of all peace loving states, irrespective of size and strength, as partners in a system of order under law, must constitute the foundation of any future international organization for the maintenance of peace and security."

Cadogan was even more frank than Hull in seeking to soothe those who fear a world state and all the dangers most recently warned against by the Republican Presidential nominee. Cadogan said:

"No one wishes to impose some great power dictatorship on the rest of the world.

"But," he quickly added, "it is obvious that unless the great powers are united in an aim and ready to assume and fulfill loyally their obligation: no machine for maintaining peace, however perfectly constructed, will in practice work.

No Concessions for Russians.

"On the other hand, even Hitler has surely learned by now what we have ourselves long known, that it is not by riding rough shod over the smaller powers that the vital interests of the larger can in the long run be best protected."

Gromyko, however, did not even offer any verbal concessions, but stuck to the Russian position that the power to maintain peace be kept in the hands of Russia, Great Britain, and the United States. He called for the use of "all resources in possession" of the peace organization, "and first of all the resources of such great nations as the soviet union and the United States and Great Britain."

[Authorities say the Russian plan demands centralization of power in the big four, but in view of the Russians' objection to meeting with the Chinese, Gromyko did not mention the Chinese today.]

Meet for 33 Minutes.

The opening meeting, the only one open to the press, lasted only 33 minutes. Reporters were admitted to the walled estate by soldiers who gruffly warned them against trying to get in at any entrance except the one marked "press."

Once inside, the reporters were permitted to hear the delegation leaders read their opening statements. That was all of the proceedings deemed the public's business, but the reporters were not handed their hats immediately.

They were allowed to wander for a while over the heavily wooded grounds where LaFayette is said to have sipped wine beneath an oak tree. There the reporters saw Stettinius round up the Russians for a photograph and later stroll with his arm around Gromyko.

Secrecy Resented.

The secrecy of the conference brought expressions of resentment from members of both the house and senate.

Rep. Rogers [R., Mass.] voiced the complaint of many when she demanded on the floor of the house that members of congress be allowed to sit in or all sessions of the conference. Mrs. Rogers said, in addition, that as direct representatives of the people the members should insist upon an official congressional committee at the conference table.

Sen. Wherry [R., Neb.] called for an end of the secrecy, asserting the American people, thru their elected congressional representatives, have a right to know what agreements are being made.

How Plans Vary.

The American plan is for a council of all the allied nations, with an executive council composed of the big four. It includes a World court. The British plan is similar, except that it provides penalties against unruly nations without the unanimous vote provided in the American plan. The Russian plan has never been officially submitted, but the Russians have made clear that they want power centered in the big four.

The American plan, as explained by President Roosevelt, has already drawn sharp congressional criticism.

Sen. Bridges [R., N. H.] has expressed fear it will divide the world into spheres of influence, with the small countries out in the cold. Sen. La Follette [Prog., Wis.] has questioned the advisability of committing the United States to a world organization before the broad, general terms of the peace are known to congress.

PEACE PARLEY SITE GIVEN TO SCOTSMAN IN 1702

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 21—Dumbarton Oaks, where the international security conference opened today, is named for its stately oak trees and for the rock of Dumbarton on the Clyde river in Scotland. Its site was granted in 1702 by Queen Anne of England to Ninian Beall, a Scotsman. Ninety nine years later, in 1801, William H. Dorsay, who had acquired the land, built the 32 room mansion. He was the judge of an orphans' court established by Thomas Jefferson.

Dorsay installed such conveniences as millstones and a greenhouse especially equipped to grow oranges. He built a yew walk, too, for those who liked to walk between yew trees, and a brook with a miniature waterfall. Later owners added a swimming pool and tennis courts.

Dorsay called the estate Acropholus. Eventually James E. Calhoun bought it and let his brother, John C. Calhoun, live in it while John was secretary of war and Vice President. Later owners changed the name to Monterey, and then to the Oaks. Robert Woods Bliss, retired diplomat, was the last private owner. He added Dumbarton to the name and eventually he and Mrs. Bliss gave the estate to Harvard university, the present owner.

WILLKIE CONFERS WITH DULLES ON FOREIGN POLICY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Aug. 21.—Wendell Willkie conferred for one hour and 15 minutes late this afternoon with John Foster Dulles, Gov. Dewey's apparent choice for secretary of state if the Republicans win this fall. Afterwards, the two issued a joint statement conspicuously omitting any indorsement of the 1944 Republican ticket by the unsuccessful 1940 candidate.

"We have conferred extensively," read the joint statement, "about the various international problems bearing on world organization to assure lasting peace. There has been a full exchange of views not animated by partisan consideration nor having to do with any candidacy but by the desire of both of us that the United States should play a constructive part in assuring world order."

Willkie, repudiated by Wisconsin voters in his bid for the 1944 nomination, still is maintaining his neutrality as between President Roosevelt's fourth term bid and the candidacy of Gov. Dewey, who made eight nation-wide broadcasts in his behalf in 1940.

According to Willkie's friends, he protested to Dulles against arrangements for the Dulles-Willkie meeting designed, according to Willkie, to aid Dewey's campaign publicity.

U. S. MEN SEIZE 6,468 PAIRS OF NYLONS IN N. Y.

New York, Aug. 21 (AP).—Seizure of 6,468 pairs of undyed nylon hosiery in a midtown storage warehouse by deputy United States marshals acting on information obtained in Newark was announced today by United States Atty. James B. McNally.

The attorney identified the four as Stephen F. Schmidt of Clifton, N. J., Samuel N. Paris of Fair Lawn, N. J.; Joseph Milstein of New York City, and Walter F. Schautz, vice president of the Grove Silk company of Dunmore, Pa.

McNally said they were charged with conspiring to divert nylon yarn allocated to the Grove Silk firm for manufacture of parachutes and glider tow ropes.

NELSON'S TRIP IS 'NOT A KICK IN TEETH': F. D. R.

Report Chief of WPB Planned to Quit.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 21 (AP).—President Roosevelt denied today that Donald M. Nelson's assignment to China was a "kick in the teeth," and the WPB chairman, who had been reported on the verge of resignation, rushed plans to leave for the orient.

Mr. Roosevelt's statement that Nelson's economic mission was temporary and would bring no change in war production policy in his absence prompted Nelson to drop any plans he may have had to quit in protest. A WPB spokesman said he was "perfectly satisfied."

Nelson's plan for limited reconversion of industry to a peace time basis had been opposed vigorously by military officials, and some others, and there was speculation that the plans might be changed in his absence. Over the week-end some of his associates complained bitterly that he was being "kicked in the teeth" and "sent to Siberia."

Calls Trip Pressing.

Today's formal White House statement, which described Nelson's trip as "most pressing" and "necessarily confidential," was reported to have followed conferences between Nelson and White House aids.

Nelson was understood to have emerged with the impression his mission would require no longer than the three weeks or thereabouts which he originally felt necessary.

A much longer stay had been indicated in a White House statement issued Saturday night, which said Nelson and Maj. Gen. Patrick J. Hurley would remain in China "several months" in conferences with Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek.

May Quiz Nelson.

A member of the influential senate war investigating committee, who asked that his name be withheld, said, "If it is production they want in China, why don't they send Wilson, who is a production expert?" He referred to Charles E. Wilson, WPB executive vice chairman, who becomes acting chairman in Nelson's absence, and who has not always seen eye-to-eye with Nelson on the reconversion question. The senate committee member said both Nelson and Wilson might be called before the committee this week.

Policy to Stay the Same.

Mr. Roosevelt issued this statement:

"Any impression that Mr. Nelson's temporary mission to China indicates a change in policy in the war production board is entirely unfounded.

"Mr. Nelson was selected to go to China with Gen. Hurley on a most pressing mission.

"Mr. Nelson's mission is necessarily confidential. I regret that more about the work assigned him cannot be said at this time. When it is possible to tell the whole story, those who charge he is being 'kicked in the teeth' will realize how wrong and unjust they have been—what a disservice they have rendered their country and Mr. Nelson personally."

FIGHT IN FRANCE SHORTENS WAR, SAYS CHURCHILL

WITH THE 8TH ARMY NEAR FLORENCE, Italy, Aug. 20 [Delayed] — (AP). — Prime Minister Churchill told a brigade of Canadian tankmen today that the battle raging in Normandy promises to bring the end of the war much nearer.

"I cannot predict an early end to the war, but I could not guarantee against it ending sooner than we have allowed ourselves to hope," said the prime minister, who spoke not far from the front lines.

He toured the 8th army front with Gen. Harold Alexander and visited ground where the allies fought more than a week to push the Germans back on Florence.

Foe Weakens Behind Lines.

"The enemy is still active and strong," Churchill said, "and the German army still fights with the relics of its old efficiency. But behind the lines, weakness and division are spreading, and everywhere there are signs of internal decay and dull apathy overtaking the weak.

"The dissension is such that when a general goes to Berlin, he doesn't know whether he is to be promoted or hanged."

Praise for U. S. Troops.

Churchill praised the American 5th army and paid a special compliment to United States troops of Japanese and Negro ancestry. He paid the tribute after witnessing a parade of the famed 34th infantry division, which has been placed under command of Maj. Gen. Charles Bolte of Chicago.

He spent the night with Lt. Gen. Mark Clark, commander of the 5th army, and conferred with Gen. Bolte. A spokesman said future operations were discussed.

Churchill personally shot a big American gun at two German cannon positions north of Pisa.

After he pulled the lanyard, the shell fell 200 yards short of the target.

END IN SIGHT: 'MONTY'

WITH BRITISH TROOPS IN FRANCE, Aug. 21 (AP). — Gen. Bernard L. Montgomery told his troops tonight:

"The end of the war is in sight. Let us finish off the business in record time." He added:

"The German armies in northwest France have suffered a decisive defeat. The destruction of enemy personnel and equipment in and about the so-called Normandy pocket has been terrific. And it is still going on. Any enemy units that manage to get away still will not be in fit condition to fight again for months. There are still many surprises in store for the fleeing remnants.

"The victory has been definite, complete, and decisive.

"As a British general, I can speak for all the soldiers of the empire and can express our highest admiration for the brave fighting qualities of the American army."

FORRESTAL LAUDS 'IKE'

BY HOWARD COWAN.

[Associated Press Correspondent Representing the Combined American Press.]

GEN. EISENHOWER'S HDQ., Aug. 21 (AP).—Secretary of the Navy James V. Forrestal came away from a conference with Gen. Eisenhower today "tremendously impressed" with the spirit of coöperation which he said the supreme commander has fostered among the British and Americans and their allies.

The navy secretary said the pressure is on in the Pacific and that the trend in that theater was comparable to that in Europe.

"Speaking in terms of acceleration of our own planning," he said, "we are ahead of schedule."

He cautioned against overoptimism on the Japanese campaign should Germany collapse suddenly, saying, "The distance is 12,000 miles."

5 Minute Divorce

[Associated Press Wirephoto.]

Lana Turner (right), and her mother, Mrs. Mildred Turner, in Los Angeles, Cal., courtroom yesterday as actress was granted a divorce.

Los Angeles, Aug. 21 (AP).—The movies' No. 1 sweater girl, Lana Turner, obtained a divorce in five minutes today from Broker Stephen Crane.

In monosyllabic answers to questions by her lawyer, Lana told Judge Stanley Mosk the marriage was a mistake, that she became extremely unhappy, nervous, irritable, lost weight, caught colds, and that work on one of her films had to be stopped because of her illness. She said Crane berated her and quarrelled because she was not at home when he arrived.

Crane and Miss Turner were married for the second time in Tijuana, Mexico, March 14, 1943, after annulment of their Las Vegas, Nev., marriage of July 17, 1942. The court was informed that Crane and Miss Turner have reached a property settlement. The actress will retain custody of their 1 year old daughter, Cheryl Christina.

FRENCH PARADE BOUISSON WITH GESTAPO SPIES

DRAGUIGNAN, Southern France, Aug. 20 [Delayed]—(AP).—One of the biggest collaborationists caught in the invasion is a 71 year old man identified as Fernand Bouisson, former president of the chamber of deputies. He was found hiding with a friend four miles from St. Raphael and was jailed pending judicial procedure.

Fernand Bouisson.

For safety, he was imprisoned here, and today French partisans paraded him and other prisoners for a French information service movie cameraman.

It was a bitter pill for the man who was 10 years mayor of Marseille, former national head of the Socialist party, premier for five days in 1935, merchant marine minister in World War I., and recently Marshal Petain's information minister. He was paraded with Gestapo spies and a woman whose head had been shaved for consorting with Germans. He kept his head down.

MEAT MARKET LOOTED.

Burglars broke into Rudolph Hradecky's meat market at 4450½ S. Kedzie av. early yesterday, and stole 37S, five hams, and a large quantity of red and blue ration tokens.

MORE MEDICINES TO BE AVAILABLE TO PUBLIC SOON

Washington, D. C., Aug. 21 [Special].—More medicines will soon be placed on the open market for civilians, the navy disclosed today in revealing the streamlining of navy inventories and that its own stocks have reached a level high enough to permit a virtual cessation of buying drugs and medical supplies for six months.

As a safeguard against unpredictable stoppages of supply, the navy until recently stockpiled medicine for an 18 month period, but it is now down to a 12 month inventory and is in the process of reducing to a nine month reserve, the senate war investigating committee was told by Rear Adm. J. M. Irish, acting chief of navy operations for inventory control.

The witness also disclosed that the navy has on hand at present an excess of 6 million pounds of aluminum, half of which is to be made available to private purchasers. Also to be disposed of are 700 small boats acquired in the early stages of the war.

DEMANDS PROBE ON USE OF FLEET FOR F.D.R. JAUNT

House Member Reports Trip Cost 20 Million.

Dewey Shuns 'Fleet'

New York, Aug. 21 (AP).—Herbert Brownell Jr., chairman of the Republican national committee, said today Gov. Dewey probably would use both railroad trains and airplanes in his Presidential campaign and added: "But I doubt he will use battleships, destroyers, or cruisers which already have been used for campaign purposes." He did not enlarge on the statement.

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 21.—Rep. Shafer [R., Mich.] today called upon the house naval affairs committee to inquire into reports that an entire navy task force was diverted from the Pacific campaign against Japan to escort President Roosevelt on his recent cruise to Hawaii.

Rep. Shafer.

Shafer said he had been informed the estimated cost of conveying the fourth term candidate to a meeting with Gen. MacArthur at Pearl Harbor was 20 million dollars. Battleships, cruisers, aircraft carriers, and a host of attendant craft, with hundreds of planes overhead, are said to have safeguarded the President on his cruise.

Called 20 Million Dollar Suntan.

"The most ardent New Dealer will not contend seriously that the trip was essential to the strategy of the war in the Pacific," Shafer said in a statement. "The visit was a nice gesture toward Gen. MacArthur, which undoubtedly was occasioned by political considerations.

"Apparently the only practical benefit resulting from the cruise was a bronze to the Presidential countenance. I think a 20 million dollar suntan is a little too expensive, even for a nation with a national debt approaching 300 billions.

"Far more serious than the cost of the expedition is the reported withdrawal from battle action of fighting ships which could have been better employed hunting down the Japanese fleet. I think we should have a detailed statement from both the White House and the navy concerning the circumstances of the cruise."

Allen Also Asks Inquiry.

Rep. Allen [R., Ill.] added his voice to the demand for an investigation, remarking he also had heard of the 20 million dollar estimate of the cost of the Roosevelt expedition.

On his return from the Pacific coast to Washington a few days ago, Mr. Roosevelt instructed the train crew to take it easy at 25 miles an hour because he enjoys slow traveling.

Railroad officials also revealed that when the President spent a month vacationing early this year at Hobcaw Barony, the Bernard Baruch estate in South Carolina, a special train, complete with crew, was kept on a siding with steam up thruout the month, in readiness for an emergency departure.

NAVY'S TOP ACE TO MARRY CO-ED ON THURSDAY

Lt. Alexander Vraciu Jr., 25, of East Chicago, Ind., the navy's top ranking ace with 19 Jap planes to his credit, will marry on Thursday Miss Kathryn Horn, daughter of Mrs. John C. Horn, 1604 142d st., East Chicago, with whom he attended Washington High school in East Chicago. She is now a junior at the Indiana university in Bloomington. Miss Horn's father, the late John C. Horn, owned the Washington Coal & Lumber company in East Chicago.

The ceremony will be performed in the rectory of St. Patrick's Catholic church in East Chicago by the Rev. James F. Connelly, with only members of the families of the bride and bridegroom in attendance.

Lt. Vraciu's father, an East Chicago policeman, and his mother, Marie, live at 3553 Pennsylvania av., East Chicago. Lt. Vraciu was graduated from DePauw university before entering the navy, and for a time was a member of the squadron headed by the late Lt. Comdr. Edward H. [Butch] O'Hare.

FORMER CHICAGO FLYER KILLED IN EUROPEAN AREA

Lt. Thomas Ernst, 20. Enlisted in 1943.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas H. Cross of the Parkway hotel, 2100 Lincoln Park west, have received word that their grandson, Lt. Thomas A. Ernst, 20, of the army air forces, has been killed in action in Europe. Lt. Ernst's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Hilmer Ernst Sr., of Albany, Ga., former Chicago residents, were notified of the death by the war department on Aug. 18.

Lt. Thomas A. Ernst.

Lt. Ernst was born in Chicago and was graduated from the Harris school. He enlisted while attending Illinois Institute of Technology in February, 1943.

Lt. Ernst's brother, Hilmer Ernst Jr., 19, is with the navy medical division and served in the Normandy invasion.

Pvt. Stanley J. Davis, 35, of 1752 W. 14th st., member of the 5th armored division maintenance crew, was killed Aug. 6 in France, his mother, Mrs. Mary Davis Benca, 1343 Paulina st., was notified yesterday. Davis was employed by Columbia mills, West Pullman, before his induction in March, 1941. He was sent overseas in January. Also surviving are two sisters, Mrs. Judy Soltys and Mrs. Frances Van Pelt, and a brother, Bernard.

First Lt. Charles [Barney] Clemensen, 29, previously reported missing in action, was killed in action in Normandy July 14, his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Clemensen of Long lake, near Fox lake, in Lake county, were notified yesterday by the war department. A graduate of St. Olaf's college and De Paul university, Lt. Clemensen was an attorney with the firm of Hall & Hulse in Waukegan, and a justice of the peace in Grant township before entering the army in April of 1941. He is also survived by a sister, Mrs. Bernice Bleecker of Chicago.

Mr. and Mrs. George J. Semenek, of 1713 N. Keystone av., were notified by the war department yesterday that their son, Pvt. George Semenek, had been killed in action Aug. 2 in France. Pvt. Semenek, who had been in the army two years, was a graduate of St. Philomeno High school. Two brothers, Herman R. and Steve R., are also in the army.

Staff Sgt. Roger W. Collins, tail gunner on a B-17, reported missing Jan. 11 after a bombing mission over Germany, was killed in action on that date, his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas P. Collins, 155 N. Elmwood av., Oak Park, were notified yesterday.

Sgt. Collins enlisted in October, 1942, and went overseas a year later. He was a graduate of Fenwick High school and attended St. Benedict's college at Atchison, Kas. Other survivors are four brothers, Thomas L., John J. of the navy, Corp. Michael J. and Pvt. James J. of the army, and two sisters, Mary A. and Alice M. A memorial mass will be celebrated at 9 a. m. Friday in St. Edmund's church, Oak Park.

Sgt. Raymond Zwicke, 22, who formerly lived at 1508 Morrow st., Waukegan, is missing in action in France, a brother, Robert, of Waukegan, was notified yesterday by the war department. Sgt. Zwicke's father, Rudolph, lives in Marshfield, Wis. Before entering the army two years ago, Sgt. Zwicke was employed by the Chicago Hardware Foundry company of North Chicago. Another brother, John, is also in the army.

Memorial services for Pvt. Donald Kush, 24, who died in action Aug. 1 in France, will be held at 10 a. m. tomorrow in Maternity B. V. M. church, Monticello and North avs. Pvt. Kush, the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Kush, 3619 North av., had been in the army two years and was a graduate of Kelvin Park High school. Four sisters and three brothers also survive.

Pot Luck Stationery

Corp. Adolph Santogrossi, 31, has written to his brother, Leo, 5911 Berenice av., on stationery apparently abandoned by Mussolini when he suddenly departed from Rome. The paper is embellished with the words "Il Duce" in large script at the top, and bears the Italian coat of arms.

"I ran out of stationery so I'm taking pot luck and using this," was the only explanation offered by Corp. Santogrossi. "The owner also ran out [not of stationery]. I can't tell you where I am in Italy but there's nothing wrong in you trying to guess."

Corp. Santogrossi, who formerly lived at 1118 S. Troy st., wrote that American soldiers were living under the best of conditions. "In fact, most of the men in this outfit didn't have it as good back home," he asserted.

16 FEARED DEAD IN COLLISION OF ARMY BOMBERS

Trinidad, Colo., Aug. 21 (AP).—Lt. Col. Lambert B. Cain, commanding officer of the Trinidad prisoner of war camp, today said 16 men were killed in a collision in the air of two Pueblo army air base bombing planes near here and that three other men escaped, probably by bailing out. Cain said the crash occurred about 30 miles northeast of Trinidad. The planes burned. A detachment of guards from the internment camp was guarding the wreckage, said Cain.

BURGLARS HIDE WITH THEIR LOOT IN A JAIL CELL

Marquette, Mich., Aug. 21 [Special].—A quartet of burglars who conducted forays Friday and Saturday nights on city merchants solved the hideaway problem by using a cell in the county jail as a place to hide their loot and loll at ease while city police combed the city for them, Sheriff Howard C. Treado said tonight.

Their presence in the county jail caused no surprise because the jail was where they were supposed to be, the sheriff said. They were prisoners, and were emerging for their expeditions by means of a sawed cell bar and a hole hacked in a window screen.

Technique Is Give-Away.

Because the technique of the burglars reminded city police of that used by James and Paul Kotel, 16, and 17 respectively, in a robbery last month, officers at once suspected the Kotel brothers of the new outbreak of robberies but had abandoned the idea on ascertaining both were supposedly safe in jail, the sheriff said.

A tip to Sheriff Treado from an inmate that the brothers and two other prisoners were planning a jail break tonight led to a search of their cells.

Amazed deputies found the prisoners in cells stocked with contraband from the robberies.

Replaced Bars with Glue.

The sheriff said the men had sawed out a bar, but had replaced it with glue, and that a hole cut in the screen was likewise concealed by gluing the section back in place. On both Friday and Saturday nights, he said, they crawled from the cells, perpetrated their burglaries and returned with their booty.

The Kotel brothers were being held on robbery charges and the others were Leo Lonafoot, 21, of Barage, and Robert R. Henderson, 24.

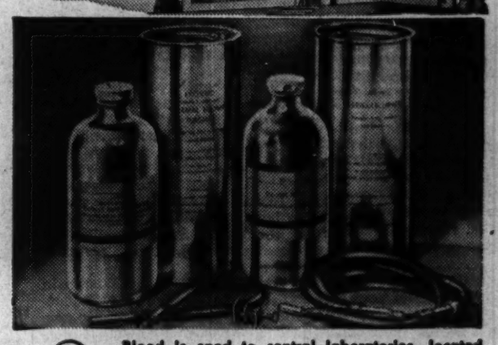
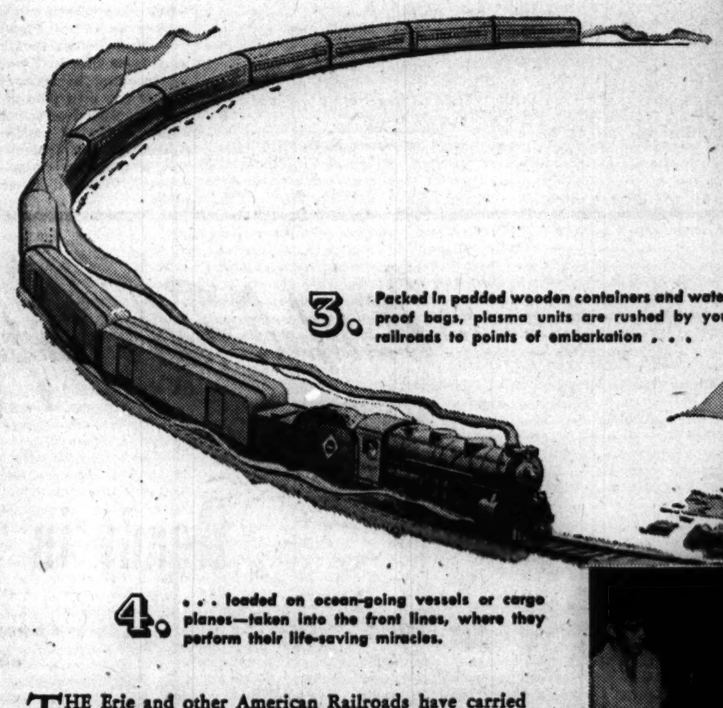
How a Heart-Beat in a Small Town Saves a Life 8000 Miles Away!

1. American Red Cross mobile units visit small towns periodically—set up blood donor centers in village schools, churches or community houses. Here patriotic Americans voluntarily give their blood to save the lives of our fighting men.



2. Blood is sped to central laboratories, located within 50-100 miles of the service centers—processed into the form pictured here. One pint of blood makes one unit of plasma. The seriously wounded sometimes require as many as 12 units to speed them on the road to recovery.



3. Packed in padded wooden containers and waterproof bags, plasma units are rushed by your railroads to points of embarkation . . .

4. . . . loaded on ocean-going vessels or cargo planes—taken into the front lines, where they perform their life-saving miracles.

THE Erie and other American Railroads have carried more than 10 million pounds of blood plasma—nearly 2 million units. This is typical of the many unusual wartime requirements never before handled by your railroads in such tremendous quantities.

With the continued help of the public, shippers, and government agencies, the Erie and other American Railroads will keep vital supplies of every kind rolling to our fighting fronts.

Your Help is Needed

Casualties are increasing! Bigger battles lie ahead. 45 minutes of your time can save the life of an American boy. In large communities go to your local Blood Donor Center. In smaller towns watch for the arrival of a mobile unit.

ACTS TO GUARD REGULAR TRADE ON WAR GOODS

Congress Would Prevent U. S. Competition.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 21 (AP).—Congressional action was taken today to give regular trade channels first crack at vast stores of surplus war property and to grant priorities to former owners and returning veterans in the purchase of surplus land.

The house tentatively accepted an amendment to surplus war property disposal legislation which is designed to "protect established business concerns against unfair government competition by utilizing commercial channels of distribution" instead of making direct sales to consumers, as long as there is a commercial demand.

The amendment, offered by Rep. Halleck [R., Ind.] and accepted by a 77 to 67 vote, also requires the surplus war property administrator to refuse to sell to speculators "or persons who would freeze surpluses in large quantities." Exceptions would be made where a thoro survey shows the surpluses cannot be handled on the regular market.

Former Owners Favored.

The senate military affairs committee, which is drafting the senate's disposal bill, accepted an amendment by Sen. O'Mahoney [D., Wyo.] providing for the priorities in land disposal and placing disposal under the joint control of the departments of interior and agriculture.

Under the O'Mahoney amendment, former owners would be given first chance to repurchase land which the government took from them. If the owner did not wish to repurchase, their lineal descendants or tenants would be given the next option, and if they did not exercise their priority the land would be offered to veterans before being put up for general sale.

Aid War Veterans.

The O'Mahoney amendment provides that the secretaries of interior and agriculture would jointly classify all surplus land. That classified for resale in family size farms would be sold by the agriculture department under the Bankhead-Jones act providing for long term, low interest goverament financing. The remainder would be disposed of by the interior department, or the owning agency.

The house also adopted an amendment by Rep. Miller [R., Conn.] permitting service men and women and war veterans to buy small lots of surplus equipment at the same price as offered for sale in large quantities.

A house approved amendment by Rep. Gossett [D., Tex.] would permit farmers a reasonable time to repurchase land they have sold to the government at a price no higher than received.

Limit Reconversion.

Apparently intent upon ridding business and industry of government controls quickly when peace comes, the house ways and means committee decided tentatively to limit to one year the life of reconversion machinery now being set up by congress.

The committee revised a section of senate approved industry demobilization legislation which provides two years of government supervision for reconversion. The amendment, offered by Rep. Carlson [R., Kas.], stipulates that existence of the "office of war mobilization and reconversion" shall cease earlier than one year after hostilities end if congress declares no emergency exists.

Rep. Carlson said "the people want to get rid of war time controls. We must give business and industry all encouragement possible to attain maximum peace time production and to provide jobs."

Rep. Disney [D., Okla.] said "the idea is to get the government out of business as quickly as possible."

O'DANIEL SAYS HILLMAN BOUGHT UP DEMOCRATS

Birmingham, Ala., Aug. 21 [Special].—Sidney Hillman, head of the CIO political action committee, "and his gang of labor leader racketeers and fellow traveling New Dealers have bought out the Democratic party of our fathers, lock, stock, and barrel," Sen. O'Daniel [D., Tex.] asserted tonight.

In an address at a meeting of the American National Democratic party of Alabama, the senator asserted he didn't know how his state would vote this year, "because we're between the devil and the deep blue sea," but he recalled that Texas once went Republican.

"I do not propose to allow the New Deal smear brigade to intimidate me and force me to support legislation dealing entirely with our domestic affairs and thereby aid them to use the war effort as a camouflage to cover up their real design to change the form of the American government and convert it into a socialized dictatorship," O'Daniel said.

"Your only opportunity to break up this ring is to vote their leader out of office. What America needs most is a thoro housecleaning in Washington."

44,956 JAPS DIE IN CONQUEST OF MARIANAS ISLES

Only 100 Captured on Guam.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 21 (AP).—The Japanese lost 44,956 dead in the American conquest of Saipan, Guam, and Tinian islands in the Marianas, the navy announced tonight.

The figures for the three islands are: Saipan, 25,144, Guam, 14,067, and Tinian, 5,745.

Only 100 Japanese prisoners were taken on Guam.

American casualties were 4,470 killed and 20,345 wounded, with 721 listed as missing in action.

Mopping up operations are continuing in the Marianas, the navy said. From Aug. 11 to 17, 593 Japanese were killed on Guam, at a cost of 12 American soldiers killed and 61 wounded.

During the same period, 187 additional Japanese were killed on Saipan, and 15 prisoners taken, at a cost of five wounded and one missing American.

Paramushiro Hit Again.

On Tinian Island, 201 Japanese were killed during that period, and 15 prisoners taken. Five Americans were killed and 11 wounded.

Meanwhile, the aerial onslaught against the islands continued, navy planes having bombed Paramushiro Island in the Kuriles on Aug. 19. Three enemy fighters took to the air but did not attempt to attack the United States planes.

Earlier the navy had announced that attacks had been delivered on six islands in the Western Pacific, Yap, in the Carolines, Pagan and Alamagan in the Marianas, Mili and Wotje in the Marshalls, and Nauru.

Alamagan Island, just south of Pagan, had not been attacked previously. Intense anti-aircraft fire was reported at Pagan, where docks and gun positions were blasted.

Bomb Moluccas Again.

GENERAL HDQ., Southwest Pacific, Aug. 22 [Tuesday]—(AP).—Bombers from southwest Pacific bases blasted Halmahera and Boeroe Islands west of New Guinea with 205 tons in new raids announced today.

Eight grounded Japanese planes were destroyed or damaged in the strike at Boeroe Saturday. Patrol planes bombed a Japanese freighter off Mindanao in the Philippines Sunday.

Other planes destroyed two small freighters near Celebes and set a small freighter afire near the Talaud Islands, between Halmahera and Mindanao.

Warehouses Demolished.

In the heaviest of a series of raids on Halmahera, warehouses were demolished and many fires were started, followed by explosions. There was no interception of the Sunday attack.

Gen. MacArthur has announced that disappearance of Japanese air power over the Molucca Islands will facilitate an advance toward the Philippines "without the necessity of costly frontal assaults to clear the way."

EVANSTON CLUB BACKING DEWEY SEEKS CHARTER

Application for a charter for the Evanston Dewey-Bricker club was sent to Secretary of State Rowe last night. Incorporators are State Rep. Alan E. Ashcraft Jr., Evanston township committeeman; County Commissioner William N. Erickson, and Ald. Harold Mogg of Evanston.

Stated purpose of the organization is to "preserve the Constitutional and American way of life" by inducing independent voters to vote for the Republican nominees Nov. 7. The club will be operated in conjunction with the regular Republican organization.

The expected life of the corporation is eight years.

ONE TRIBUNITE FLIES ANOTHER ACROSS PACIFIC

BY HAROLD SMITH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ABOARD A LIBERATOR BOMBER EN ROUTE TO PEARL HARBOR, Aug. 19 [Delayed].—Not the least of this war's miracles is the fact that you can thumb a 4,000 mile ride, as I am doing, and end it the day after you start with two overnight stops in between. That's one of the quirks of flying eastward over the international dateline, a fiendish contraption that makes a man work two days for the pay of one.

This aerial hitch-hike began back in Guam, where I received navy orders to proceed back to this base "via government transportation." Finding the transportation was left to the correspondent's ingenuity.

Gets Break at Saipan.

The task was not eased by the fact that our assigned air priority, as one wag of the typewriter corps said, "puts us just behind the copra." Any air traveler these days is likely to get booted off his plane at any stop by the holder of a higher priority, a practice that achieved its zenith in Espiritu Santo in the Solomons, where a high priority rider was unseated just before takeoff. His space was usurped by four cases of a four letter malt beverage much in demand in hot climates.

Guam to Saipan was easy, a matter of 100 miles or so in that sturdy work horse of this conflict, the Douglas DC-3, with an intermediate stop at Tinian. But at Saipan we might have spent the rest of the war waiting for the higher priorities to slack off were it not for a friend in high places who knew of his bomber returning in ballast to Hawaii after ferrying out a load of high priority freight.

Skipper Is Tribunite.

By one of those coincidences which in the Pacific are commonplace, our skipper turns out to be a fellow Tribunite, Capt. Harry H. Wise Jr., who sold classified advertising for 18 months before he enlisted in the army air force on Jan. 3, 1942. Harry has a strange ambition for a man who has more than 1,300 hours of flying time in his log, representing upwards of a quarter million miles of travel. He is still looking forward to his first long distance overland flight.

"I've always wanted to look down and see villages and real railroads and concrete highways on some long trip," he said wistfully. Capt. Wise's parents, formerly of Flossmoor, Ill., now reside at the Windermere hotel in Chicago. His sister, Doris, is a pilot of the civilian air patrol.

Wise had flown 210 combat hours and has returned several times with his Flying Fortress shot up. His roommate now is another Chicagoan, Capt. Sidney Levine, navigation officer of Harry's 7th air force troop carrier squadron.

Trucking Firm's Drivers Strike in Wage Dispute

Operations at the Midwest Motor Service, 4915 S. Campbell av., were hampered yesterday by a strike of truck drivers who are affiliated with the Chicago Truck Drivers, Chauffeurs & Helpers local 705 [Ind.], in a dispute over time lost in arbitration of wage scales. H. L. Fox, vice president of the company, which provides city trucking service, said approximately 75 per cent of the operations are related to the war effort.

NAVY TO BUILD NEWS SENDING BASE AT GUAM

Washington, D. C., Aug. 21 [Special].—Plans for establishing new navy transmission facilities on Guam within the next five weeks, which will make it possible for news and photographs to be transmitted from the Pacific battle fronts to the United States within a matter of hours, were disclosed here today by navy spokesmen.

The new plans also contemplate improved arrangements for handling all types of public information. They are understood to have the full approval of Adm. Nimitz, commander in chief of the Pacific fleet.

By establishing new facilities on Guam the navy will be setting up a base for news and picture transmission some 3,200 miles closer to the scenes of action than Pearl Harbor, whence news now emanates. One of the features of the plan will be to have field censors clear copy on the beachheads, if possible; then fly the cleared photographs and dispatches to Guam, where the new radio station will be open for 24 hour service.

CIVILIAN BUTTER SUPPLIES TO BE RAISED BY WFA

The war food administration's order reducing from 30 to 20 per cent the amount of creamery butter that manufacturers must set aside for war uses will mean more butter for civilians, a WFA spokesman in Chicago said yesterday. The order becomes effective Sept. 1.

The WFA representative said it was not possible to estimate in pounds how much more butter would become available, but added that it probably would not be sufficient to cause any drop in the number of points per pound.

Butter production this year has been considerably lower than last year, he said. The decline may make it necessary for the WFA to continue to set aside butter for government uses during October, the spokesman said. Last year government agencies bought no butter produced after September except small amounts.

Election Board Office Open for Registration

The board of election commissioners' office in the city hall is now open from 9 a. m. to 9 p. m., Mondays thru Fridays, for registration for the Nov. 7 election, Chief Clerk John S. Rusch said yesterday. On Saturdays the office will be open from 9 a. m. until noon. Registration at neighborhood fire engine houses will begin about Oct. 4.

PRESIDENT APPROVES BILL EASING CURB ON NEWS TO FIGHTERS

Washington, D. C., Aug. 21 (AP).—President Roosevelt today signed soldier vote law amendments relaxing restrictions on the dissemination of political news and opinion among members of the fighting services.

Sponsors said the effect of the amendments would be to open the way for sale and distribution thru army post exchanges and navy stores of any newspapers, magazines, and books in general circulation among civilians—within the limits of available transportation.

In the case of radio broadcasts, the only limitation applied is that if political speeches are rebroadcast to troops over government operated stations, equal time shall be allowed to any political party having a Presidential candidate in six or more states.

Motion pictures generally available to the public may be shown without restriction, but shall be selected in an "impartial and nonpartisan" manner.

RESIGNS STATE POSITION.

Springfield, Ill., Aug. 21 [AP].—William S. Wilson has resigned as an assistant in the criminal division of the attorney general's office to resume private law practice in Freeport, Atty. Gen. Barrett announced today.

U. S. BLOWS COST JAPS 20 SHIPS, BURNING CITIES

Washington, D. C., Aug. 21 (AP).—American blows from China by air and from under the sea left the Japanese digging a home industrial area out from under charred wreckage today, and hunting replacements for 20 ships, three of them war vessels.

A triple strike by air—two Super Fortress hammer blows at the strategic production center of Yawata, and the sinking of a 14,200 ton cruiser by a Liberator of the 14th airforce — emphasized the threatening growth of American force on the Asiatic mainland.

Submarines Sink 19.

Submarines accounted for the other 19 Japanese ships, including a light cruiser, an escort vessel, one large tanker, three medium cargo transports, 11 medium cargo ships, and two small cargo vessels. The time of the submarine successes was not given.

The new list brought to 706 the number of enemy vessels which submarines have accounted for.

News of the attack on the cruiser came from Chungking, where Maj. Gen. Claire L. Chennault's 14th airforce disclosed that a Liberator found the warship in the China sea Saturday, getting three direct hits and a probable, and watching it sink during the fourth bombing run.

23 Shot Down, Say Japs.

LONDON, Aug. 21 (AP). — Berlin broadcast a Tokyo dispatch today reporting lively allied air activity north of Australia which the Japanese said "probably foreshadowed fresh offensive operations in that area."

Tokyo broadcast a bulletin asserting that 23 of 80 bombers which raided the Japanese homeland yesterday were shot down. Previous Japanese broadcasts had reported 25 of 77 attacking planes downed.

Japs to 'Fight War Out.'

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Japanese Foreign Minister Mamoru Shigemitsu appealed yesterday for the support of Japanese subjugated peoples and reiterated that the government was determined to "fight the war out" in collaboration with "other axis powers."

CHICAGOAN FLIES SUPER FORTRESS IN RAID ON JAPAN

Maj. Gust Askounis, 26, who lived at 3834 W. 63d pl. when he enlisted in the army air forces in 1940, is the pilot of the B-29 Super Fortress "Windy City" which has bombed Japan, he stated in a letter received yesterday by his uncle, William [Billy the Goat] Sianis, a tavern operator at 1855 Madison st.

Askounis met Clay Gowran, Tribune war correspondent, at a B-29 base and "had a nice chat with him," he wrote from India. He said he misses milk "most of all." Askounis was a student at the University of Chicago before he enlisted.

Sianis also heard yesterday that his tavern received mention in an Italian language newspaper in Rome. Pvt. Walter S. Spirko, a former Chicago reporter, wrote Sianis the Rome paper carried a story describing the "No Republicans Allowed" sign he hung in his tavern during the Republican national convention. It attracted the delegates.

They'll keep 'em rolling

The men behind the grease guns are doing an essential job on the home front — keeping old cars rolling, helping get war workers to their vital tasks — speeding all essential business along the road to victory.

It takes a lot of ingenuity and elbow grease to run a service station, these days. Besides working "out front"—making change, inspecting coupons, checking tires, pumping gas, fixing this and patching that — these busy operators have to watch the inside, the "business end" of their stations. Fortunately, those who use National Cash Registers have more time to give to customers' needs.

Nationals protect their money, furnish daily records of all transactions — enable them to quickly see their profits, losses—by departments. And at the same time, Nationals automatically provide the information needed under rationing — for taxes and other government reports.

Customers, too, appreciate National's accurate, printed receipts — which furnish correct, dependable records of their automobile expenses.

Serving the Nation by Saving Time. This is one of many mechanized systems built by National to speed record keeping, protect money and save vital man-hours — for business, industry, government and public. Used National Cash Registers are available. National Accounting-Bookkeeping Machines can be obtained through priorities.

ADM. KIMMEL SPEAKS.

Rear Adm. Kimmel, the commander at Pearl Harbor, has broken two and a half years' silence regarding the disaster that befell the fleet under his command there. He was constrained to do so by a national magazine article written by the fourth term Vice Presidential candidate, Sen. Truman, containing an innuendo that the admiral and Maj. Gen. Short, the army commander in Hawaii, were not on speaking terms.

Rear Adm. Kimmel states an obvious truth in his assertion that the real story of the Pearl Harbor attack has not been told and that its concealment is not by his wish. To Sen. Truman he said:

"The Roberts report, upon which you rely, does not contain the basic truths of the Pearl Harbor catastrophe. This is evident from the fact that no official action has ever been taken upon the basis of that report. The congress of the United States, of which you are a member, has recognized the inadequacy of the Roberts report by directing that the war and navy departments undertake a full investigation of the Pearl Harbor disaster.

"Until I am afforded a hearing in open court it is grossly unjust to repeat false charges against me when, by official action, I have been persistently denied an opportunity to defend myself publicly."

This is a manly statement. It is remarkable only in the fact that Rear Adm. Kimmel finds it possible to speak with such restraint after having suffered in silence the opprobrium that has been directed at him and Maj. Gen. Short for two and a half years in an effort to distract public attention from the guilty responsibility of those in higher places.

The Roberts commission report was, as the admiral points out, totally unsatisfactory. It could not have been otherwise. The instructions to the commission were carefully drawn to bar it from any inquiry beyond that into the responsibility of the local commanders. The majority of the commission were military and naval personnel, at least one of them on active duty. Had they gone beyond Hawaii in their investigation they would have been in the position of denouncing their superior officers.

The Roosevelt administration has stubbornly concealed the truth about Pearl Harbor. The original excuse was that the facts had to be withheld to keep them from the enemy. For a long time the Japanese public knew a great deal more about the damage at Pearl Harbor than the American public did. That excuse obviously has become invalid. The Japanese are too much worried over what is going to happen to Nagasaki and Tokyo within the next three months to care what happened at Pearl Harbor 33 months ago.

Only one reason remains for withholding the information and that is the reason that has ruled the administration from the beginning. An unprejudiced and unrestricted inquiry into the events that preceded the Japanese attack would show that, above and beyond any neglect of local security by the Hawaiian commanders, there was a blindness and stupidity on the part of Mr. Roosevelt and his cabinet that cost us the initiative in the Pacific war for some 18 months.

WHAT THEY WON'T LET US BUY, ROTS.

A couple of months ago the office of price administration removed all soft cheese from the ration lists for a short period because it looked as tho stocks and inventories would reach a dangerously high peak. Cheddar cheese, however, was retained under the restrictions at 10 red points a pound. Now it develops that the stocks of cheddar cheese are in surplus and the war food administration has ordered more than a half a million pounds of American cheddar sold to avoid deterioration and spoilage.

A week or so ago several carloads of eggs purchased by WFA at the artificial ceiling price to support a sagging market were allowed to rot after having been shipped all around the country to dealers who wouldn't accept them because they had more eggs than they could dispose of. Tomatoes are rotting in eastern Maryland because WFA ordered tomato production expanded beyond anything the canners could handle. A few days before Ohio farmers and gardeners were caught in the same kind of a tomato glut and their fruit began to spoil.

These instances are only a few of many hundred that have been cropping up ever since Fascist controls were placed over American food production and marketing. The lardheads and incompetents with whom the New Dealers have staffed OPA, WFA, and the other food bureaus have been blamed for the situation, and not without reason. A resigning OPA official in New York has referred to his boss, the regional administrator, as a "joke," and declared that most of OPA's highly paid personnel are political appointees who do not know what their duties are, let alone how to perform them.

The real trouble, however, lies not in New Deal incompetence, but in the New Deal system. Centralized authority just wouldn't work when applied to the intricate American food production and distribution industries, even if the authority knew its business. Private enterprise, operating under the laws of supply and demand, was able to furnish more than enough food for everybody to eat, yet very little of it spoiled or was wasted. Producers and distributors relied on their experience and judgment which, coupled with open competition, made good, cheap food plentiful everywhere. Market gluts and shortages were avoided or were regulated by the ingenuity of thousands of little people who knew their jobs but who have to wait now for a federal burocrat to tell them what to do. The way to stop the food waste is not to change administrators but to change administrations and get rid of the administrators altogether.

A NEW WORLD BASTILLE OPENS ITS GATE.

Camillien Houde, the former mayor of Montreal, has been released from the Canadian internment camp where he has spent the last four years, held without charge and without trial. His release from a new world bastille is one of the first consequences of the recent Quebec election, in which the Liberal party, discredited by the repressive measures taken by Mackenzie King's Liberal dominion government, lost control of the province.

Altho he was a victim of oppression, Houde's political activities were not palatable to Americans. The opposition to the draft that he and others stimulated in Quebec has intimidated the Canadian government to this day. Its army of draftees are held in limbo. The government will neither send them abroad to fight nor discharge them to work in war industry. This waste of man power places added burdens, both military and economic, on ourselves.

When he counseled his political followers not to take part in the national registration, Houde undoubtedly committed an offense for which he could and should have been tried. The Canadian government, however, lacked the courage to meet the issue in an orderly and legal manner. It locked up Houde without trial.

The Bastille, torn down a century and a half ago, still stands in the minds of men as an undying symbol of repression, not because it was a prison, but because it was a prison into which men were thrown without trial. It is a savage travesty upon history that governments who say and believe they are fighting to restore liberty to the world should open new bastilles.

THE DOUGLAS AIRPORT.

Airport engineers from the major air lines have selected the 1,038 acre field of the Douglas aircraft factory at Higgins and Mannheim roads as the most practical site for Chicago's post-war air terminal. A congressional subcommittee reported a week or so ago that Chicago's Municipal airport at 63d st. and Cicero av. may suffice for the first five years after the war, but must be expanded and modernized by then at least.

The Douglas field can be expanded easily to 3,000 acres, with 10,000 foot runways, because it lies in flat country surrounded by farms. The total cost of this airport, with expansion, would be about 25 million dollars. Anything like that number of acres at the site of the Municipal airport would add 50 million dollars to the city's original investment there, because there are more than 1,000 houses, schools, and churches, a railroad, and several streets in the way of expansion.

The army owns the Douglas field and the adjacent airplane factory. There is no reason to think that the army will want to operate this property in peace time for training or other purposes, but neither will it want the land to revert to farms and truck gardens so that it would have to be reconstructed from scratch in case another emergency called for a great military airport in this locality. The logical solution would be to turn it over to the state as an airport, so that it can be expanded, improved, and kept in service, ready for even larger planes than are in use at present, if the army needs it again.

No airport on the outskirts of the city can have the advantages offered by a lake front field contiguous to the loop, but the Douglas site seems to be the best of the alternate locations. The army has put an estimated 8 million dollars into land, ramps, taxiways, grading, drainage, sewage, and the four concrete runways, 5,500 to 5,700 feet long, at Douglas field. As a terminal, the Douglas port is ready for use, and the lake front site is not. The air lines have offered $1,200,000 toward a new terminal building for the Municipal airport and they ought to be glad to locate the same building at the Douglas tract, which their engineers have approved. By the time a lake front airport can be completed Chicago probably will have need of the additional landing facilities the Douglas field would provide.

If the state does not acquire it, the city corporation counsel's office sees no legal barriers to Chicago's acquisition of the Douglas tract. The cities and villages act provides that a city may buy property for an airport either within or without its corporate limits. The municipal airport authority act, invalidated by the Supreme court but scheduled for a rehearing soon, is not expected to affect Chicago's airport problems, however the decision goes.

It takes nearly as long for passengers to travel from the loop to the Municipal airport today as it will to fly from that field to Detroit or Des Moines after the war. An elevated superhighway would modernize that anachronism, but it will cost only a little more to build an equally good highway to the Douglas field and cut travel time from there to the loop to less than half an hour. The northwest super-highway is the only project of its type over which there is no controversy. It is therefore first on the list for post-war construction and will automatically serve the Douglas field. The same super-highway costs attach to proposals to locate the new airport in the Clearing or the Lake Calumet area.

LAST OF THE CHERRY SISTERS.

[New York Times.]

The death of the last of the Cherry sisters on Saturday brought back memories of one of the strangest episodes in the history of American vaudeville. The five sisters became famous, got enough money to visit the Chicago World's Fair of 1893 in style, paid off the mortgage on their Iowa farm and finally, in 1903, were able to retire because they had an act that was, by common consent, artistically the worst on any stage. Morally, it was swell. Nobody ever said that "The Gypsy's Warning," as presented by the Misses Cherry, was anything but good for the character. In every other way the act was so bad that all who saw it agreed that it was well worth the $1,000 a week that managers were said to have paid for it when it was in its incredible prime.

Maybe the laugh was on their side. Maybe the Cherry sisters knew better than the public did what was really going on. Be this as it may, they left behind an imperishable memory. And they gave more pleasure to their audiences than did many a performer who was merely almost good.

Select the answers which you consider best. The last problem counts five points. Then look for the correct answers below.

1. The word mezzanine should make one think of which number? 1½ 5 7½ 10
2. The chief ingredient in pretzels is Wheat Corn Rye Oats
3. Chives should make one think of which one of these? Food Liquor Fabric Disease
4. Which one of these organs of the body manufactures pepsin? Thyroid Liver Stomach Spleen
5. One pint of which one of the following in liquid form would weigh the most? Mercury Iron Lead Gold
6. Try to distinguish which of the following cities are north of New York City and which are south of it. You deserve one point for each correct judgment.

	North.	South.
London	.....	.....
Tokyo	.....	.....
Paris	.....	.....
Rome	.....	.....
Calcutta	.....	.....

Score yourself as follows: 0-2, poor; 3-6, average; 7-8, superior; 9-10, very superior. [Note—The last question counts five points.]

ANJOU AND MAINE.

The rapid sweep of American armies eastward from Brittany toward Paris has covered the provinces of Anjou and Maine, whose names are richly woven into the tapestry of French history and tradition. As designations of political divisions, these names have long been obsolete, but the revolution failed to wipe them out of the French mind. They may be difficult to find on modern maps, but they are much alive in French literature and regional lore.

A dynasty of English kings, called Angevin and also Plantagenet, sprang from the feudal lords of Anjou, and until 1205 the province belonged to the English crown. The county of Maine bequeathed its name to a state of the American Union.

The southern fringe of the liberated region includes a stretch of the celebrated chateau country, where country palaces of the ancient high nobility cluster in the valley of the Loire, preserved as national monuments that inspire architects and impress tourists. The most famous of these grand old piles which have influenced the designs of many pretentious edifices in this country—Blois, Chambord, Amboise, Chenonceaux, etc.—stand south of the Loire, and have not been shown on the war maps or mentioned in dispatches. But there are others north of the Loire, within the region thru which American tank columns have roared.

At Rambouillet, war-mapped as a place thru which the spearheads have darted close to Paris, is a chateau of royal history. Francis I. died there; kings who figure in the Dumas romances took refuge there in the religious wars; and Charles X., last of the Bourbons, abdicated there in 1830. Its game coverts have been reserved for shooting parties of the presidents of France.

SPEECH BY BUTLER.

"Your carriage waits without, O sire."
"Without?" I hopefully inquire.

"Yes, sire, without a bumper, rear;
Without pump, fan belt, timing gear;
Without a fender, front end, left;
And of a door, lately bereft.
Without the horn, the clutch, the brake;
Without the nameplate of the make;
Without a right sealed-beam headlight,
Required when one drives 'round at night.
Without coil, spark plugs, battery;
Without unstained upholstery;
Without the coat of Brewster green
Which once had such a lovely sheen.
Without oil, water, gas, or air;
Without a tool, without a spare.
In fact, m' lord, there's not a doubt
But that your carriage waits without!"

Loveliness at Night.

The night-blooming cereus was holding a reception, the hour midnight, and the guests such neighbors as could be notified; singly or in groups of twos, or threes, or more they moved along the quiet, tree-shaded streets to pay homage to this marvel in a neighbor's yard. There was a moon peering down thru the foliage as tho at a rival, but the magnificent blossom feared no rival; it made its presence felt and its perfume spread even to the sidewalk. "You never can tell just what night the beauty will choose," said the owner, hovering solicitously and unconsciously investing her prize with a personality. And the marvelously large blossom, slowly opening its perfumed white cup, was such a miracle of exquisite design that the onlookers were quiet as before a shrine. "Will there be another blossom?" some one asked. "O, no," said the owner, raptly, "it's too beautiful to do that twice." The ritual of inviting folks in to see the night-blooming cereus at its one occasion of blooming is an old custom, pure Americana. We who are older remember such occasions with nostalgia; when we were very young we walked a mile and a half on country roads to see the blossom in a lonely farmhouse. The midnight walk under cloud-curdled skies, with the moon slipping in and out, is our chief memory of the evening, and Shelley's lovely lines became reality.

That orbed maiden with white fire laden,
Whom mortals call the moon,
Glides glimmering o'er my fleecelike floor,
By the midnight breezes strewn;——"

Blessings on an old school reader that included "The Cloud" in its pages. S'Amuser.

THE ROAD RUNNER.

(A Brookfield Ballad.)

For unrewarded exercise
The droll road runner wins the prize!
When on a dusty, country lane
He runs with all his might and main,
For in his silly cowardice
A buggy seems like nemesis,
And mile on mile he flees in fear
Of nameless horrors in the rear
While, all the time, he need but fly
To either side to let it by.
If you're pursued by troubles, too,
Just step aside and let them thru!

TOO LITTLE MEAT AND DROPSY.

FATHERS and mothers of America may rest easy on one point—namely, that our warrior sons will not be subject to the same type of swelling of the tissues which has been observed among many of the prisoners captured by our forces.

Nutritional edema may appear whenever protein in the diet is inadequate or missing entirely. Water collects beneath the skin, chiefly the extremities. At times the abdomen and the hands may be involved. If this situation persists for long, certain changes may occur which will be difficult to overcome.

This disorder is not new and physicians have known about it for a century or more. It is related that many of the soldiers in Napoleon's army, on the retreat from Moscow in 1812, encountered it.

Those who were engaged in European relief subsequent to World War I., saw many children who appeared chubby and perfectly well. Unskilled observers stated that they were in good flesh. They weren't at all. The plumpness was fluid and they were starved for nitrogenous edibles. In addition, all suffered from marked weakness.

During famine conditions anywhere, dropsy will be a prominent complaint. It is not a disease that can be cured by orange juice and lemons. Citrus fruits remedy scurvy, not the puffing due to poorly balanced menus. This emphasizes anew the importance of maintaining a steady flow of meat, not only to the armed forces but to all workers among the civilian population. We can destroy efficiency about as readily with huge amounts of food, improperly proportioned, as we can by starvation.

Symptoms may be ameliorated by restoring the blood protein to normal. The best and quickest way to accomplish this is to provide well planned meals. At the outset, plasma may be given directly into a vein. The meat ration, which is started at a low level, may be increased gradually until the quantity in the circulation is sufficient. Within a few days water will begin to leave the limbs, which will regain their normal contour by degrees. As we would expect, strength will return as the liquid departs and the diet is corrected.

One of the best things we can do for our boys who are in the hands of the enemy is to supply them with protein foods thru the Red Cross. This has been accomplished in part but will need to be persisted in religiously. We must recall that famine swelling is not a vitamin deficiency.

On the home front, housewives must see to it that their families are not neglected in this respect. Standing in line at the market is wearing, but the dividends paid in good health makes the effort worth while. When our present day youngsters reach maturity, we do not want them to be burdened with the discouraging aftermath of malnutrition in childhood.

MASSAGE.

D. S. writes: If a person is following a reducing diet closely, will daily massage be of any value in banishing excess poundage?

REPLY.

The procedure will bring as much nutriment into the parts as it will carry away waste. A good way to keep muscles in tone, when exercise cannot be employed.

FOUNDATIONS.

Mrs. B. writes: Is it advisable for women to wear girdles?

REPLY.

The tight lacing of our grandmothers was anything but comfortable and healthful. Many a liver was squeezed to the point of suffocation—poor functioning. A well fitting, nonconstricting support is recommended for most women.

THEY MOVE US.

J. K. writes: What are the functions of the muscles?

REPLY.

They make possible all our movements. Some are under the control of the will [voluntary]; others [involuntary] are governed by the sympathetic nervous system. There are usually two opposing sets. For example, one will close the hand; another will open it.

FOOT SIZE.

M. W. writes: What governs the size of the feet?

REPLY.

Heredity is the dominant factor. This presupposes that the endocrine system is functioning normally. In acromegaly, however, the extremities may be grossly enlarged because disease has injured the pituitary gland.

—Bob P. Heim.

Comedy of Errors.

A group of war wives was dining in female quiet at an Italian restaurant the other night when one of the girls happened to mention that it was her husband's birthday. A colonel and a major, sitting at an adjacent table, overheard part of the remark and called across, "Birthday? Whose birthday is it?" Thinking it too involved for casual explanation, the girl glibly replied, "My sister's!" and pointed to the tall blonde across the table. At this the waiters began to carol "Happy birthday to you," the management brought on a slice of cake complete with candles, and a couple of civilian wolves at a near-by table broke out a magnum of imported champagne for a toast all around. No one was any wiser when the party broke up. It was all right with the blonde, too, for her birthday falls on Feb. 29, and she claims the celebration made up for the parties she missed in the last 24 years.

Post-War Prospects.

There is a lot of talk, and deep scientific study, going around these days about how to readjust a returning soldier. No one seems to have given a second thought to readjusting the poor civilian, but we have an idea things are going to be pretty tough on us.

This profound observation was prompted by the sight of an army lieutenant at a Grant park concert one of those hot nights. He had a girl on each arm, and, hooked over his belt, was a clothes hanger. On the clothes hanger was draped his jacket. Not only will the home front have to get used to hearing jackets called blouses, as this gentleman undoubtedly refers to his, but what is such sudden tidiness going to do to our morale?

Are we civilians, too, going to be forced to pick up our clothes, to shine our shoes twice a day, to pinch off the glowing end of a cigaret and step on it, then crumble the cigaret stub until the tobacco goes one way, the paper another?

Every home that boasts a soft mattress and a returning soldier at the same time will have to get rid of one or the other, and the soldier probably will win. Husbands will say, winningly, "Do you mind, dear, if I insert two strong pine boards between the mattress and the springs?" and sons will say, "Really, mother, must you use these feather beds any longer?"

Then there are all those men who from now on are going to insist on washing their own clothes. That is going to be a great hardship on the feminine front. Not only will they contend they get the clothes cleaner, which they probably do, but they probably will want to substitute a 50 gallon oil drum over an oil burner for an electric washing machine.

Any home that does not have a shower might as well crumble now and avoid verbal terror after the armistice. Water for the shower preferably should come from an inverted steel helmet full of holes. It must always be cold, except for veterans who have held exalted rank, such as the army colonel who plugs the sidecar of his motorcycle with lead, fills it with water, and heats the whole with a blow torch.

And those fine, workable modern can openers that tear neither your fingers nor the can must go. In their place every home must install those dear little triangular steel pieces, so small that only the fingernails can clutch them, that are given out with C rations. Our men have become accustomed to them. They dearly love them. A bayonet also should have a place on every kitchen shelf.

A jest? Don't be silly. Consider this letter from a Nebraska sailor in the Seabees in the Pacific.

"To tell the truth, home the way I knew it doesn't seem so comfortable now. To be comfortable when I get home again I'll have to sprinkle water in the bed, throw mud on the floor, and get some old rusty tin cans to eat out of. Also, I now like to sleep on bamboo poles."

WHY SEN. CLARK LOST.

Benton, Ill., Aug. 18.—Sen. Bennett Clark of Missouri has been defeated for renomination and he attributes his defeat to the activities of the CIO. He was opposed by the CIO and the New Dealers because he had not supported Roosevelt's foreign policy before Pearl Harbor. Personally I have always admired Sen. Clark and he could have been renominated if he had stood by his guns and defended his record rather than apologizing for it and trying to climb back on Roosevelt's coat tails. He would have won the nomination had he stumped his state, denouncing the CIO and the philosophy of the New Deal and charging that they were trying to purge him. He could have told his constitutents that prior to Pearl Harbor he had done everything in his power to keep us out of war and he had no apologies to offer. It is interesting to note that the soldier's vote was two to one in his favor. His soft pedal campaign left him high and dry and it is his own fault. S. M. WARD.

CHARGE IT TO SIDNEY'S SLUSH FUND.

Hammond, Ind., Aug. 14.—I have just heard an announcement made by one of our regular Sunday night news commentators, that Mr. Roosevelt's trip to the Hawaiian and Aleutian Islands involved a cost of approximately 26 million dollars.

Mr. Roosevelt until just recently, chose to ignore the Pacific war, and since it has been progressing in our favor for some time, under the guidance of men trained for the job, the reason for this extensive trip by the man who said he "would not campaign in the usual political sense" should be perfectly obvious to every one. The bill for this 26 million dollar trip should be paid from the Democratic campaign fund. R. K.

BRITISH POSTOFFICE ON GUADALCANAL.

Chicago, Aug. 18.—An editorial in yesterday's TRIBUNE, entitled "America and Island Bases," states that "Americans probably will want to hold Guadalcanal in memory of the heroism of its captors."

I have strong doubt about their ability. The British crown agency has recently opened two postoffices on Guadalcanal Island. One is located at Lunga. The other, a new one, is called Guadalcanal. The stamps bear a profile of the king of England, inscribed British Solomon Islands. The values run from ½d to 5 shillings. S. HYMAN.

NO TIME FOR CELEBRATION.

Los Angeles, Cal., Aug. 14.—Instead of all this talk and planning about closing up shop and blowing off steam when V-day in Europe comes, how about keeping our shirts on, sticking soberly on the job, and putting our backs into helping those one million boys in the Pacific get home the sooner? WM. B. HOLT.

HOW MR. ROOSEVELT AIDED VETERANS.

Rantoul, Ill., Aug. 11.—New Dealers continually are claiming that the Republicans were responsible for the veterans of the World war being in bread lines and selling apples on street corners while they and their leader, President Roosevelt, were the ones who rescued the veterans from these dire conditions.

What is President Roosevelt's record on veteran's legislation? He vetoed no fewer than 18 bills passed by congress to aid veterans. On May 22, 1935, President Roosevelt set a historical precedent by appearing in person before a joint session of congress and reading aloud his veto of the soldiers' bonus bill. No other President had ever before vetoed a bill in this way. An hour later the house overrode the veto, 322 to 98. The senate, however, did not vote to override the veto and so the soldiers' bonus was held up until the next session of congress.

On Jan. 20, 1936, congress again went to bat for the veterans and passed the soldiers' bonus bill the second time. The vote in the senate was 74 for and 16 against. In the house the vote was 346 for and 59 against. Again President Roosevelt vetoed the bill. He was afraid the nation couldn't stand such a financial burden at the time. [Times do change, tho, don't they?] Within 45 minutes the house overrode the veto by a vote of 336 to 61. On Jan. 27, five days later, the senate also voted to override the veto. Thus the soldiers got the bonus in spite of Mr. Roosevelt and not because of him. A SOLDIER.

THAT JOB FOR HENRY.

River Forest, Ill., Aug. 18.—Mr. X. P. McBunklin says in his Aug. 8 letter that Henry Wallace ought to be given the job of chief agricultural dictator of Puerto Rico to show the Puerto Ricans how to grow their own food. I do not believe that Corn Wallace is capable of showing the Puerto Ricans how to grow their own food, but I do believe that he could show them how to grow hybrid corn and then plow it under after it is grown.

VICTIMS OF CIO IN CONGRESS BID TO HOUSE PROBE

Starnes, Costello Asked to Give Testimony.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 21.—Members of congress, including House Speaker Rayburn, who have felt the weight of the CIO political action committee's slush fund in primary elections, were invited to give evidence today by the special house committee on campaign expenditures.

The group also decided to quiz Sidney Hillman, chairman of the PAC, at an open hearing next Monday. The Russian born labor chieftain, who has long defied a Dies committee subpena for his organization's financial records, has promised to appear, Chairman Anderson [D., N. M.] announced.

The PAC did its utmost to defeat Speaker Rayburn in the primaries but failed. It succeeded in defeating Representatives Costello [D., Cal.] and Starnes [D., Ala.], two members of the Dies committee, who were also invited to testify. The latter two are members of a special subcommittee of the Dies committee which is conducting an investigation of the communistic aspects of the Hillman organization.

Kleberg Is Witness.

Representatives Lesinski [D., Mich.] and Bennett [R., Mo.] were also named by Anderson as prospective witnesses who could give first hand information of the PAC activities. Rep. Kleberg [D., Tex.], who was defeated in the primary, testified in executive session today. While the PAC opposed him, his defeat was attributed mostly to a revelation that one of his office employes was forced to kick back part of his salary.

John J. Caddell of Decatur, Ala., was selected as a special attorney to conduct the committee's inquiry into allegations of illegal campaign expenditures.

Officials to Be Called.

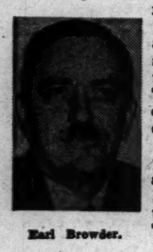
A number of legal problems must be probed by the committee, including the question whether labor unions may use their influence in primaries. Some committee members, Anderson said, think such activities are barred by the Smith-Connally act.

A motion was made in executive session to investigate Hillman's activities at the Democratic convention in Chicago on the basis that the convention was, in a sense, a primary. This was ruled out of order.

The Dies subcommittee meanwhile proceeded with plans to summon a number of high government officials for questioning about their alleged collaboration with the PAC in violation of the Hatch act, which prohibits electioneering by federal employes. The committee has voluminous evidence showing frequent telephonic and telegraphic communications between Hillman and his aids and 71 government officeholders, including two cabinet members and several White House staff executives.

TRUMAN LAUDS DAILY WORKER FOR ANALYSIS

New York, Aug. 21—[Special].—The Daily Worker, official Communist organ, has received praise and an expression of "appreciation" from Sen. Truman, Democratic Vice Presidential candidate.



Earl Browder.

In a full-page promotional ad appearing in the Sunday edition of the newspaper, Truman wrote: "Appreciate very much your letter of July 27, enclosing a copy of an article by Adam Lapin. I think he has made an excellent analysis of the situation, and I appreciate it most highly . . . You have my permission to print my comment."

The paper, a mouthpiece for Earl Browder, did not indicate the nature of the story sent Truman, altho Lapin, Daily Worker correspondent, wrote a number of stories after the Democratic convention praising Truman's record.

DEWEY IS TOLD HE'LL WIN MOST OF NEW ENGLAND

Albany, N. Y., Aug. 21 (AP).—The prediction that the Republicans would carry most, if not all, of New England today was made to Gov. Dewey, G. O. P. Presidential nominee by Horace A. Hildreth, Republican candidate for governor of Maine. Hildreth, who spent 3 hours with Dewey, later told reporters that either Dewey or his running mate, Gov. Bricker of Ohio, would visit the state on a campaign trip.

Following up his Labor day proclamation of Saturday, Dewey sent a message to the New York state federation of labor convening today in Syracuse, in which he said the nation would depend on labor leaders for a "major contribution" towards solving post-war problems.

A way must be found, he declared, to provide "not doles but jobs for all."

THE QUESTION.

What qualities in men would you suggest girls look for in choosing a husband?

WHERE ASKED.

Wimpy's cafe, Hyde Park blvd. at Harper av.

THE ANSWERS.

Ralph Stonebraker, salesman, 5221 Woodlawn av.—It's most important to look for lasting qualities instead of such things as automobiles and good looks. I think a man should be understanding, and have a certain amount of education, and background. Many young people rush into marriage without realizing that it's for life.

Mrs. W. G. Black, retired, Del Prado hotel—A girl should seek goodness of heart—not appearance. Another vital factor is that the man should be considerate—able to see beyond himself. Those are the most important qualities and if a man has them he's bound to be a good companion and also a good husband.

Mrs. J. H. Hayden, retired, Bryson hotel—Affection plays a great part in a happy marriage, so I would be sure the man was loving. He should have a fine character, ambition, and ability. Being able to work and maintain a home is another good point. Adequate income always makes things easier for those who marry.

Bertha Scherr, school teacher, Galesville, Wis.—An ideal life's companion should be trustworthy, faithful, and have a certain pride in himself. Tho it isn't necessary that he be wealthy, he should have the ability to apply himself diligently, earn a comfortable living, and be able to shoulder responsibilities.

Tom Amlin, salesman, 4028 Moody av.—A wise girl will choose a fellow who can mix with her friends as well as his own. If he can't they will see little of each other after marriage—which is conducive to drifting apart. If the girl is interested in sports she should find a fellow who enjoys them because similar interests are necessary.

Mrs. Virgil Bock, housewife, 5009 Dorchester av.—Disposition should be first on the list. If I wanted children I'd pick a man who would be a good father and an understanding parent. A man's financial condition is important. Tho money may seem a minor matter, you can't pay the grocery bill without it, and it becomes important.

LEADERS OF AFL MEET TO STUDY POST-WAR AIMS

Post-war problems of reconversion, contract cancelation, employment, and unemployment will be considered by the executive council of the American Federation of Labor, which opened its mid-summer meeting in the Drake hotel yesterday. The council also will prepare its report to be submitted to the AFL convention which convenes at New Orleans, La., Nov. 20, William Green, AFL president, said yesterday.

Daniel Tobin, president of the AFL teamsters union and vice president of the AFL, announced after a press conference held by Green, that the executive board of his union, which he said had a paid up membership of 637,000, had voted unanimously yesterday morning to indorse President Roosevelt and Sen. Truman for election. He said the action was taken "even tho the teamster's executive board has two Republican members."

At a banquet last night, however, Tobin said the 4th term indorsement was not binding on any union member.

John Fewkes, former president of the AFL teachers union, who is now chief of the industrial health and safety section of the war production board, reported to the council that industrial accidents have been increasing alarmingly. He said there had been more than 4 million fatal and nonfatal industrial accidents since Pearl Harbor, including 212,000 cases where workers were permanently disabled.

Green, in answer to a query regarding the AFL's political stand during the coming national elections, said the AFL council "would deal with the political situation in its own way." He reiterated that the "AFL has alway followed a nonpartisan political policy."

G. O. P. WARNINGS SENT TO 50,000 ON FUND RACKET

Anti-New Deal Cash Is Diverted by Schemers.

BY GEORGE TAGGE.

Racketeers are cashing in heavily on sentiment against the New Deal by soliciting campaign funds that never reach the war chests of the Republican organization or its candidates, G. O. P. leaders said yesterday. Some assert unauthorized collections are at an unprecedented height.

Werner W. Schroeder, national committeeman for Illinois, heads both of the main fund drives. Yesterday, in response to a deluge of complaints, his office was mailing out 50,000 letters warning against racketeers.

If a person wants to contribute to the state campaign, Schroeder said, he should make out a check payable to the Republican Citizens Finance Committee of Illinois, T. R. Parrish, secretary-treasurer. Checks should be mailed to 80 E. Jackson blvd.

National Fund Limited by Law.

To help the national ticket checks should be made out to the Republican national committee and mailed to the same address. Statutory limit on the nation-wide total to be raised by the national committee is $3,000,000, of which Illinois is expected to provide about $415,000.

Schroeder is acting under James S. Kemper, chairman of the G. O. P. national finance committee.

Those wanting to aid certain state, county, or congressional candidates should follow the rule of mailing checks—in this case directly to the candidate, Schroeder said. The name of nearly every candidate has been used in racketeering appeals. Some business men reported telephone calls purporting to be from Sen. Brooks in Chicago, while he was in Washington. In one case, the business man had a check for $500 awaiting a messenger; in another instance a check for $450 was made out—before the donors decided to investigate.

Racketeers Use Messengers.

"The tip-off in every case is sending a messenger for the check or cash," Schroeder said. "Business men have been surprisingly careless in handing over money to strangers. We cannot afford to have anti-New Deal ammunition wasted."

Party leaders do not object to ward committeemen raising money for local organizations thru ward picnics and the like if headquarters is notified of the effort and donors are told the purpose of the funds.

The Better Business bureau and Chicago Association of Commerce will answer questions as to specific solicitations.

WIVES OF YANKS IN COURT DAILY FOR TWO MONTHS

Child Neglect Cases Heard by Judge.

Failure of a large number of war marriages in Chicago is being reflected daily in Women's court, it was disclosed yesterday by Judge Irwin B. Clorfene, who has heard one or more child neglect and abandonment cases involving wives of service men every day for two months.

One of the sordid stories was related yesterday by Pvt. Richard Markvart, 26, who said he had heard thru letters from friends that his wife, Eleanor, 24, was neglecting their two children, Adrienne, 5, and Richard, 4. He obtained an emergency furlough in Maryland and arrived here Sunday morning. Unable to locate his home, children, or wife, he enlisted the aid of Desplaines street police, who discovered Mrs. Markvart in a tavern at 1163 Madison st. Later the two children were found at 1451 Monroe st., where they had been left alone the day before when the mother moved to a new address, 1651 Madison st.

Accuses Her of Affair.

Mrs. Markvart was arraigned on a charge of disorderly conduct, which was changed to one of contributing to the dependency of her two children. The soldier accused his wife of living with another soldier, with whom she said she was in love. She said she had lived with him three or four days but knew only his first name.

Judge Clorfene ordered a social service, hygiene, and psychiatric examination for the woman and continued the hearing until Aug. 31. The soldier told the court his friends were willing to care for the children.

Disorderly conduct charges were dismissed against Mrs. Catherine Roe, 23, of 3536 Monroe st., yesterday when her landlady, Mrs. Ida Demes, testified that a charge of neglecting her children was the "spite work" of neighbors.

"Mrs. Roe took good care of the two children, David 3, and Michael, 2," Mrs. Demes said.

Husband Is in Service.

The woman's husband is a private in a New York camp. Mrs. Roe and her two children will live with Mrs. Mary Holderness of 4113 Gladys av., grandmother of Mrs. Roe, the court was promised.

Mrs. Audrey Grimm, 23, who was charged with contributing to the dependency of her 9 months old son Richard, told the court that she had no intentions of deserting her child. She and her husband, Richard, who was without work, had been sleeping in Lincoln park after being evicted by a landlady for nonpayment of rent. Wednesday night, she testified, they met Mrs. Clara Schroeder, 936 Irving Park rd., in the park and she offered to take the child until they found a place to live and work.

Her case was continued until Aug. 31 and the judge ordered a social service investigation and a psychiatric examination for her.

Richard Grimm, 30, the husband, was seized later in the day by federal narcotics agents at Madison and Loomis sts. He was taken to the Warren av. police station. Grimm told authorities that he would have appealed to police for his youngster except for his past. He said he was sentenced from Louisville, Ky., in 1939 to 3 years in prison for possession of narcotics, and served 27 months.

23 VIOLATIONS OF U. S. DRUG ACT LAID TO FERNEL

Dr. Jean Paul Fernel.

Dr. Jean Paul Fernel, 54, former self-styled plastic surgeon, target of numerous lawsuits charging malpractice, whose license was revoked three times, was named yesterday in a criminal information filed before Federal Judge Michael L. Igoe that charged 23 counts of violating the federal food and drug act.

The action alleges that Dr. Fernel, who lives at 1543 N. Wells st., has engaged in a mail order business, purveying medical preparations that the government charges are misbranded.

Dr. Fernel was found guilty last November of similar charges, was sentenced to one year in the county jail, and fined $500. He is now out on bail pending an appeal to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals.

If convicted, Fernel faces a year's imprisonment and $1,000 fine on each of the 23 counts.

CIRCUS IS FREE TO 10,000 BOND BUYERS TONIGHT

Ten thousand persons who buy war bonds on the pay roll savings plan at large war plants will attend the opening performance tonight of Ringling Brothers and Barnum and Bailey circus at Soldiers' field.

The 10,000 tickets were turned over by the pay roll savings division of the treasury department to minute men at war plants who in turn presented them to selected bond buyers. Tonight's initial performance will be restricted to bond buyers who have received tickets thru plant minute men.

The special events division of the treasury department will present a block of 300 circus tickets, good for specified nights, to any organization which buys $25,000 in bonds. Organizations must pay the federal tax on tickets.

FORMER BANKER FREMONT HOY, 89, DIES IN IOWA

Fremont Hoy, 89, former president of the Fox River Valley State bank at McHenry and vice president of the Ringwood bank at Ringwood, McHenry county, died Sunday at the home of a son, Dwight, in Des Moines, Ia.

Hoy was indicted in May, 1923, by a McHenry county grand jury on charges of embezzlement and larceny in connection with the promotion of a scheme to grow artificial pearls in Fox river clams with which, it was alleged, he defrauded investors of $300,000. He was sentenced to 10 years in prison after a trial at Woodstock March 8, 1924.

He was paroled in October, 1925, after Charles P. Barnes, former county judge of McHenry county, and Vincent S. Lumley, former state's attorney, had been tried on charges of conspiring to railroad Hoy and a son, Clarence, to prison. Barnes and Lumley were convicted at their first trial, but a new trial resulted in an acquittal.

The body will be returned to Woodstock for services at 2 p. m. today in the chapel at 227 Judd st. Burial will be in Oakland cemetery at Woodstock.

WE WERE JUST SITTING, 16 TELL POLICE IN RAID

Nine women and seven men found sitting idly in the rear of a vacant store at 605 Briar pl. yesterday were charged by police with being patrons of a gambling place. Jerome Katz, 43, of 3434 Broadway, was booked as the keeper. They will be arraigned in Women's court tomorrow. Detectives Edward Ohayer and Edward Anderson, who said they were kept waiting 10 minutes after they knocked on the door, said they believed the men and women had been playing poker, altho there was not a chip in sight. "We were just sitting there," some of those arrested told police.

DIES IN CLOSED GAS STATION.

DEATH NOTICES

—In Memoriam—

SALERNO—Dr. Marie G. [Tortoriello] Salerno. In loving tribute to a dear sister and a fine physician, who passed away two years ago today.
Friends may think we have forgotten
when at times they see us smile,
Little do they know the heartache that our smiles hide all the while.
How often do we tread the path that leads us to the grave
Where rests the one we loved so well, but whom we could not save.
Long days, long nights you bore your pain waiting for a cure, but all in vain;
God saw that you were suffering and that the hills were hard to climb,
So He closed your weary eyes and whispered, peace be thine.
"NEVER-FORGETTING BROTHERS."

TORTORIELLO—[Dr. Marie G. Salerno]. In loving memory of beloved wife and mother, who passed away two years ago today.
There's many a lonely heartache,
There's many a silent tear,
God only knows how we miss you
As it ends this second sad year.

Geneva Plans Gay Party and Fashion Show

BY JUDITH CASS.

THERE will be music and gayety in Geneva Thursday night when long time residents of Geneva, St. Charles, and Wayne meet at one of their favorite gathering places, the Little Traveler, for a dinner and fashion show by moonlight, starlight, or floodlight, if the night is fair, or by candlelight indoors if it is not. Dinner will be served in the courtyard, and the band will play on the roof, according to present plans, and the evening will be one of the few occasions since Pearl Harbor that neighbors in that area have gathered together in any number for a purely social occasion.

Some of the prettiest young maids and matrons in the Fox River valley will act as models, among them Miss Joanne Norris, Miss Sue Renwick, Miss Mary Carpenter, Miss Barbara Wiener, Mrs. Stanton Clemens, and Mrs. Herbert Nye. Miss Norris, who will enter Stephens college next month, is of debutante age, but she and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lester Norris, have decided against a party this year.

Some of those who have made reservations for the evening's fun are Mrs. William J. Calhoun, Mrs. Wirth Dunham, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Stanton, Mrs. George Overton, the Herbert P. Zimmermans, the Paul Moores, the John L. Doles, Mrs. William D. Bangs; and the Jess B. Hawleys, whose daughter, Miss Carla Hawley, also was invited to be among the models.

Several small parties are being given for Miss Hawley, who is to bow at a tea-dance Saturday at the Racquet club. Mrs. Hawley's sister-in-law, Mrs. Ross Clarke, and her mother, Mrs. Harry Hobson, of Topeka, Kas., are giving a luncheon Friday for the debutante. The Andrew D. Berkeys gave a sailing and buffet supper on board their yacht Sunday for Miss Hawley, and Mrs. John W. Esmond will entertain for her at the North Avenue Day Nursery benefit fashion show and cocktail party Aug. 29 at Marshall Field & Co.

Wedding News.

When Ensign Horace Davis Whitehouse arrived at home unannounced Saturday morning after a 7,000 mile trip by air from the South Pacific, he and his fiancee, Miss Lindley Parker, started at once to make plans for their wedding, which will take place at 5 p. m. Saturday in Christ church, Winnetka. Invitations to the ceremony and reception following in the Michigan Shores club are being telephoned by the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Monroe Parker of Evanston. Ensign Whitehouse, a son of Mr. and Mrs. Horace Whitehouse, also of Evanston, has seen action in the Marshalls, and at Truk, Saipan, Guam, and Hollandia since going to sea 10 months ago. He is transferring from destroyer to submarine duty, and after a 45 days' leave he and his bride will be at home in New London, Conn.

Miss Lois Leslie Parker will be her sister's only attendant, and if Cadet Philip Whitehouse of the naval air corps is able to come from Wooster, O., he will serve as best man. Ushering will be Charles Bliss, Ensign John MacPherson Clapp of Savannah, Ga.; Lt. [j. g.] Robert E. Lee of Covington, Ky., and Lt. William Morgenroth of Virginia.

Mrs. Philip Danielson is giving a luncheon and miscellaneous shower today for Miss Parker, and Mrs. Johnston Bowman is giving a kitchen shower tomorrow. Miss Margaret Walsh and Mrs. George Sollitt are entertaining at the Sollitt home Thursday night, and Mrs. John Halla has planned a bathroom and closet shower for Friday afternoon. There will be a number of other parties for Ensign Whitehouse and his bride when they return from a wedding trip.

Other Romantic News.

From New York City comes news of the engagement of Miss Cornelia Trowbridge, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Mason Trowbridge of that city and West Cornwall, Conn., formerly of Chicago, to Lt. Robinson Burroughs Gourley of the army air forces, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Lyle Gourley of Highland Park. Miss Trowbridge is widely connected in Chicago, as her father is a grandson of the late Roswell B. Mason, mayor of Chicago at the time of the great fire in 1871. She was graduated this year from Vassar, and Lt. Gourley obtained his degree from the University of Colorado engineering school. The wedding will take place Sept. 2 in the Trowbridges' summer home at West Cornwall.

In a hurriedly arranged ceremony Miss Lolita Kingsbury and Tech. Sgt. Kenneth W. Seyffer, son of the Charles J. Seyffers of Newtonville, Mass., will be married at 5 p. m. today in the Glencoe home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. William W. Kingsbury. Miss Barbara Brown of Cleveland, Miss Kingsbury's roommate at Bradford Junior college, will be the maid of honor, and serving as bridesmaids will be a Bradford classmate, Miss Eleanor Mayer, and Mrs. Raymond M. Gault. Little Kay Kingsbury will be flower girl for her sister.

Mr. and Mrs. Seyffer are here for their son's wedding, at which Mr. Seyffer will act as best man. Following a short wedding trip Sgt. Seyffer and his bride will be at home at Camp McCoy, Wis.

Miss Jean Elizabeth MacFarland, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Dudley MacFarland of Northfield, will become the bride of Lt. William Bain Becker of the navy in a ceremony at 8:30 o'clock tonight in the First Congregational church of Winnetka. A reception will follow in the home of the bride's parents. Miss Nancy MacFarland will be her sister's maid of honor and Lt. Andrew Sinclair of Providence, R. I., will serve as best man. Lt. Becker and his bride will live temporarily near the navy air base at Willow Grove, Pa., after a short wedding trip in the east. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Charles Becker of St. Charles, Mo.

Women in War Work

By Dorothy Johnson

Marking the 80th anniversary today of the American Red Cross, 12 WACs on duty in the Chicago recruiting office, room A-333, 166 W. Van Buren st., will be at the Red Cross blood donor center, 5 N. Wabash av., at 10 a. m. to make donations to the plasma pool. The WACs have chosen this time for their latest contributions because combat operations in France have caused a steadily increasing demand for plasma. Directors of the center said last week that contributions are 2,000 pints short of the Chicago chapter quota.

"For us a blood donation is merely a minor inconvenience," one of the WACs said yesterday. "For the men on the battle fronts it may well mean life or death. Certainly this is no time for donations to be falling off."

The Chicago chapter of the Red Cross, the largest in the nation, will mark the anniversary with almost 100,000 volunteers, most of them women, on duty in the various branches of war time service.

Mrs. George F. Hartford, midwest regional director of Bundles for America, 14 N. Michigan av., has announced that Bundles' clothing distribution center will be closed today thru Thursday to permit volunteers at the center, which reconditions used clothing to be given to needy families of service men, to take inventory. Mrs. Bruce A. Young heads the committee.

All branches of Bundles in 14 middlewestern states send clothing, knitted articles, and layettes to Chicago headquarters. During the closed period members here will arrange a convenient method of issuing winter clothing that has been packed away all summer.

Service men's wives desiring clothing will be welcome at Bundles headquarters beginning next Monday.

Mrs. Arthur Schuyler Carpender, wife of Rear Adm. Carpender, commandant of the 9th naval district, recently was named to the honorary committee of the Chicago branch of Bundles.

The beige shantung off duty dress which WACs in the United States began to wear this summer during recreation hours on or off duty and on leave or furlough is a service uniform among army women stationed in India.

When the dresses arrived in the eastern theater in June, permission went with them for WACs to don them as work day uniforms. Another regulation permits the women to shorten the sleeves above the elbow for summer wear. A winter time counterpart of the off duty dress has been styled and is being manufactured for the army quartermaster corps.

First Lt. Robin Elliott of Buda, Ill., one of the WACs who modeled the dress when it made its initial appearance in May, now is secretary and administrative assistant to Maj. Gen. F. F. Scowden in England. Gen. Scowden is responsible for supplies for territory occupied by allied armies and is stationed at supreme headquarters of the allied expeditionary forces in the European theater of operations.

Women Lawyers of U. S. to Convene Here Sept. 8

The National Association of Women Lawyers will convene in Chicago Friday, Sept. 8, for its 45th annual meeting. Convention headquarters will be the Knickerbocker hotel. Among guest speakers at the two day session will be Judge Camille Kelly of Memphis, Tenn.; Stephen E. Hurley and Henry C. Warner, presidents, respectively, of the Chicago and the Illinois State Bar associations, and Mme. Wei Tao Ming, wife of the Chinese ambassador.

Embassy Aid Will Speak for Veterinary Auxiliary

Mme. Julia Marie S. Golbjornsen of the Norwegian embassy in Washington, D. C., will speak to the women's auxiliary of the American Veterinary Medical association at a luncheon tomorrow in the Palmer House. The auxiliary has a program of activities planned concurrent with the association's convention, opening today and continuing thru Thursday.

Virginia Smith Will Become Bride Tonight

St. Elisabeth's church in Glencoe will be the scene of the marriage at 8:30 o'clock tonight of Miss Virginia Elizabeth Smith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Beckett Smith of Glencoe, to Lt. Herbert Carson Darbee of the army air forces. Today is the birthday anniversary of the bride's grandfather, Clifton Clark Coldren of Glencoe, and the heirloom pearl necklace which is being worn by tonight's bride was given to Mr. Coldren's late wife on their wedding day.

Here for the ceremony and reception in the Skokie Country club are Lt. Darbee's parents, the William Darbees of New Preston, Conn.; the bride's cousins, Mrs. Bruce H. Roberts and her daughter, Mary of Washington, D. C., and her great-aunts, Mrs. Franklin P. Wright of Council Bluffs, Ia., and Mrs. Curtis Dey of Iowa City, Ia. Mrs. George O. Serini will serve as matron of honor; Ensign Marjorie Rump, who came from her post in New Orleans, La., as maid of honor, and Miss Doris Keckley and Miss Joan Hyatt, as bridesmaids. The bridegroom's father will be best man. Lt. Darbee and his bride will live in Brownsville, Tex., near his post at the Harlingen army air field.

Announcement is made of the marriage last Saturday of Miss Dorothy Hebberd, daughter of Mrs. Walter Edward Hebbard of Winchester, Mass., and Winfield Noble Moulds, nephew of John Moulds of Chicago. The ceremony took place in the Beverly Hills church, Alexandria, Va., with a reception following in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harold A. Stone of Alexandria. The bride, who has been head teacher at the church's pre-school center for the last four years, had the bridegroom's young daughter, Elizabeth, as flower girl. Ernest Stevens of Chicago was his cousin's best man.

Mr. Moulds, a graduate of the University of Chicago's school of business, and his bride, a graduate of the Illman school of kindergarten and primary training at the University of Pennsylvania, will live in Dorchester av.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred E. Larson of Sycamore announce the marriage June 29 of their daughter, Ruth Exelyn, to Lt. Richard C. O'Hair of the army, son of Mr. and Mrs. Karl O'Hair of Paris, Ill. Lt. O'Hair and his bride, who attended the University of Illinois, are living at Fort Benning, Ga.

White Collar GIRL

BY RUTH MAC KAY

True or False?

One of the pairs of true or false statements at the beginning of Dorcas Campbell's "Careers for Women in Banking and Finance" is:

"Men and women in business are and always will be basically antagonistic.

"Men and women have come to respect the best qualities of each other and minimize the faults."

Which statement you consider true depends to some degree upon your own war time business experience.

"We had a hard time getting the old time men employes to accept women, especially if the women caught on quickly," a manufacturer said recently. "Now the men like having the women around and give them credit for doing a good job."

"Do they think of women as competitors or partners?" I asked.

"Partners as far as working together; competitors when it comes to holding jobs after the war. Men still intend to be the leaders in the bread-winning race," he added, "and I think they are going to be for a long, long time."

War Policy.

She answered the door;
Then yelled daughter Sadie:
"Our insurance man, Mom,
Now is a lady!"

AL SPONG.

Quotation from H. Dean Aubry: "Don't let that pent up feeling get you down. . . . Smash a window, ring the nearest fire alarm. . . . Then ask your boss for a raise!"

Success Story.

Thought you might be interested in the white collar girl who says she bluffed her way into a secretarial job five years ago in the publishing business. In a year she was doing layout and copywriting for some of the accounts—with no previous knowledge of the work.

Today she makes important decisions in the business, sells advertising for trade newspapers, writes columns for two different publications, and manages older men so well that they don't even know it! She has reared two sons—the older boy now 17 is in the navy—yet looks quite young and is little and cute.

To top off all this I discovered [when I came here from New York with my husband and took a temporary job] that she is an ideal person toward her employes—kind, considerate, and never bossy. And, she doesn't have any trouble dictating, either—knows just what she wants to say and says it.

Her name? Margaret Bonfield.

Dance Schools Hope to Slow Down Jitterbug

Dancing teachers of America are carrying on in spite of war shortages of shoes, spangles, and sweeties, according to Dorothy Donelson, Little Rock, Ark., instructor. Sweeties are lacking, she explained, because eligible dancing partners are in the service, leaving the girls to ballet and boogie alone. The teachers' main problem, she said, is to slow down the jive steps.

More than 300 dancing teachers of the United States and Canada are meeting at the Hamilton hotel for a three week normal course. They have been teaching the bandy twist, dig, bombershay, back-to-the-woods, and such steps all year and now are picking up new routines at the convention of the National Association of Dancing.

The teachers agree that America is stuck with the jitterbug routine. It cannot be killed, or even ignored, so they are trying to refine it, Miss Donelson, convention manager, said. She announced some of the violent gymnastics had been taken out of the dance, but not before teachers all over the nation had ruined their dispositions and arches trying to figure out substitute steps for such dangerous practices as tossing partners overhead.

"As long as we have jive music and juke boxes the American kids are going to dance what the music indicates," she claimed. "Ever since the Big Apple craze it's been some form of jitterbug dancing."

What about the dancing trends in the future? The masters are wondering about that, too. Some of their members now in service are sending notations back that American boys in uniform are beginning to like the folk dances, the jigs, and reels of various foreign countries. An Australian dance is being taught at the refresher course from directions sent back by a former dancing instructor. Before another month is out youngsters in Arkansas, Montana, Georgia, and the east will begin to do the Australian routine their teachers are learning in Chicago this week.

"We will be ready to teach any style dancing our boys prefer when they come home," Miss Donelson said. "If they want square dances, a combination of the rhumba and samba, or plain Irish jigs, that's what we will give them."

Secretly the dancing teachers hope the jitterbug dance will lose its popularity when enough male partners are available to make conservative ballroom dancing popular again.

Need to Fill Gaps in Library Service Is Cited at Parley

There are 35 million persons in the United States beyond the reach of public library extension service, Carleton B. Joeckel, dean of the University of Chicago graduate library school, said yesterday at the opening session of the school's ninth library institute.

"Filling extensive gaps in public library service," he asserted, "is the first major problem of library extension. This means devising ways and means by which nonlibrary areas can best be fitted into sensible patterns of library organization."

Dean Joeckel estimated that half the public libraries in the United States have annual incomes under $1,000, four-fifths have less than $4,000, and only 290 have $25,000 or more. These latter serve only 70 counties, he said, and consequently this unequal distribution of financial resources constitutes a second problem.

He proposed legislation requiring the establishment of public libraries by units of local government, but he admitted that before the task of library extension could be satisfactorily completed a sound framework would have to be set up.

"Complete library coverage and a minimum of library service, especially in those sparsely populated areas, are unlikely to be achieved without both federal and state systems of grants-in-aid to libraries," Dean Joeckel added.

Play Is All-Important to Child

For this typical youngster, play is no trivial matter, a fact which parents should understand. Mrs. Bevans discusses this question in her article today. [TRIBUNE Studio Photo.]

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

[Copyright: 1944: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

The side door slammed and a young mother crossed the lawn to her young son who sat laboriously and concentratedly filling a pail with sand.

"Come, honey, lunch is ready," his mother announced, whisking him unceremoniously to his feet.

"No, no, mommy!" cried 2 year old Billy, resisting vigorously.

"But you are only playing," she explained, "and lunch is ready."

"Only playing." How glibly those words fall from grownup lips. But play is no triyial affair to a child. It's a vital matter involving effort, struggle, accomplishment, and satisfaction. Just playing! It's a passionate pastime that begins when the baby is born and carries thru to manhood.

What grown person could be more serious than children at their play, than two small boys flying their kites, or running a train, backing up trucks, unloading them, working switches; or being pirates on adventure bent; or two little girls keeping house, putting their dolls to bed or tucking them into their carriages for a stroll; than bigger boys playing baseball, handball, hockey, wrestling, or boxing? All play, I'll admit, but not trifling. Extremely necessary and important. An integral part of their lives.

Sometimes when you see children who don't play you realize even more its importance. Play is the serious business of young lives. All young animals get it from their mothers. Not only is it serious, it is vital. Statistics have shown that little babies who have no one to play with them, no one to roll them and toss them, and play peek-a-boo with them, actually die of it. Whether it's the tumbling kind of infancy, the directed play of older children, the laughing or quiet pursuit of it, play is no superficial thing. It goes down to roots.

Aside from the fact that play is as much a necessity as food, clothing, or shelter, it is an important factor in teaching children things that nothing else can teach them. For instance, little children in building with blocks must exercise patience, accuracy, and invention; with dolls they often develop tenderness and protectiveness. With trucks, airplanes, and trains they learn mechanical facts and acquire dexterity, and these lead to keenness of observation.

In quiet games they learn concentration and to contain themselves until their turn comes. In athletic games they acquire not only bodily skills but also mental and emotional controls, the rules of the game, and a sense of fair play.

And not by any means least are those things children gain from having and playing with pets. They give love and get it from animals, and learn kindness, responsibility, gentleness, and companionableness. Does anything give you more delight than to see a puppy dog and a child rolling and tumbling together?

Pi Beta Phi Heads to Meet Friday for Leadership Session

Presidents of active chapters of Pi Beta Phi fraternity in this area will assemble Friday night in the Medinah club for a two day leadership school. This and similar sessions thruout the country replace the customary national convention, canceled as a coöperative measure with war transportation. The meeting here will be conducted by Miss Miriam E. Williams of Carthage, Eta province president, with the president elect, Mrs. John A. Sears of Evanston, assisting.

Among the chapter presidents attending will be Miss Margaret Hukill, representing the Pi Beta Phis of the University of Wisconsin; Miss Lois Wilson, Beloit college; Miss Virginia Robie, Lawrence college; Miss Virginia Weber, Monmouth; Miss Jean Brengle, Knox; Miss Martha Metzler, Northwestern university; Miss Joanne Patterson, University of Illinois, and Miss Margaret Duerr, James Millikin university.

Mailing Dates for Yule Gifts Overseas Told

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 21.—Christmas packages to all army and navy personnel overseas must be mailed between Sept. 15 and Oct. 15, the office of war information announced today.

Properly packed, wrapped, and addressed packages marked "Christmas parcel" must be mailed within that period to reach their destinations on time, the OWI said. Only one package may be sent by or for a person or concern to any one soldier or sailor in any week during the mailing period.

Parcels must not weigh more than five pounds each, wrapped, and must be no larger than 15 inches long and 36 inches in length and girth combined.

The OWI also disclosed results of a study of what American men and women in service overseas want most for Christmas gifts, asserting they prefer gifts which are not bulky or perishable, which cannot be obtained where the recipients are stationed and which remind them of families and friends.

Gifts popular with soldiers in all war theaters include automatic pencils, pocket size books, stationery, wrist watches, razor blades, money orders, photographs, pipes and tobacco pouches, games and cards, soap, hard candy, dried fruits and vacuum packed nuts.

Navy men overseas want sneakers for wear in showers, moccasin type bedroom slippers, pocket size books, pocket knives, toilet kits, tinned "luxury" foods, fruit cake, bibles, fountain pens, sun glasses, dice, poker chips, steel mirrors, folding writing pads, and snapshots.

The OWI reported sheer stockings are extremely popular with WACs overseas. Other WAC first choices include dainty underwear, elastic girdles, zippers, cake perfume, and cream cologne. Starch was requested by WACs in England because British laundries do not use it.

Army nurses called for scented soaps and cosmetics of all kinds, mending equipment, bath clogs, tinned nuts, candy and delicacies, frilly lingerie, bobbie pins, hairnets, and elastic. Navy nurses chose Christmas decorations, starch, sheer stockings, dainty underwear, play shoes, records, pocket size books, magazine subscriptions, and memberships in book clubs.

The army and navy warned against sending perishable foods, intoxicating liquors, weapons, and inflammables such as matches and lighter fluids.

Mark Twain Comes Alive in Fine Movie

"THE ADVENTURES OF MARK TWAIN."

A Warner Brothers' picture, directed by Irving Rapper, starring Fredric March, with Alexis Smith, Alan Hale, and Donald Crisp, and presented at the Roosevelt.

By Mae Tinée.

Good Morning!

Would you just like to get away from it all—war news, heat, noise, worry—for awhile and rest in the coolness and peace of a pine scented forest? Go to the Roosevelt, then, because time spent there with Mark Twain has the same sort of refreshment value.

The other day the theater was full of contented folks. A service man near me chuckled, deep down and delightedly, as the beguiling chronicle of Samuel Langthorne Clemens' colorful life unreeled, picking him up as a small boy, reveling in his hours on the Mississippi, jogging comfortably and entertainingly along with Twain the man, experimental and unpredictable, to the end of a long and well spent life.

America's great—I think greatest—humorist has been skilfully and provocatively brought alive by brilliant Fredric March, whose makeup [kowtows to you, Perc Westmore] is a work of convincing art.

That boyhood on the Mississippi inspired some of his greatest books — "Tom Sawyer," "Huckleberry Finn," and others. His joyous experiences as a river boat pilot—piloting was the thing in all his life he really loved best to do—were responsible for his pen name. To all Mississippi river boat men the words meant "safe water," and the cry, "mark twain," coming after a fearsome shuttling over and amongst rocks and shoals, was always a welcome sound to the straining ears of the pilot, . . .

After piloting, our hero went west a-mining, in the interests of his romance with a girl who at that time he'd never seen but with whose picture he had fallen in love, and tho he didn't get rich he had a heap of fun, some of which resulted in his famous story of the jumping frog which became the foundation of his literary career.

Back home broke—he wooed and won the lady of the picture [Alexis Smith], and her faith and encouragement were the prods that made a literary man of him. . . . He earned money—but lost it thru poor investments. . . . To pay back creditors—100 cents on the dollar—he took to lecturing. . . .

The tale is full of endearing incident and the homely, human, spontaneous wit that has made Mark Twain beloved of young and old.

Twain came into life "on the tail of Haley's comet," and, according to the film, departed this orb on the comet's reappearance 75 years later.

Outstanding in the cast are Alan Hale as Twain's mining side-kick, Donald Crisp as his literary agent, and Miss Smith as his charming wife.

Sets, scenery, and costumes are perfection, and directorial guidance was canny. Canniness, too, is the fact that no attempt is made to point a moral. Script writers and director were hep to the truth that just being allowed to sort of live along with a man like Mark was good enough for anybody.

See you tomorrow.

Looking at Hollywood

By Hedda Hopper

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Aug. 21.—Constance Bennett, producer, thought she could rush into town and arrange the production of "Paris Underground" in four days. But Constance has discovered that producers move slower than that. She's been here a week. She's canceled two radio shows back east, and so far she's got her director, Gregory Ratoff, but no cast. While some may think that the story, because of the fast moving war, will be dated, Connie, the smart cookie, has brought it up to date with a new opening and end. . . . At last Zasu Pitts gets a decent screen role in Rene Clair's "Ten Little Indians." The tentative date for starting work on it is Nov. 1. Zasu is now playing in Chicago. Her last picture role was with Bob Hope in "Best Foot Forward" about a year ago.

No Secret About This.

Since Bing Crosby's great success in "Going My Way," people have been writing in asking if the character wasn't based on Father O'Malley of St. Louis. Leo McCarey, who wrote the story, admits that Father O'Malley was a dear friend of his, and he thought it would please the priest no end to base a character on him. But Father O'Malley never lived to see how well Bing played him. He died while the picture was in production. . . . Metro has signed Donald Crisp for "Valley of Decision." He'll play the part of William Scott, who owns the steel mills, and into whose home Greer Garson goes to work as a servant.

Short Shorts and Snorts.

Mrs. Buddy de Sylva, who was rumored off to Reno for the usual reason, is not going. She and Buddy are separated, but that's all. . . . It's widely known that Leatrice Joy and husband, William Hook, have been separated for some time, but now the divorce plans are being speeded up. . . . Gilbert Roland is sunning out his sinuses at Palm Springs. . . . Abbott and Costello return here next week, bringing with them the plaque recently awarded by a national publication to them for heading its box office poll. . . . When Director Richard Thorpe finishes "Thrill of a Romance," he goes to Sonora, Mexico, to visit Senor Rodolfo Hererias, who has a 50,000 acre ranch there. They met when Senor Hererias visited Dick's set at Metro recently. . . . Betty Grable has asked for Antonio, of the dance team of Rosario and Antonio, for her next dancing partner. . . . The Norris Goffs [Abner, of Lum 'n' Abner] entertained George Petty who's here doing sketches of the Ziegfeld girls at M. G. M.

Pinch Hitting for Sister.

Thirteen year old Marilynn King takes the place of her sister Donna [who's going to have a baby in October] with the King sisters on Kay Kyser's show. Donna's married to Lt. James Conkling. . . . The King sisters do a number in "Thrill of a Romance" with Laurits Melchior. . . . Incidentally Esther Williams is an almost daily visitor to the Melchiors' home, where she's teaching Mr. and Mrs. M. to swim. . . . Donald O'Connor bought his wife a new home in the valley, and two weeks later was told that he's being transferred to a camp in Texas. . . . On a certain isle in the South Pacific, Frances Langford was surprised to see a tribesman wheel out an American-made piano. She learned that he got it during the Coral sea naval battle, when the warships, preparing for action, threw overboard all inflammable objects, including the piano.

Down Memory Lane.

Frank Tuttle, who's directing "The Great John L.," tells me his elderly aunt in Boston wrote him some reminiscences about those early days. He was so intrigued by one thing she told him that he's using it in the picture. It seems the ladies in those days wore their gloves so tight at the wrist that they had to be buttoned with a small hook. When a young man came to take a lady out, she would often ask him to fasten her glove. Lee Sullivan will do this flirtatious bit of business with one of the dancers in a ballet number called "Why Do I Like You?" . . . Martin Kosleck was browsing around a second hand book store. He bought a worn copy of Shakespeare's works and noticed that the first page of the book had John Barrymore's signature. The book was priced at 35 cents, but when Kosleck showed the proprietor John's autograph, he snatched the book out of Kosleck's hand and upped the price to $35!

CAR FOUND.

Carol turned to Victorine. "Did you hear anything about Eritz Uhlan either at the castle or on the way here?" she asked. The Madonna-like face was perfectly blank.

"But no!" she said. "What should I have heard?"

"Nothing." Bright was short about it. "I guess the less you know about him the better."

The old woman's shrewd eyes assented.

"Whatever has happened, it is certain that you cannot remain here," she said. "I have already consulted with Brochard and we agree there is only one place for you at the moment. We have a friend at Grasse."

"That's the big perfume center of France," Carol explained in answer to Bright's lifted eyebrows. "It's half way between here and Cannes, but well back in the hills. Before the war all the famous brands were based on the Grasse perfumes."

"Yes," Victorine put in. "Mr. Ledoux is a perfumer. He has a large factory with a comfortable deep cellar. He is one of us. Ledoux still puts up a little stock of solid perfume which is sent to Germany." Victorine added with unconscious humor. "For this he stands in well with the authorities and you will be safe with him, and he will pass you on to others who will help."

"Did Ledoux help Lita?" Carol asked anxiously.

"I have sworn by the sacred name of my mother," Victorine said, "that I do not know where Mme. Lita is."

"But you do know something!" Carol was beginning to be impatient. "Lita took some papers—some maps with her when she left, is it not true?"

"I believe that is so, my small one."

"Mme. Victorine, you must help me find her! She has the very thing we have taken all this risk to get hold of. If you know where she is, for the love of us, for the love of France, please tell me!"

"As I have already told you, I know only in a general way," the old woman's eyes were troubled, but the shell of caution remained. "If I were to tell you and then it proved she had moved on, you might walk into a trap. Give me a day or two to make sure. Then I will send word to you at Monsieur Ledoux's."

Carol had to be satisfied with that, but she chafed under the delay. Meanwhile Victorine was explaining to Bright the way they were to go—out thru St. Andre de Nice and over the hills. The three should apply to Mr. Ledoux for work and say they understood how to make his special perfume, "Flowers of France." That was the password. Ledoux would do the rest.

As Victorine stopped speaking there was a sudden commotion below stairs. Victorine sprang to her feet and motioning the others to keep back, opened the door, listening.

"It is Ton-Ton, the boy we keep as a lookout," Victorine told them anxiously. "Something bad has happened."

They were all on their feet now. Bright was quietly adjusting his gun and Dugan followed suit. Presently Papa Brochard came pounding up the stairs.

"Quick!" he cried. "Up over the roofs! The car with Uhlan's body has been found, and they discovered the chauffeur was shot, so the city is being torn apart. The Gestapo are in this very street!"

"Go back and hold them as long as possible," Victorine commanded. Then she turned to the others.

"Follow me!" she said. "There is an exit thru a trap door to the roof. Run the whole way to the end of the walled city, to the ruined house. When you come to it, go down with caution. There is a little alley behind it leading to the river. Mais vite alors! Vite!"

Carol obeyed blindly. Somehow she found herself at the top of a ladder and Bright's strong hands were pulling her thru the narrow aperture which led to the tiles. But it was too late—surely it was too late! She could hear the Germans' angry voices and Papa Brochard's vain protests as the iron shod boots clattered up the stairs. She could see their helmets, then the brutal faces. Dugan was directly below her and Mme. Victorine stood on the landing, ready to spring the trapdoor shut. But Carol couldn't go. She must know something before she left. Pushing Bright aside she leaned back over the aperture and called despairingly.

"Where shall I look for Lita? Where?"

The first of the soldiers had reached Victorine. He laid violent hands on the old woman, throwing her against the wall. Thru bleeding lips Victorine gave a strange answering cry.

"It's a circus, this! Ha! ha! I tell you it's a circus!"

Then the trooper struck her again. Dodger Dugan, now at the top of the ladder, turned and saw it.

"You dirty louse!" he shouted. Leave that dame be!" His gun flashed and the trooper crumpled at Victorine's feet.

"Dugan! Hurry!" Carol screamed in agony. But even as she spoke there was a responding flash from the landing below. Dodger clutched his chest and crumpled, his face grinning up at her.

Bright slammed the trapdoor shut and dragging Carol with him set off across the tiles at a pace which it was difficult for her to match. He barked an order.

"You've got to make it, Kansas!"

Each successive roof was higher than the other, for the street mounted a distinct slope and Bright had to help her climb the steepest of them. It seemed to her that they made a fearful clatter, but no one appeared from the houses below. With the Gestapo in the street, the wary Niceois were staying snugly below.

Carol dared not look behind her as she ran, and dared not think of Dugan and his grinning, impish face suddenly twisted by death. But her ears were strained for that agonizing moment when soldiers would replace the ladder and come pouring up in pursuit. Bright had reached the last house now thru which they were to descend. It presented a high, blank wall but Bright found a toehold, reached the top of it and then bent down to help her.

The old house had only the shattered remnant of a roof and that too rotten to walk on. The low attic was a complete ruin and the room below stood open to the sky. The drop was a good 16 feet onto rubble and broken beams, which offered a dangerous landing.

"I'll make it," Bright said briefly, and jumped even while he was speaking.

From behind her, far down the vista of the rooftops came the sound they had been waiting for—the clatter of the trapdoor at Brochard's being thrown back upon the tiles. There was not a second to lose. Carol looked down into the room, saw Bright's upstretched arms, closed her eyes and jumped.

Contract Bridge

[Copyright: 1944: By Ely Culbertson.]

An unsupported jack is not an impressive asset, in the average player's opinion, but the value of these low honors makes itself felt in hundreds of situations. Here is just one more case:

South, dealer.
North-South vulnerable.

	♠ 5 4 2
	♥ Q J 7 6
	♦ A K
	♣ K 6 5 3
WEST		EAST
♠ A 10 8 6		♠ Q J 9
♥ 5		♥ 8 3
♦ Q 10 8 5		♦ 9 7 4 2
♣ J 10 9 7		♣ A Q 8 2
	SOUTH
	♠ K 7 3
	♥ A K 10 9 4 2
	♦ J 6 3

South	West	North	East
1 heart	Pass	3 hearts	Pass
4 hearts	Pass	Pass	Pass

Needless to say, South would have bid the same without the jack of diamonds in his hand — but he wouldn't have fulfilled the game contract!

West opened the club jack. Many players in the South position would go right up with dummy's king on the theory that this was the best, perhaps the only, chance to lose no club tricks. This expert declarer, however, knew that it was 100 to 1 against the possibility that a good player, such as West, would have led the club jack from any ace-jack combination, and therefore he did not make the futile play of the king. He ducked, and when West led the club ten, he ruffed in the closed hand. He drew trumps, ruffed another club, led to the diamond ace, cashed the king, and ruffed dummy's last club, then led the diamond jack. West covered with the queen, and declarer lost no time in giving him the trick, discarding a spade from dummy. Now West had to set up the spade king for declarer, or, by playing the diamond ten, permit a second spade discard from dummy while South ruffed.

BAG SHORTAGE ACUTE; PUBLIC ASKED TO HELP

Shortage of paper bags, particularly in food and variety stores, is so acute that the Illinois Federation of Retail associations has joined with merchants in urging customers to supply their own bags or containers.

J. T. Meek, executive secretary of the association, said yesterday that many merchants put customers' purchases in paper cartons or boxes which go to homes and seldom are returned to mills for reuse. If these cartons could be held in stores their reuse potentialities would be far greater, said Meek, who has requested the office of civilian requirements to increase slightly merchants' paper supplies to insure better reuse of cartons and boxes, which have a high salvage value.

Many sales are lost thru the paper bag shortage, said Meek. Often the dealer assembles goods and, being without bags, asks the customer for a cloth bag or home made container to put purchases in. Many times, said Meek, the customer does not have a container and walks out of the store, leaving the goods for the merchant to replace in stock.

JOLIET MAYOR'S EDICT ON POLICE UNION IS DEFIED

Union leaders, at a meeting of the Joliet Central Trades and Labor council, last night defied Mayor Arthur O. Janke of Joliet in his demand that the grievance committee of the new Joliet Policemen's union disband by Thursday.

The police union has been recognized, inferentially, but the grievance committee has been regarded as without standing. Mayor Janke recently said the committee must break up or its members would be cited before the police trial board.

At last night's meeting, attended by 400 union men, Ray Shea, council president, said that the committee would not break up and that court action will be employed if Mayor Janke tries to discipline the committee members. The council also upheld the strike of 70 Joliet park employes who are members of local 791 of the American Federation of Municipal, County, and State Employes. The park workers struck Aug. 11 over the refusal of Mayor Janke, who also is president of the park board, to recognize their union.

FORECAST MEAT OUTPUT IN 1944 TO SET RECORD

Total meat production for the United States during 1944 will exceed that of any previous year in the nation's history, according to a report by the committee on food hygiene of the American Veterinary Medical association, which opens a three day meeting at the Palmer House today.

On a dressed weight basis the total meat supply may approximate 25 billion pounds, the report presented by the committee headed by Dr. O. W. Seher of St. Louis predicted.

The committee urged state regulation of local packing plants which do not engage in interstate commerce and are not subject to federal meat inspection laws.

The meeting, which is the association's 81st since it was organized in New York during the Civil war, is being attended by 1,200 delegates, some of whom have come from Puerto Rico, Mexico and South America.

BY MARY MEADE.

Brine those green beans if you haven't a pressure cooker in which to process them. Brined beans have a delightful tart flavor; they're an excellent bean for sweet-sour sauce, because the natural fermentation process has given them sharpness, and only the sweetening need be provided.

Try a few jars to begin with, and if you enjoy beans this way, prepare more. The method couldn't be simpler.

Brined Beans.
[Three Quarts.]

Choose tender beans, wash thoroly and cut into lengthwise shreds. For 4 pounds of beans use 2½ tablespoons salt, and mix thoroly. Pack salted beans tightly into quart jars and fill with clear water. Cover loosely. Keep in a warm dark place for two weeks, while fermentation takes place. The temperature should be around 80-85 degrees. When fermentation is complete, no more bubbles will come off, and the beans will be firm, green, and pickled in flavor. Seal the jars and store the beans in a cool dark place.

To serve the beans, lift them out of the jar, discarding any sediment that has collected. Boil until tender and season with bacon fat or butter and a little sugar. Or flavor with bacon or ham. Cooked beans are excellent in vegetable salads.

Peaches, those little Kieffer pears, and crabapples may all be pickled in the same delicious kind of sirup. Perhaps, like me, you've always used an exceedingly heavy sirup—two to one in favor of sugar. Well, equally nice fruit pickles may be made with a lighter sugar sirup, about 1½ cups to the cup of vinegar.

Here's an excellent pickling sirup for any of these fruits, or for cantaloupe, honeydew, or watermelon rind.

Pickling Sirup for Fruits.
1 quart vinegar
6 cups sugar
2 sticks cinnamon, broken in pieces
Whole cloves

Boil vinegar, sugar, and cinnamon together for 5 minutes. Add 1 tablespoon whole cloves to the sirup unless fruit is to be stuck with cloves [stick peaches or pears with several cloves each]. Drop fruit, a few pieces at a time, into the sirup and simmer until just tender. Pack into clean hot jars and cover with the boiling sirup. Seal. Cinnamon may be removed from sirup before packing, or a piece may be placed in each jar.

$5 PRIZE RECIPE.

Ham Casserole.
[Serves six.]
2 eggs, slightly beaten
3 cups milk
¼ cup flour
Salt to taste
¼ teaspoon paprika
½ cup minced onion
1 cup chopped celery
¼ cup melted margarine
2 cups chopped cooked ham [leftover]

Combine ingredients in order given [blend flour with few tablespoons of the cold milk before adding] and turn into greased casserole dish. Bake about 45 minutes in moderate [350 degrees] oven.

Thru the Looking Glass

We're still on the subject of hairbrushes, but today it's the cleaning and care thereof.

You know, don't you, that a hairbrush is not a dressing table ornament like your fancy perfume bottles and your pretty powder box? That's so; it's a fragile tool that must be kept out of the way of dust and dirt and treated kindly. While it isn't exactly necessary to wrap it in a duster, it is to your own benefit that it be kept safely in your bureau drawer when not in use. And don't put it in the one where you keep such things as dusting powder—that will defeat the storage purpose.

A hairbrush can and should be washed frequently. If you have ever given it a good look after it has been pulled thru the hair about a hundred times, you know the amount of grease, dust, and grime that is clinging to it. There's no use in letting that accumulate to be worked back into the hair. You can dry clean the brush by running the bristles over a clean, rough cloth and then, at least three times a week, wash it in soap and water. Lukewarm water and mild, completely dissolved, soap flakes is the formula. Swirl the brush around in the suds, plunge it up and down, anything to get enough action to loosen the soil—but don't press or pull on the bristles, let soap and water do the work. Rinse the brush in lukew

V. F. W. TO OPEN ITS 45TH PARLEY IN LOOP TODAY

Aid to Veterans Is One of Main Topics.

Their ranks swollen by hundreds of men who have served in World War II., delegates to the 45th annual encampment of Veterans of Foreign Wars swamped registrars yesterday, filled every available loop hotel room and overflowed into the near north side.

Today representatives of 3,800 posts in the United States and Hawaii will meet with auxiliary delegates at 10 a. m. in the Hotel Sherman to hear welcoming addresses and the national heads of their organizations. Business sessions will start at 1:30 p. m., the veterans in Terrace casino of the Morrison hotel and the auxiliary remaining in the Sherman.

Rehabilitation Is Topic.

Because the V. F. W. contemplates taking an extensive part in aiding men who fought in World War II. upon their return to civilian life, they first will hear Frank T. Hines, national administrator of veterans' affairs.

Continuing on the subject of reemployment and rehabilitation of veterans, the delegates will hear in turn William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor; William H. Spencer, war man power commissioner; Oscar D. Hollenbeck, chief of the veterans' employment service; Col. Paul H. Griffith, chief of the veterans' personnel division, selective service system; Philip Murray, president of the CIO, and Rear Adm. E. C. White, office of the surgeon general, United States navy.

Maj. Gen. Norman T. Kirk, surgeon general of the army, will be heard in the evening at the annual dinner in the Hotel Sherman.

Two Political Speakers.

Before the veterans get around to consideration of more than 200 resolutions on scores of subjects and the nomination of national officers tomorrow they will listen to two political speakers—Sen. Revercomb [R., W. Va.], and Sen. Truman, [D., Mo.], Vice Presidential nominee.

More than 300,000 members of the V. F. W. are in service overseas at present.

DECLARE LABOR EMERGENCY TO SAVE TOMATOES

Baltimore, Md., Aug. 21 (AP).—A state of emergency affecting cannery labor was ordered today by the state farm labor supervisor for the lower Maryland eastern shore as a packing association official blamed the war food administration for spoilage of at least 100 tons of tomatoes last week.

C. L. Skinner of Easton, secretary of the Tri-State Packers' association, said last night at least 100 tons of picked tomatoes had spoiled because the WFA had failed to arrange for their movement to canneries outside the area.

Niles S. Baldridge, state WFA chief, said the war man power commission had given canners a high labor priority rating in an effort to help the situation.

Paul E. Nystrom, state farm labor supervisor, notified Wicomico, Somerset, and Worcester county agents of the three-day state of emergency, authorizing them to release imported and domestic farm laborers for cannery work.

Kelly at Mayors' Parley on Municipal Legislation

New York, Aug. 21 (AP).—Legislation affecting municipalities was discussed today by five members of the United States conference of mayors, including Mayor Kelly of Chicago.

DO NOT STICK TO ONE PARTY, NEGROES TOLD

Circuit Judge Harry M. Fisher, a prominent figure among Chicago Democrats, yesterday advised Negroes that they should "not stick to one party." Segregation of Negro soldiers was criticized by other speakers at the 45th annual convention of the Improved Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks of the World.

"Don't be a slave to a party, because once they own you your vote counts for nothing," said Judge Fisher during a civil liberties program at Calumet av. and 43d st. He said minority groups should be "politically conscious" in battling discrimination. Of Negroes, Jews and other groups, he said:

Predict G. O. P. Gains.

"Our future is in trading with the liberal element and, thank God, I believe they are in the majority in this country. It is important that no party claim us as a right. . . . The American political system of two parties is a much greater guarantee to us than some of the words contained in the Constitution."

Negro leaders attending the convention, whose formal sessions open today, indicated that all political signs indicate a big shift in the vote of their followers to the Republican ticket in the November election.

Criticism of the war department's treatment of Negro soldiers stationed in the south was voiced by the Rev. James L. Horace, pastor of the Monumental Baptist church and president of the Illinois Baptist convention.

"I made a tour of 12 army camps in five states and found dreadful cases of discrimination and mistreatment," Horace said.

Army Treatment Hit.

"Often they enter with high hopes, but the evil practices of the army soon leave them lifeless, hopeless and unconcerned. When a southern officer discovers that he is training northern Negroes, which should never be, he often spends more time trying to crush their spirit than in trying to make them good soldiers."

The Improved Elks lodge claims more than 500,000 Negro members. Convention officials predicted that 20,000 will attend the parley. Gov. Green and Mayor Kelly are scheduled to make welcoming addresses at noon in the Metropolitan Community church, 4100 South Park way. Bill [Bojangles] Robinson, tap dance star, will lead the parade on South Park way in the afternoon.

DAY by DAY on the FARM by GAIL COMPTON

Aug. 21, 1944.

WHEN the men enter the dairy barns early in the morning they note with appreciation the results of tests being conducted with the new, widely publicized army insecticide, DDT.

In the cow barn the animals stomp and twitch nervously. Despite an electric screen door and tight window screens, the barn is filled with the buzz of flies. Disease carriers, the flies reduce sanitation, and also lower the yield of milk by making the animals nervous.

No Nervousness Here.

In the calf barn things are different. The tiny calves lie quietly in their straw beds chewing absentmindedly on a wisp of hay. There is no nervousness or tail switching. Not a fly can be seen.

The calf barn was sprayed with a Neocid A 20 spray containing 20 per cent DDT. The farm was able to obtain the scarce insecticide thru the Geigy company which holds the patent on the material. The company gave the farm the DDT from its own research allocation so practical experiments might be carried out.

Lasts Three Months.

Previous experiments have proved that one application of DDT in a dairy barn is effective for three months. Flies are killed an hour or so after landing on a wall treated with the insecticide.

In the calf barn flies may be found during the day time. The opening and closing of the doors to the calf pens enables flies to enter. The spray does not kill the insects quickly enough to prevent a sizable fly population from building up during the day.

Kills During Night.

When the barn is shut for the night, however, the spray has a better chance to prove its effectiveness. By morning more than 95 per cent of the flies have been destroyed; the others seem groggy and some are unable to fly.

This is only one of a multitude of uses to which DDT may be put. Altho not available now for civilian use, it promises to be one of the greatest boons to come out of the war. It has proved effective in treatment of gardens for it kills most types of insects. It has a residual effect such that one spraying lasts many days. Further reports on the farm tests of DDT will be made from time to time.

COAL MINE WORKER KILLED.

Harrisburg, Ill., Aug. 21 [AP].—Delmar Fife, 38, a coal miner employed by the Sahara Coal company, was killed last night in a conveyer belt accident at the No. 5 mine.

The GARDEN by Ben Markland

AFTER an outdoor hotbed is prepared for planting [as described in this space yesterday] gardeners can select vegetables to be seeded. One practical crop is leaf lettuce, preferably planted in a solid patch of 4 to 12 square feet, depending upon the size of the frame.

The common Simpson lettuce is excellent for hotbed planting. Grand Rapids also can be seeded, but should be thinned to allow the lettuce clumps to stand about 5 inches apart.

Head lettuce also can be seeded; the small Bibb type is recommended. Bibb can be sown in hotbed rows 8 inches apart and thinned to stand 6 inches apart in the row. Thus the individual heads will be much closer than those grown outdoors, but because hand culture is necessary in hotbeds this crowding is no handicap to production.

SON DENIES PLOT TO 'POISON' MIND OF MILLIONAIRE

Miami, Fla., Aug. 21 [Special].—Samuel Daniel denied in court today he had written anonymous letters about the escapades of his eldest brother, R. T. Daniel Jr., or had tried to "poison" the mind of their millionaire father against his brother.

The testimony was given at a Circuit court hearing into the attempt of R. T. Jr. to have a guardian appointed for Col. R. T. Daniel Sr., 83 year old Oklahoma and Texas oil man and western pioneer.

The eldest son has asserted the aged man, who is partly paralyzed, is the unwilling prisoner of "designing persons" in the 64 room Seminole hotel in downtown Miami which he owns and where he lives alone except for a nurse.

Samuel told Judge Ross Williams he had talked to his father about his brother only "to try and work out something for Dick." He disclaimed any connection with anonymous letters sent to his father about R. T. Jr. There had been testimony during the hearing that Col. Daniel had received unsigned letters and newspaper clippings about R. T. Jr., who has been pictured as a gun toting drinker.

Have a Coca-Cola = Let's work refreshed

. . . or a helping hand on the farm

Helping to feed America means long hours in the fields . . . endless tasks to perform. All the more welcome, then, is the friendly pause for an ice-cold Coca-Cola. Have a "Coke", says a farm companion, and it means Let's work refreshed. In country home or city dwelling, frosty bottles of "Coke" belong in the icebox. Across America, Coca-Cola stands for the pause that refreshes,—a symbol of kindly hospitality.

GEORGE WILSON TO LEAD BEARS AGAINST STARS

Former N. U. End Is Named Captain.

BY EDWARD PRELL.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Collegeville, Ind., Aug. 21.—George [Zeke] Wilson, veteran right end, will lead the Chicago Bears, world professional champions, against the College All-Stars the night of Aug. 30 in Dyche stadium at Northwestern. The popular Chicago-born athlete this afternoon was named 1944 team captain in recognition of his seven brilliant seasons with the Bears.

Wilson succeeds George Musso, who has been captain of the Chicago team for many seasons and who is preparing for his 12th professional campaign.

Near Final Scrimmage.

Wilson received a thunderous cheer from his teammates who were informed of George's selection after today's double drills on execution of pass plays. Tomorrow the 35 player squad will continue work on offense and toughen up by hitting the tackling dummy in preparation for the second and final scrimmage to be held Wednesday.

Co-Coach Luke Johnsos, in announcing Wilson's elevation to the captaincy, paid him a glowing tribute.

"George is as good an all-around end as there is in football," said Johnsos, who like Wilson, played end at Northwestern university. "He's a great blocker, is superb on pass defense, can catch that ball, and is a workhorse. There's nothing nifty about George, but he goes the limit on the field."

Long after Wilson's career is over they'll still be talking about the tremendous down field block he executed to immobilize two Redskins in the 1940 championship game. This gave Bill Osmanski a clear path to the first touchdown in the 73 to 0 rout. Osmanski had started around the Bears' left end. Wilson, from right end, cut across the field diagonally to lead the play. Bill had been delayed a trifle at the line of scrimmage.

Ed Justice and Charley Malone of the Redskins angled toward Osmanski to cut him down or chase him out of bounds. Wilson saw the danger, dropped back and threw a terrific high block into Justice. Their crashing bodies knocked down Malone like a 10 pin and Osmanski continued for the score.

George Is in Shape.

Wilson who is down to his playing weight of 218 pounds, is playing his 17th year of football. As a seventh grader at May school on Chicago's west side, he joined the Harbans, a neighborhood team. Then followed three seasons at Austin High school, one at St. John's Military academy, two at Northwestern, two with the Calumet All-Stars, and seven with the Bears. He is married and has two children.

Pacific Coast Boys Capture Sailing Race

Gerald Driscoll, 19, youngest of the 19 skippers in the 22d international Star class sailing championship meet, won the opening race sailed yesterday off Chicago harbor in a light, steady southeast breeze. Driscoll and his crew, Malin Burnham, 16, represent the San Diego Bay [Cal.] Star class fleet. The two boys, sailing a Chicago Yacht club Star boat, Skylark, owned by Timme Angsten, the club's youngest Star skipper, defeated the pick of North America's veteran Star yachtsmen.

The regatta will be continued this afternoon and will end Saturday with the fifth race. Summaries of yesterday's race:

4TH ALL-STAR BOWLING MEET TO OPEN DEC. 2

The All-Star Bowling tournament, which in its first three years has become the No. 1 competition of the game, will go to the line again in 1944. The dates are Dec. 2 thru 10, the site again is the Auditorium theater, and the committee in charge of the tournament already is functioning on arrangements for this world series of tenpins, out of which will emerge the 1944 national champion. The fourth tournament again is being sponsored by Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc. and the Bowling Proprietors' Association of America.

The prize list will total $7,000, with the first place award being $2,000, second, $1,000, and third, $500.

The first All-Star tournament began at noon on Dec. 7, 1941, almost co-incident with the opening of the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor. The event ran for eight days in the Coliseum. In 1942, the sponsors of the event determined to make the tournament not only a real battle among the nation's top flight bowlers, but also the permanent vehicle for a genuine contribution by bowling to the war.

Install New Alleys.

That war time objective was attained by the installation of 12 new alleys in the historic Auditorium. These were donated by the Bowling Alley Proprietors' Association of Greater Chicago, together with all necessary construction changes. The 1942 tournament served as the baptismal event for these lanes, which have been used free of charge by thousands of soldiers, sailors, marines, coast guardsmen, and women.

The All-Star tournament committee for 1944 consists of Barney Hochstadter, chairman; Louis P. Petersen, originator of the plan for bowling in the service center; Eddie Linsz of Cleveland; Jerry Peck, C. P. Binner, C. O. Collier, Eli Whitney, Herb Lang, Arch Ward, sports editor, and Charles Bartlett, bowling writer, of THE TRIBUNE. It has incorporated a number of improvements in the pattern of the tournament, designed to please bowlers and spectators alike.

Four Seeded into Finals.

A field of 120 bowlers will compete in the 1944 tournament. Four others—Ned Day of West Allis, Wis., who regained the title in last year's event; Paul Krumske of Chicago, 1943 runner-up; Rudy Pugel of Milwaukee, and Buddy Bomar of Chi-

End and Half Back Bolster Offense.

Meet the Stars

THE Junior Association of Commerce of Chicago will hold its annual All-Star football luncheon in the Morrison hotel on Thursday. This will be the only public appearance of the college squad prior to the game with the Chicago Bears in Dyche stadium Aug. 30. Luncheon tickets, at $1.90 each, now are on sale in The Tribune Public Service offices and at the Junior Association of Commerce headquarters, 1 N. La Salle st.

BY WILFRID SMITH.
[ALL-STAR ROSTER ON NEXT PAGE.]

Pvt. Bill Huber, Notre Dame end who started the 1943 All-Star game against the Washington Redskins, and Creighton Miller, who led the rushing attack which carried the Irish to a national collegiate championship last fall, reported at All-Star headquarters yesterday and immediately set about the business of earning varsity berths for the game with the Chicago Bears a week from tomorrow night in Dyche stadium.

While Notre Dame was winning the national title last fall, Miller, from his left half back position, carried the ball 151 times, a number exceeding the total times carried by all other Irish backs, and he gained 911 yards for an average of slightly more than six yards for each attempt. Miller will give the All-Stars an additional threat either in the open or thru the line.

Quarter Backs Study Strategy.

Huber, a 205 pound 6 footer from Tuscola, Ill., played for the Camp Grant Warriors last fall. He received 10 varsity awards in high school, in football, basketball, and track. Now attached to the McCloskey General hospital in Temple, Tex., he expects to return to Notre Dame to complete his studies after the war. He was welcomed by the All-Star coaches as another target for the bullet passes of Glenn Dobbs, Charley Trippi, et al.

The group of quarter backs, headed by Lou Saban of Indiana; Ken Keuper of Georgia; Don Greenwood of Illinois, and Dobbs, Tulsa half back, who also directs team strategy, yesterday had their first lesson in the series to prepare them for the game. The field generals met with the All-Star coaching staff an hour before the regular afternoon practice, which was devoted largely to defense.

Plan Two More Games.

Bob Kolesar, Michigan guard, the last of the squad of 68 players, is due tomorrow. Kolesar is finishing his medical studies at Michigan.

Sunday's scrimmages cost the All-Stars the services of J. C. Coffee, scrappy Indiana guard. Coffee suffered an injury to his right shoulder and while it is not serious, it will prevent him from being in uniform a week from tomorrow night.

Head Coach Lynn Waldorf announced yesterday that double drills will be continued today and that two more practice games are planned for the college men. The squad probably will work under the lights at least twice for the game.

The All-Stars' defensive plans are a well guarded secret. While the Bears undoubtedly will prepare for any type of defense, the pros' problem would be simplified if they could know whether or not the All-Stars would depend primarily on a five, six, or seven man line to stop running plays from the T formation.

Packers Score Upset.

The element of surprise has been important in those few games the Bears have lost in the last four years. Green Bay upset them, for instance, in Wrigley field a couple of years ago, 16 to 14, by using a seven man line. This Packer victory brought about a play-off for the western division championship which, incidentally, the Bears won.

"We must be prepared to meet power plays by Gary Famiglietti," Coach Waldorf said yesterday, "and also guard against the speed of such veterans as Ray Nolting and Ray McLean." These half backs are dangerous on quick opening slashes into the line and because they are extremely fast, there also is the threat they will outrun o r secondary defense to catch scoring passes."

A Mother's Prayer.

I just peeped out the window
To see where they might be—
Those two be-deviled angels
Who mean the world to me.

A "fort" of leaves they'd built up,
Their play guns went "ack-ack,"
"Mommy's a Jap, let us shoot her!"
And quickly I drew back.

It's fun to see those soldiers
When they are five and three,
But, God, be kind to mothers
Whose sons will keep mine free.

Two Pairs of Eyes.

I know a man who's permitted himself
To become an habitual repiner,
As a matter of fact he's allowed himself
To add up as a chronic whiner.
Now this fellow has always had the breaks,
Yet nothing is ever just right,
The weather, the war—what have you?—
A lament from morning till night.

There's another fellow I know who's had
The toughest kind of a pull,
When it comes to trouble and sorrow
His cup has been more than full.
Yet, oddly enough, when I meet him
He comes thru with a word of cheer,
No matter what ill may befall him
He somehow finds good hov'ring near.

Isn't it strange how two pairs of eyes
Can look out on the selfsame days,
And one see things only to grieve about,
The other, things only to praise!

FURGOL PACES ALL-AMERICAN GOLF WITH 67

Leads Amateurs by Three Strokes.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

The remarkable All-American golf tournaments are only one day old, but in yesterday's opening phase of the week long bombardment of the Tam o' Shanter Country club's acreage one of the most remarkable feats in the four year history of this ever interesting party was achieved. It was a shiny 67, five under par, contributed by lanky, likeable Ed Furgol, 24, Detroit auto plant worker. Other 67s have turned up at Tam o' Shanter but never have they been shot by a 'ad whose left arm is 10 inches shorter than his right, and whose left elbow is permanently stiff.

Furgol's fine card, composed of an outgoing 32, four under par, and topped off by a 40 foot downhill putt which just grazed the 18th cup in a search for a 66, gave him undisputed command of the early lead in the All-American amateur side of the big fairway circus.

Women Start Play Today.

The overflow of the Simon pure detail, which couldn't be accommodated yesterday, will play this morning, beginning at 6 o'clock. They will be followed today by the women's delegation, and tomorrow the unexempt professionals will go to work on the job of earning places in the tournament proper. This will be played Thursday, Friday, Saturday, and Sunday on a 72 hole medal play basis, with 18 hole rounds per diem. The pros in the field will be playing for $13,400 in war bonds, top prize in the total purse, largest the game has ever offered, of $42,500 in bonds.

The huge field of 384 amateurs, the final 134 of whom will play today, are shooting at 22 places and ties in the main event. Two other amateurs—Dale Morey of Indianapolis, 1943 All-American champion, and Chick Evans of Edgewater, past National Open and Amateur titleholder—were exempt from qualifying, making a total amateur field of 24 and ties.

Arm Injured in Fall.

Furgol, whose 67 will be difficult to beat in today's amateur conclusion, presents one of the strangest stories in the game today. A native of New York Mills, N. Y., he suffered a fall in a playground accident which severed a cord in his left arm. Two major operations have failed to cure the resulting condition. He began playing golf eight years ago, moving to Detroit in 1940. He is a mailman in the Ford plant in Detroit. For three years he saved up his vacations, and last winter made part of the tournament circuit.

Following Furgol yesterday was a brace of 70 shooters. They were Kenneth Heilemann of St. Louis, former triple junior champion of the Chicago district, and Frank Kovack, the Bonnie Brook star who was a semi-finalist in last year's amateur when it was run on a match play pattern. Tied at 71 were Tom Frainey, 46, Old Orchard veteran; George Dawson of Glen Oak, and Wilford Wehrle of Racine, one time Western Amateur title holder. Furgol's card:

Par—Out	453	444	435—36
Furgol—Out	443	433	335—32
Par—In	534	445	344—36—72
Furgol—In	534	454	334—35—67

George S. May's knack for presenting the unusual in these All-American tournaments was given new strength by young Billy Sixty Jr., son of the veteran Milwaukee golf and bowling expert. Young Bill tied his dad at 78 by the simple process of sinking an iron shot for an ace at the 215 yard 16th.

Leading 18 hole scores:

Ed Furgol, Detroit	32	35	67
Kenneth Heilemann, St. Louis	35	35	70
Frank Kovack, North Chicago	36	34	70
Tom Frainey, Old Orchard	37	34	71
George Dawson, Chicago	35	36	71
Wilford Wehrle, Racine	38	33	71
Dave McAndless, Tam o' Shanter	39	35	74

JAMES LOSES IN MARIGOLD BOUT TO JIMMY HUNT

Jimmy Hunt, former city Golden Gloves welterweight champion, scored an eight round unanimous decision over Tommy James, also a Golden Gloves graduate, last night in the Marigold Gardens before 1,812, who paid a gross of $3,608 to see the show. It was a fast fight all the way with Hunt outboxing his foe and whipping in right hands to the head and body to gain the verdict.

James suffered a cut over his right eye that bothered him in the late rounds. Tommy was unable to get away from Hunt's right hand in these later rounds but he weathered the storm and was never in danger of a knockout. A group of wounded soldiers from Vaughan General hospital who saw service in the Pacific area were guests of Irving Schoenwald and Jack Begun, Marigold promoters at the show.

Furgol, who hails from Detroit, carded a 67 to take the lead in the first day's firing of the All-American Amateur Golf tournament at Tam o' Shanter yesterday. Kovack, a Chicago entrant, and Ken Heilemann of St. Louis tied for second place with 70's.

BY EDWARD BURNS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Philadelphia, Pa., Aug. 21.—Philadelphia born Bill Dietrich held the Athletics to five hits in nine innings tonight but yielded a single, a double, and an infield scratch in the 10th and that was the cluster that gave Connie Mack's lads a 3 to 2 victory before 9,420 in the Sox's 25th lamp game. Since they played their first 1944 night match here on May 12 the Sox have lost 17 while winning eight after dark endeavors.

Irving Hall, who wrecked two games with late inning triples during the A's last visit to Chicago, didn't wait tonight. He tripled in the first inning to get the Philadelphia offensive under way, then scored on Ford Garrison's fly to Guy Curtright.

The Sox didn't make a hit until Curtright singled to left with one out in the fourth inning. And it served only as a setup to a double play which Ed Busch started after capturing Ralph Hodgins' grounder near second.

A's Break Loose Again.

After Hall's triple the A's made only one hit—a single by George Kell in the second inning—until they broke loose for a run in the sixth. Garrison opened with a single to center and went to third on Roberto Estalella's single to right, the latter going on to second when Wally Moses kicked the ball. After Frank Hayes was given an intentional pass loading the bases Siebert sent a long fly to Thurman Tucker, Garrison scoring and Estalella taking third. McGhee then grounded into a double play started by Schalk.

The Sox grabbed a run in the seventh. Guy Curtright walked, went to third on Ralph Hodgins' single and scored on Hal Trosky's fly to Estalella. Tucker ran the count to three balls and two strikes then filed to Dick Siebert, and Mike Tresh filed to Garrison.

The Sox tied the score in the

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

Due to difficulties with one Ernie Lombardi, the inventor of slow motion, the intermittent Cubs enjoyed no success yesterday afternoon in their nine inning chore with the Giants. The leisurely Ernie whacked a pair of homers as well as a single that chased two mates across the plate, all of which enabled the New Yorkers to win, 4 to 3. It was the 12th beating in 17 games for Charley Grimm's boys.

To make the treatment doubly distressing the Giants reserved the knockout punch for the last half of the party. For six innings Bill Fleming had mastered everything except the Lombardi home run technique, but despite these hard slaps the Cubs, by squeezing production from a few hits off old man Johnny Allen, went into the seventh with a 3 to 2 bulge. That's when Lombardi cut himself down to a single with the bases filled, sending in the tying and winning runs.

Allen Aids Cubs' Cause.

Lombardi was first heard from in the second inning when he dispatched No. 6 into the left field seats but Allen graciously assisted the Cubs in getting back the run in the same inning. Bill Nicholson, who later fanned twice as evidence he hasn't shaken out of his slump, led with a single, paused on first while Ival Goodman was succumbing to strikes and hiked to third on a single by the noted Lou Novikoff. At this point Allen tossed a wild pitch on which Nicholson scored.

The Cubs took after Allen with one hit in the fourth, but it was sufficient to net their second run. Goodman walked between strikeouts hung on Nicholson and Novikoff. Then Len Merullo, who apparenly intends to make the temporary shortstop job more or less permanent, doubled against the left field wall, Goodman scoring. Then in the fifth Stan Hack walked for a starter and two were out and Nicholson had been passed when Goodman pasted a single to right for a 3 to 1 Cub lead.

Lombardi Hits Second Homer.

Lombardi hoisted No. 7 into the left field terrace at the start of the sixth and the Giants then remained quiet until Bruce Sloan, batting for Allen, walked to open the decisive seventh. Leon Treadway singled and when George Hausmann attempted to sacrifice he bunted into a force play at third. Fleming got a little farther in the clear by fanning Buddy Kerr, but lost his aim and walked Joe Medwick, filling the bases. Then Lombardi bounced his single off Hack's glove, Treadway and Hausmann scoring, and Paul Derringer came in to finish up for Fleming.

BROWN NAMED GREAT LAKES' FOOTBALL COACH

Lt. Paul E. Brown, former football coach at Ohio State university, assumed the duties of head football coach at the United States Naval Training center yesterday, according to a statement by Capt. Robert R. M. Emmet.

In taking over the Bluejacket football coaching Lt. Brown will relieve Lt. Comdr. Paul D. Hinkle of some of the work Hinkle performed prior to his promotion to Great Lakes athletic officer.

eighth. Ed Carnett batted for Skeeter Webb and tripled to right center. Black obviously was perturbed and threw three wide ones to Dietrich. As Black prepared to cast a fourth pitch Dietrich made a motion which Manager Dykes thought up in an effort to get pitchers to balk. When Black halted his windup Dykes rushed on the field claiming a balk. Umpire Bill Summers ruled Dietrich had motioned for time out. This seemed to steady Black and he struck out Dietrich. Moses then sent a short fly to Estalella and the rapid Carnett beat the throw to the plate by an eyelash. Schalk was safe on Ed Busch's fumble but Curtright lined to Hall to end the threat.

Hodgin opened the ninth with his second single. Trosky flied out but Tucker singled to left, Hodgin stopping at second. Tresh flied to Garrison. Cass Michaels was safe on Hall's fumble and the bases were loaded. Dietrich didn't offer at any of three straight strikes.

Sox Go Out in Order.

After the Sox went out in order in the tenth, Irv Hall singled with one out in the home tenth and stopped at third on Garrison's double, tho he really didn't have to. Estalella was given an intentional pass, loading the base. Hayes missed on two strikes then dribbled one towards short. Cass Michaels ran in and came up cleanly with the ball, but had no place to throw it, and Hall was home with the winning run.

ENTER EASTERN STAKE CHAMPION IN DERBY FIELD

BY MAURICE SHEVLIN.

By Jimminy, Alfred P. Parker's contender for the 1944 3 year old turf championship on the strength of eastern victories in the Travers, Dwyer, and Shevlin stakes, will try his luck in the American Derby at Washington Park Saturday.

The cold will arrive from New York today to prepare for his mid-western debut against a probable field of eight which includes the Calumet farm's capable representatives, Pensive, Kentucky Derby and Preakness winner, and the filly, Miss Keeneland.

Has Won $87,265 This Season.

By Jimminy, which won the Grand Union hotel stakes last year in the Idle Hour colors of Col. Edward R. Bradley, has won $87,265 this season and now is a member of the distinguished circle of $100,000 winners, his earnings in two years amounting to $105,665.

Early this year Col. Bradley sold By Jimminy to Parker and he still is being handled by the Bradley trainer, Jimmy Smith.

The Derby, for which there is $50,000 in added money, will be worth $83,200 if all nine probable starters are around at post time.

Nelson Dunstan established himself as a ranking contender yesterday in winning the $5,000 Volante handicap, a Derby preparatory event in which three other nominees started in a field of six.

Jezrahel Is Second.

The Dearborn stable's sleek black colt scored by three-quarters of a length over Jezrahel, which took the place from Mrs. Emil Denemark's Signals Bloke, a noneligible, by two lengths. Challenge Me, which went to the post the favorite at 2 to 1, was fourth, five lengths back and only half a length in front of Morris Vehon's Santa Claus, the other starter which is not eligible for the Derby. H. A. Herm's Hasty Message was last.

The winner was ridden by the veteran Paul Keiper while Otto Grohs had the leg up on Jezrahel and Art Fischer rode Signals Bloke. Nelson Dunstan paid $9.20, $4.80 and $3.20 across the board.

Yesterday's daily double was worth $91.40. E. J. Powell's Diamond Shoals, with Willie Bailey up, won the opener, and Leo J. Cailloette's Actress Lady, ridden by Jess Higley, took the second. Diamond Shoals paid $10.40 and Actress Lady $9.80.

FULL BACKS—Gene Fekete, Ohio State; Tony Stertti, Illinois; Pete Layden and Ray McKay, Texas; Corwin Clatt, Notre Dame.

All-Stars Aim to Crack Pros' Line for Score

There's one All-Star football game record the 1944 collegiate squad has serious ideas of erasing in Dyche stadium a week from tomorrow night, namely to score against the Chicago Bears on a rushing play. Not that the All-Stars won't accept touchdowns any way they can get them, but the only two surrendered by the Bears in their four previous appearances in the series were on passes, both in the 1941 game. The first All-Star who cracks the Bear line to score will occupy a special niche in the series' history.

The Bears played a scoreless tie with the All-Stars in the 1934 series opener; won in 1935, 5 to 0; came back in 1941 to triumph, 37 to 13, and added their third shutout in 1942, 21 to 0.

Minnesota's George Franck, now a marine captain, and Jack Robinson of U. C. L. A. are the two All-Stars who have scored against the Bears. Franck did so after taking a 22 yard pass from Tom Harmon of Michigan and Robinson grabbed a 39 yard toss from Charley O'Rourke of Boston college, on a play added to the All-Star repertoire a mere 36 hours before the game, for his touchdown. The Bears? They have scored practically every way possible except on a pass interception or by recovering a fumble behind the goal line.

PLAY BENEFIT GAME.

The East Chicago Giants will meet the Great Lakes Negro baseball team in a Navy relief benefit game at 5:30 o'clock this evening at Block stadium, 144th st. and Parish av., in East Chicago.

4th All-Star Bowling Meet Set for Dec. 2

cago—will be seeded into the finals proper, which will be bowled on the last four days of the event—Dec. 7, 8, 9, and 10.

Twenty-four others, based on their performances in the 1943 tournament, will be seeded into the tournament without the necessity of qualifying in any preliminaries.

Here Is the Setup.

Here is the plan for the 1944 tournament:

1. The 120 starters, consisting of the 96 qualifiers and the 24 men seeded out of the 1943 event, will go to work on Dec. 2, continuing thru Dec. 3, 4, and 5. Groups of 12 men will bowl across 12 alleys, six games a day, making an elimination series total of 24 games. This will be decided on the basis of total pins knocked down. Out of these will come the 48 qualifiers for the semi-finals on Dec. 6.

2. Dec. 6 will see the semi-final phase, in which two series of six games each, one afternoon and one evening, will be rolled by each man. The 12 men with the highest cumulative total for 36 games [24 in the Dec. 2 to 5 eliminations and 12 in the Dec. 6 semi-finals] will then join Day, Krumske, Pugel, and Bomar in the finals proper.

3. Day, Krumske, Pugel, and Bomar will make their first appearance on Dec. 7, the first day of the finals, joining the 12 semi-final qualifiers to complete a finishing field of 16. From the 7th thru the 10th, these 16 will bowl four game matches against each other, with the Petersen scoring system determining winners. On the night of Dec. 10, after each man has bowled 60 games, the final series of games will constitute a "position" round. In this, the man in first place at the end of the 60 games will bowl the one in second position, the man in third place the bowler in fourth position, etc.

Softball Tourney Enters Second Round Tonight

A play will continue tonight in the Chicago Metropolitan Amateur Softball Association tournament at Lake st. and Scoville av. in Oak Park with the tourney moving into the second round. In the opening games last night Harvey defeated Roseland 10 to 7 and in the second game the Oak Park Elks scored a 7 to 4 victory over the Abbott Laboratories of Waukegan.

POST-WAR PLAN FAILURE LAID TO DEFEATISM

Col. Rockwell Also Blames Politics.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 21.—The administration has failed to devise a positive program for post-war industrial reconversion and employment because of a defeatist attitude and preoccupation with political expediencies, Col. Willard F. Rockwell, Detroit and Pittsburgh industrialist, said today after a conference with Chairman Doughton [D., N. C.] of the house ways and means committee.

Col. W. F. Rockwell.

Rockwell, who is chairman of Timken-Detroit Axle company, charged at a press conference that New Deal groups were attempting to rush thru poorly drawn post-war unemployment legislation solely for political reasons without considering the plight of thousands of war contractors who face bankruptcy when their contracts are canceled.

Stacks of Telegrams Ready.

The war department already has prepared "stacks of telegrams" canceling orders, to be sent out when Germany falls, said Rockwell, and the government "is not yet ready with any other plans. If the war were to end suddenly, we would be just as unprepared for the finish as we were for the start."

The first result of contract cancellations would be inability to reconvert plants to peace time production because of lack of reserve funds to finance such operations, thus creating a vast and immediate unemployment problem, he asserted.

Rockwell was production director for the United States maritime commission until last January. He said he presented his reconversion and employment plan to Rep. Doughton and the committee, but was told flatly it could receive no consideration until after the election.

Seeks to Provide Reserves.

The plan Rockwell presented would permit war contractors to withhold a percentage of profits, computed according to the length of service of each employe. The companies would be permitted to use as operating funds any part of the reserves not paid out to employes, but all money so used would be returned to the government within two years after final settlement of war contracts.

He said this system would be a powerful incentive for speedy reconversion, adding:

"Under the present setup there is no hope for such action. War contractors have been ruthlessly renegotiated out of any reserves, many of them to the point that they will have to close their doors the day their war contracts cease, thus throwing millions out of work.

Funds Would Run Out Quickly.

"Proponents of the measure under consideration [the George bill] point to the funds available in the unemployment compensation accounts of the various states, but they fail to say that these funds will be very quickly exhausted once large scale unemployment starts its drain.

"Once the cycle of bankruptcies and consequent unemployment gets rolling, the federal government again will have to step in and create a new series of boondoggle projects."

Rockwell asserted industry had not been asked to submit post-war plans, but instead the administration had consulted only its own spokesmen and burocrats.

He said New Deal post-war plans were defeatist because they presumed large scale unemployment and made no attempt to provide for stimulated production and sound reconversion of industry so there would be full employment.

Truman Story Assails Army, Navy Waste

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 21.—Mismanagement of war construction and production by the army and navy under the New Deal, resulting in the waste of millions of dollars and of time vital to the war, is described by Sen. Truman of Missouri, the Democratic nominee for Vice President, in the current issue of Collier's magazine.

He said that as chairman of the special senate investigating committee, he and his fellow members still are recording a succession of wastes, duplication, and "ugly" conflict.

Army Aid Refused.

Truman cited the case of a navy plane that was grounded 10 days in Kansas thru the loss of a minor part. This part could have been obtained almost immediately from the army, but because the plane belonged to the navy, the part had to be flown from a navy supply base in California, he related.

During the camp construction period, millions were spent for materials and equipment as the army and navy competed with each other, said Truman. Additional millions were "squandered" by duplications in the construction of bases and camps. In many areas separate army and navy fields actually were built side by side, he said.

As another example of waste, Truman recited the army's headlong rush to Chicago to buy hotels, which were abandoned within a comparatively short time, or never used. The widely publicized Detroit tool case, in which the army sold $1,721,136 worth of surplus machine tools for $36,924, was mentioned as emphasizing "the wastefulness of uncoöperated action in the war."

Ship Design Bungled.

Truman devoted much space to the navy's bungling of landing craft development before and during the war. Despite the fact that its own landing craft designs had been proved inferior, the navy bureau of ships repeatedly rejected the superior boats designed by A. J. Higgins of New Orleans, La., he said. When the navy bureau finally shifted to the Higgins design, millions of dollars had been wasted and five full years lost, Truman asserted.

He described the army's Canol project for supplying oil to Alaska from a field near the Arctic circle as one of appalling wastes and an undertaking consisting of "all hopes with no base in reality."

SEVERAL MAJOR OFFICIAL SHIFTS MADE IN DU PONT

Wilmington, Del., Aug. 21 (AP).—A. Felix du Pont, vice president of E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Co., has retired as a member of its finance committee, the company announced today after a directors' meeting. He will remain a member of the board. Emile F. du Pont, production director of the nylon division and a director of the company, was elected to the finance committee.

Edward B. Yancey was elected a vice president and member of the executive committee. He was succeeded as general manager of the explosives department by William H. Ward, formerly assistant general manager.

Dr. Fin Sparre, director of the development department, will retire Aug. 31, but will remain a director. Ernest K. Gladding will succeed him as department director.

MASS TROOP TRAFFIC BY PULLMAN FOR SIX MONTHS NEARS PEAK

Mass troop movements in Pullman company sleeping cars in the first half of 1944 were near the 1943 peak levels altho a large portion of the nation's military machine was operating abroad, J. M. Carry, assistant vice president, announced yesterday. Troops carried totaled 4,304,025, compared with 4,902,000 a year earlier.

Maj. Gen. G. P. Gross, in a report on troop movements in the 31 months from Dec. 1, 1941, thru June, 1944, said the railroads carried 22,800,000 men, nearly 98 per cent of all those transported. Of the 530,000 passenger cars used, 334,000 were Pullman cars.

WAR DEFERRED SUITS TO BEGIN, BIDDLE WARNS

Los Angeles, Cal., Aug. 21 (AP).—Prosecution of 27 anti-trust cases, held in abeyance because of the war, will be instituted by the justice department during the next six months, Atty. Gen. Biddle said today.

"In agreement with the army and navy we delayed action in cases where prosecution might have hindered the war effort," he told a town hall luncheon meeting, "but recently we've been bringing some out. The picture is changing."

SMALLER WAR JOBBER TO GET WPB SECURITY

Expect New Policy to Boost Output.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 21—[Special].—The war production board today announced a four point policy to stimulate output of important materials and parts needed in war production, designed to protect the productive capacity of subcontractors.

It was announced for the guidance of war contracting agencies, prime contractors, and subcontractors, and is designed to give additional security, in the event of cutbacks and contract terminations, to the smaller subcontractors, WPB said.

Substantially every important war weapon requires materials and components produced by subcontractors with whom the government normally has no direct contract relations, WPB explained. These smaller subcontractors and suppliers are dependent upon prime contractors and higher tier subcontractors to absorb their production.

Proceed Without Orders.

To insure a steady supply of materials and parts, these manufacturers frequently must produce in advance of the receipt of orders, with the result that sudden changes in the war production program may make it difficult for them to dispose of inventory, WPB added.

To meet this situation, the WPB procurement policy board, composed of representatives of WPB, the army, navy, treasury, and other government contracting agencies, has adopted a protective program which WPB summarized as follows:

1. Component and material manufacturers will be encouraged to require war contractors and subcontractors to place orders for components and materials long enough in advance to give protection during the necessary period of production.

2. The contracting agencies will insist that war contractors and subcontractors place such orders reasonably in advance and in amounts sufficient to enable them to meet the requirements of their own contracts.

Sound Planning Urged.

3. War contractors and subcontractors will be urged to plan the purchase, production, and delivery of components on a sound basis that will insure that components and materials will be available, but at the same time avoiding the unreasonable accumulation of an inventory in advance of actual production needs.

4. Component and material manufacturers will be assisted in obtaining provisions in orders that will insure them of a fair settlement if the orders are canceled. Standard provisions for use in subcontracts were recently approved by the director of war mobilization.

NAVY LEASES 3 BUILDINGS FOR MATERIAL SALE

Federal District Judge Igoe yesterday authorized the government to take immediate possession under a one year lease of three buildings at 884 N. Halsted st. for a naval material redistribution and disposal center for unneeded and obsolete navy equipment and supplies. Clarence W. Beatty Jr., assistant United States district attorney, who represented the navy in a condemnation suit, said several million dollars worth of desks, women's safety shoes, and airplane parts will be included in the preliminary selling. They will be sold to the highest bidders if not first taken by other federal agencies.

Defendants in the condemnation suit were the Branch Street corporation, J. Chapman & Sons, and Dry & Co. The three buildings are one, one and two, and eight stories and contain 185,000 square feet of floor space. In addition there is 60,000 square feet of open yard space.

Central Soya Debentures on Market Today

Glore, Forgan & Co. today will offer a new issue of 2¼ million dollars of Central Soya company 3¼ per cent sinking fund debentures, due 1959, at 100 per cent and accrued interest. The company's soybean processing plant is in Fort Wayne, Ind. Proceeds will be used to retire $1,400,000 of first mortgage and leasehold 4 per cent bonds, due 1952, and to provide additional working capital needed for expanded operations.

A price of $100 a share on its proposed offering of 35,000 shares of cumulative 4¼ per cent $100 par value preferred stock was announced by National Cylinder Gas company in an amendment to its registration statement. Proceeds will be used for general corporate purposes and business expansion. The underwriters group is headed by Paine, Webber, Jackson & Curtis, and F. S. Moseley & Co.

Special Meeting Called.

A special meeting of Bendix Home Appliances, Inc., will be held Aug. 29 to vote on a proposal that 50,000 shares of a block of 250,000 shares on which no preëmptive right exists be set aside for options to be granted to key executives. Stockholders also will vote on ratification of a resolution which would extend the stock purchase option of J. S. Sayre, president, from March 1, 1945, to March 1, 1948.

Southeastern Greyhound Lines called a special meeting Oct. 10 to vote on increasing authorized common stock from 417,320 shares of $5 par value to 1 million shares of $5 par value.

ICC Gets Refinancing Plan.

Interstate commerce commission authority was asked by Great Northern Railway company to issue 100 million dollars of general mortgage bonds in three series payable from 1960 to 1980 at interest rates of 3¼ to 3½ per cent. Plans for the issue were announced July 19.

Proceeds plus treasury funds will be used to redeem $119,887,700 of liens against the Great Northern and the Northern division of the Eastern Railway Company of Minnesota. The line would invite competitive bids for the bonds and mail invitations to approximately 25 of the larger investment companies late this month.

NEEDED REPAIRS CAUSE DECREASE IN STEEL OUTPUT

New York, Aug. 21 (AP).—The American Iron and Steel institute reported today steel mills had scheduled operations this week at 94½ per cent of capacity, a drop of 1½ per cent from last week's 96 per cent. Indicated production was 1,692,800 net tons compared with 1,719,600 tons last week.

Officials said the principal reason for the sharp drop in this week's operations was the need for repairs to furnaces that have been idle but little this year.

Quit as Ward's Chairman? 'Uninformed,' Says Avery

Asked yesterday about reports from New York that he will quit soon as chairman of Montgomery Ward & Co., Sewell L. Avery said: "It is a matter on which I am as yet uninformed."

People and Events

Charles W. Buckley, 87, and E. J. Edward Wynne, 86, who hold the two oldest memberships in the Chicago Board of Trade, yesterday received floral tributes on the trading floor from Harry C. Schaack, president of the grain exchange. Buckley's membership dates to 1885, and Wynne, whose 86th birthday was yesterday, joined in 1887.

E. J. E. Wynne.

The war department announced the appointment of Lt. Col. William C. Martens as a member of the price adjustment board. In civil life Martens was vice president of the Personal Products corporation, a Johnson and Johnson subsidiary, New Brunswick, N. J.

Terrell C. Drinkwater, who recently resigned as executive vice president of Continental Air Lines, yesterday was elected vice president of American Airlines, in charge of route development. He succeeds the late Hollis R. Thompson. Drinkwater became general counsel of Continental Air Lines in 1938 and executive vice president in 1942. He will assume his new position Sept. 1.

CIVILIAN STOCKS OF RATION-FREE BEEF PLENTIFUL

Altho better grades of beef and pork remain scarce, consumer supplies of ration-free lean beef are much more plentiful this month than last, a nation-wide survey of packers and branch house managers disclosed yesterday. The survey was conducted by the American Meat institute at the request of the OPA.

The survey showed that pork sausage, luncheon meats, hamburger, canned meats, and lard were available in generous quantities. All cuts of veal were in larger supply.

Stocks of pork loins, hams, shoulders, bacon and spareribs are short, reflecting increased government demand, the survey showed.

STOCK MARKET TURNS EASY ON ALLIED SWEEP

Conversion Worry Is Bearish Factor.

New York, Aug. 21 (AP).—The stock market faltered today as the allied sweep in Europe brought victory nearer and revived apprehension over transition problems when the Nazis finally collapse.

Altho scattered utilities and industrials which should benefit from the conversion to normal operations attracted mild bidding, leading climbers of last week among steels and motors retreated after a steady start and closing declines of fractions to a point were in the majority. Liquidation never was urgent.

Sentiment Is Mixed.

Earnings and dividends generally were advancing influences. Customers, tho, returned from their long week-end to find that securities at London continued to retreat as a reflection of peace time doubts. The result was switching of accounts or a reversion to a do-nothing policy.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks was off 0.2 point at 55.5, first setback since last Tuesday. Transfers totaled 828,020 shares.

Clinging to advances were Engineers Public Service, which touched a peak for 1944; Consolidated Edison, North American, Electric Power and Light, Sears Roebuck, Westinghouse Electric, Allied Chemical, Philip Morris, and Johns-Manville. Losers included United States Steel, Bethlehem, Chrysler, General Motors, Santa Fe, Southern Pacific, United States Rubber, American Can, du Pont, United Aircraft, Eastman Kodak, and Standard Oil [N. J.].

BOND PRICES MIXED.

New York, Aug. 21 (AP).—A selected group of liens of solvent railroads and representative utilities edged higher in a slow and leaderless bond market today while modest liquidation overtook some of the bankrupt carrier loans. Both losses and gains were in fractions for the most part. Sales were $5,377,500 compared with $5,681,100 last Friday.

Unchanged or lower were loans of the Milwaukee road [except the 3½s], North Western, Rock Island, Columbia Gas, Erie Railroad, Great Northern, Katy, Peoria and Eastern, and Seaboard Airline. Bonds of Australia and Canada were higher.

CHICAGO LIST UNEVEN.

Prices were mixed in reduced turnover of 32,000 shares yesterday on the Chicago Stock exchange. Volume leaders included Houdaille-Hershey class B, up ⅝; Standard Dredging, unchanged, and Advance Aluminum, down ⅛. United Air Lines closed up ⅝ at 34⅜, a new 1944 peak. A special offering of 3,552 shares of Chicago Flexible Shaft new common, made by Glore Forgan & Co. and Loewi & Co. at 38¾, was oversubscribed. Special commission paid brokers was 80 cents per share.

25% of Sales Made to U.S., Armour Says

One-fourth of total sales of Armour & Co. and domestic subsidiaries in the approximately 19 months ended June 3 were to the United States government, the company disclosed yesterday in discussing the effect of the war on its operations in a registration statement filed with the securities and exchange commission.

The registration was for 65 million dollars of first mortgage 3¼ per cent sinking fund bonds, proceeds of which, together with 10 millions in bank loans and additional amounts from the company's general fund as may be required, will be used to retire outstanding series B, C, and D first mortgage bonds.

1943 Output Sets Record.

"The volume of live stock slaughtered and meat products distributed by the company and its subsidiaries in 1943 was greater than in any previous year," the company said.

"In the last five years demand for products manufactured or distributed by the company and its subsidiaries has increased markedly, principally as a result of the requirements of the services [and in the case of South American production, the requirements of the British] and for lend-lease."

Little Expansion Necessary.

War time production needs were met without any substantial additions to plants, Armour said. It disclosed that in the five fiscal years and 31 weeks ended June 3, capital expenditures for, less amounts realized on sales of, fixed assets exclusive of land were $25,554,458. Amounts realized on sales of land, principally surplus, exceeded expenditures for necessary land acquisitions by $1,266,462.

Gross sales of Armour and subsidiaries in the 31 weeks ended June 3 were $915,874,743, a profit and loss statement included in the statement showed. Consolidated net income for the 31 weeks was $8,120,407.

ARMY AIR CHIEFS DISCUSS ENDING WAR CONTRACTS

Brig. Gen. K. E. Wolfe, commanding general of the army air forces material command, Wright field, and 18 other AAF officers met in the Chicago club, yesterday to discuss methods of accelerating termination of war contracts. Others included Brig. Gen. Roy G. Harris, midwest procurement district, Wichita, Kas.; Brig Gen. Donald F. Stace, western procurement district, Los Angeles, Cal.; Col. Nelson S. Talbott, midcentral procurement district, Chicago; Col. Alfred H. Johnson, central procurement district, Detroit, Mich., and Col. Don O. Hutchins, eastern procurement district, New York.

Lima Locomotive Given 12 Million Dollar VT Loan

Lima [O.] Locomotive works yesterday concluded arrangements for a VT loan to provide a revolving bank credit of 12 million dollars to insure additional working capital if required by war contract terminations.

WARD ENGAGES WLB, CIO IN NEW LEGAL SKIRMISH

Arbitration Move Is Called Off.

Montgomery Ward & Co. engaged in a new sparring match with the war labor board late yesterday, with the result that WLB changed its tactics to cancel an arbitration hearing scheduled for this morning.

This appeared to be a strategic retreat, however, not surrender. Instead of arbitration, WLB said in Washington last night it would take direct jurisdiction under the war labor disputes act of alleged grievances in the company's extended labor controversy, but set no date for public hearings.

William L. Knous, an associate justice of the Colorado Supreme court, was to have sat as an independent arbiter. Instead, he will sit as an agent of the board.

Suit Touches Off Skirmish.

The strategic skirmishing was touched off when Ward announced it would ignore the arbitration hearing on the ground that WLB was powerless to order such a hearing, and filed suit in federal District court seeking a declaratory judgment.

The suit, naming as defendants the CIO United Retail, Wholesale and Department Store Employes of America and the United Mail Order, Warehouse and Retail Employes union, local 20, an affiliate, as well as Justice Knous, asked the court to hold:

1. That a WLB order of June 6, declaring an expired contract between the company and the union to be still in effect, did not fix or alter any legal rights of Ward or the unions.

2. That the June 6 order was not issued in compliance with the provisions of the war labor disputes act.

"Without Legal Force."

3. That the order was without legal force or effect.

4. That the expired contract no longer was in effect.

5. That Justice Knous was without power to issue any arbitration award which would fix or alter the legal rights of the company or union.

6. That any award he issued would not be legally binding on the company.

The suit was assigned to Judge John P. Barnes. No date has been set for hearing.

The actions were the outgrowth of a long labor controversy which was climaxed by troop seizure of Ward's Chicago properties, and the forcible ejection of Sewell L. Avery, board chairman, from the premises.

Returned Before Court Ruling.

Subsequently, the properties were returned to the company after the union local won a bargaining election, and before a court ruling could be had on legality of the seizure.

Then, on June 6, WLB ordered the company to maintain the union's membership, check off the union's dues, and submit to compulsory arbitration of grievances. On June 29 it named Judge Knous arbitrator and directed him to hold a hearing.

WARD ENGAGES WLB, CIO IN NEW LEGAL SKIRMISH

Ward promptly filed suit attacking validity of the order. The court of appeals of the District of Columbia, at the request of the WLB, dismissed the suit July 19 on the ground that WLB orders are not legally binding, but merely advisory.

The board, despite this decision, proceeded to direct arbitration.

Company Invites Grievances.

"If the union has any grievances to present on behalf of Ward's employes, Ward's will be glad to receive them," the suit filed yesterday asserted. "Ward's practice is and has been to consider all employe grievances fairly and reasonably and to adjust them promptly." It said the union had presented no grievances.

The complaint said the appointment of an arbitrator is "entirely without justification and can serve no purpose except to assist the union in its attempts to misrepresent Ward's position."

Sandra Slotkin, international representative of the parent CIO union replied:

"This is just another attempt on the part of Ward's to prevent facts from being heard by an impartial person. They are afraid of the truth and hope so to confuse the issue that the workers' grievances will continue to remain unsolved."

Francis Heisler, attorney for the local, assailed inclusion of the union as a defendant in the suit, because he said the union was to appear before the arbitrator in response to an order of the WLB and was therefore not a proper party to the suit.

CITIES' LIVING COSTS CLIMB 0.6 PCT. MORE IN JULY, SAYS N. I. C. B.

New York, Aug. 21 (AP). — Living costs of wage earners and lower-salaried clerical workers in the United States were 0.6 per cent higher in July than in June, the National Industrial Conference board reported today.

All except 6 of 63 industrial cities regularly surveyed reported advances. Trenton, N. J., had the largest increase, with 2.2 per cent. Advances ranged from 1.0 to 1.5 per cent in Lansing, Mich.; Houston, Tex.; Muskegon, Mich.; Huntington, W. Va.; Duluth, Minn.; Wausau, Wis., and Pittsburgh, Pa.

Declines reported were slight, the largest being 0.4 per cent in Spokane, Wash.

The cost of living in the year thru July rose in 56 of the 63 cities, declined in six, and remained unchanged in one. Toledo led the 12 month increases with 3.8 per cent. Other cities reporting a rise of more than 3 per cent included Indianapolis and Evansville, Ind. The largest decline was 1.7 per cent in Newark, N. J.

ODT Approves Spector's Change to Rail Service

The office of defense transportation yesterday authorized Spector Motor Service to substitute rail service for common motor carrier service between Chicago and New York and from New Britain and Bridgeport, Conn., to Chicago.

PRICES OF HOGS STEADY; VOLUME CONTINUES LOW

Packers paid ceiling prices for almost all hogs at the Chicago stock yards yesterday in an effort to obtain volume as receipts continued to decrease. The $14.75 price was paid for almost all good 160 to 240 pounders and for a few underweights down to 135 pounds. The heavy hog ceiling, $14, was paid for almost all butchers and sows over 240 pounds.

Odd lots of light sows, just under 240 pounds, sold as high as $14.50, but were of minor importance because most sows weighed more than 300 pounds and came under the heavy hog ceiling.

Steady prices were paid for a few steers and heifers, the best beef cows, and for calves. Almost all other cattle slumped 15 to 25 cents. Most steers sold at $14 to $17.50.

RYE DISREGARDS WAR NEWS, RUNS UP 1⅜ TO 2 CENTS

Rye dominated grain futures markets yesterday on the Chicago Board of Trade, running up 1⅜ to 2 cents a bushel and closing at the top. Altho European war news remained favorable, and elimination of southeastern Europe from the war might release rye for the use of Russia, professional traders were aggressive buyers. Offerings were light on the rise.

Wheat closed unchanged to ⅝ cent higher, oats gained ½ to ⅝ cent, and barley rose ½ to 1 cent.

The possibility of congestion at northwestern terminal markets during the after harvest movement induced the office of defense transportation, the interstate commerce commission, and the grain and grain products transportation conservation committee to issue a joint plea to all grain interests to economize on transportation.

RWLB DECREES RETURN TO WORK IN NICKEL STRIKE

Cleveland, O., Aug. 21 (AP).—The regional war labor board telegraphed a back-to-work order to approximately 300 striking CIO United Steelworkers at the Huntington, W. Va., works of International Nickel company, Morton D. Barrisch, WLB assistant regional disputes director, said tonight. A four day strike at the plant which holds large contracts for navy material has made more than 2,000 employes idle.

Barrisch warned William D. Mackay, the union's district representative, and James C. Johnson, local president, the WLB would not consider further action on the dispute until production is resumed. Union officials have said the men walked out in protest over "unsettled grievances."

Earlier today the company announced it had asked the national WLB to "take immediate action" to end the walkout.

Unionists yesterday rejected a company offer to consider the grievances after work was resumed, and booed down appeals from union leaders to return to work.

9,000 Coal Miners Idle.

Pittsburgh, Pa., Aug. 21 (AP).—Coal production in Pennsylvania lagged by thousands of tons today as nearly 9,000 coal miners—4,000 of them in the anthracite region—continued strikes based on wage increase demands and individual grievances.

Pickets patroled entrances to three mines of the Rochester and Pittsburgh Coal company, where 2,387 workers failed to report this morning. The men voted to strike until the company recognizes supervisory employes as members of the United Mine Workers. Production losses at the three mines total 14,200 tons a day.

Other western Pennsylvania bituminous mines idle included pits of Ford Collieries company, Crucible Steel company, Heisley Coal company, and Miller Coal company employing 2,530 men. The anthracite strike, called over wage increase demands, is in its eighth week. The mines are owned by the Philadelphia and Reading Coal and Iron company.

MACHINE MAKER CUTS DIVIDEND PAYMENT TO 25c

Niles-Bement-Pond corporation, manufacturer of precision machinery, yesterday decreased its dividend to 25 cents a share from the 50 cents which was paid the first quarter of 1944 and thruout 1943. The reduction was made to conserve cash in view of expenses involved in connection with renegotiation, federal taxes, and reconversion, the company said.

Southeastern Greyhound Lines voted an extra dividend of 50 cents and a 50 cent disbursement, both to be paid Dec. 1. Previous 1944 payments were 12½ cents extra and 37½ cents quarterly in March and June, with similar amounts to be paid in September.

AMERICAN STOVE.

A report on American Stove is desired in connection with investment plans. By what margin do earnings cover dividends? M. R.

Answer: During the eight years ended with 1943, American Stove earned an annual average of $1.80 a share and paid an average of $1.20 a share in dividends, as adjusted in 1936 and 1937 for a five for one stock split in 1937.

For the last two years the relationship of actual earnings to dividends has been less favorable than this average. Profits for 1943 and 1942 were, respectively, $1.30 and $1.07, and the dividend in each of those years was $1.20. Net results were better in the first half of 1944, when dividends totaled 60 cents and earnings 83 cents. The latter figure compares with 50 cents in the initial six months of 1943. Earnings for last year were determined after setting aside $150,000 reserves for postwar inventory adjustments and plant reconversions and in 1943 after reserves of $50,000.

The company is one of the largest domestic manufacturers of gas, oil, gasoline, and coal cooking stoves. Other products are oil burning heaters and furnaces. Last year's output consisted principally of war materials. Manufacture of gas and coal ranges was resumed on a limited scale by government authorization last March.

American Stove has no funded debt. There are outstanding 539,990 no par shares of capital stock, with a book value, exclusive of reserves, of $23.38 as of last Dec. 31. Current assets totaled $9,264,435, and current liabilities $2,016,498.

TELEVISION

LEADING AUTHORITIES AGREE That Television is an outstanding post-war opportunity. Throughout the period of World War II, our laboratories have been actively engaged in the training of radar experts and the manufacturing of radar equipment as a direct prime government contractor. The extensive facilities and experienced personnel we have acquired place upon us a moral obligation to aid in America's post-war recovery program by extending to men in this area the privilege of training in organized evening classes now forming.
